FROM THE NATIONAL INTELLIGENCER.

INTERCEPTED LETTERS.

The following letters were intercepted on their way from Montreal to Niagara, by a detachment of our army.

Copy of a letter from Sir George Prevost to Lt. Gen. Drummond,

Head Quarters, Montreal,
Aug. 26th, 1814.

Dear Sir—I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your official letters of the 15th and 16th, with their enclosures, and a private one of the 17th instant.

I do most deeply regret the sequel of the gallant enterprise which put into your possession 2 of the enemy's schrs. You appear to have been induced to precipitate the attack of F. Erie by a desire to reep the full benefit of the spirit of emulation produced by that daring achievement. If the object had been accomplished, a scrutiny of the operations to attain it would have been equally excited, and it is not in reproach of its failure, that I observe to you, that night attacks made with heavy troops, are in my opinion very objectionable, principally because chance and not skill too frequently decide the contest, and that at night difficulties and dangers are ever magnified, particularly when they present themselves unexpected, and in the latter case the best disciplined corps are placed only on a level with raw and unformed soldiers.

It is to be inferred from Lieut. Col. Fisher's report and your statement, that the right column was not sufficiently prepared for the obstacles it had to surmount in attaining the point of attack, otherwise neither hesitation nor consternation would have resulted when they presented themselves.

I acknowledge that I feel apprehensive you have rather yielded to than approved the eagerness of the right division to increase its fame before you were sufficiently prepared and sufficiently strong. Your skill and excellent judgment will profit by experience in your future operations by guarding you against public opinion, however clamorous, when it would sacrifice your well earned reputation and the honor and safety of the army placed under your command.

I sincerely hope the candour with which I have disclosed my sentiments on your last operation will be to you their best apology. They flow from a source unpolluted by any invidious feelings.

The 37th is ordered to Kingston, from whence General Steven is desired to send you the 97th or any other corps you may have demanded. Major Gen. Kempt with the remainder of the reserve will soon follow.—My views in sending that officer to Kingston will be developed to you by the Adjutant General.

I have the honor to be, dear sir, your faithful humble servant,
GEORGE PREVOST.

Copy of an intercepted letter from Adjutant General Baynes to Lt. General Drummond.

(Secret and confidential.)

HEAD QUARTERS, MONTREAL,
August 26th 1814.

SIR—I am commanded by his excellency the commander of the forces, to inform you the 37th regiment will commence its march to-morrow morning for Kingston; on which point, it is his excellency's intention to direct the other corps composing the Brigade under the orders of Major Gen. Kempt.

If the Naval equipments is in that state of forwardness to sanction the undertaking the attack, and if necessary, Lieutenant General Drummond, the siege of Sackett's Harbor, in which the squadron must be prepared fully to co operate before the advanced state of the season renders such an operation hazardous and difficult, it is his excellency's wish to avail himself of the local information and talents of Major General Kempt, by employing him as the senior Major General on that service, and with that view his Excellency would approve of Major Gen. Stevens, proceeding to the Right Division, when relieved, and leaving to gen. Kempt to make the necessary preparatory arrangements for this arduous and important service. Should, however, as his Excellency is apprehensive, prove to be the case, that the delay in the Naval preparations may frustrate his views on Sackett's Harbor; he still trusts our squadron will be able to take the Lake with a superiority that will enable him completely to relieve all the wants of the Right Division and not only to secure effectually our own frontier, but to scour that of the enemy, destroying his depots and means of annoyance, and on this service he would propose to employ the force to be collected at Kingston.

I have the honor to be, sir, your most obedient servant,
ED. BAYNES,
Adjt. Genl. Forces.

Copy of an intrrcepted letter from Sir George Prevost to Lieut. Gen. Drummond.

(PRIVATE.)

HEAD QUARTERS, MONTREAL,
August 26, 1814.

Dear Sir—Major Coote has this moment delivered to me your letter of the 16th. I view with pain, the agony of mind you experience from the unfortunate termination of the night attack you had been induced to make on the 18th, and would gladly soothe your feelings on the occasion, by any thing I could offer in addition to the sentiments you will find expressed in a letter I addressed to you this morning, but all I have heard since has confirmed my prejudices to highly important operations being performed in the dark. Too much was required from De Watteville's regt. so situated, and deprived as I am told they were of their flints. The attempt has proved a costly experiment, and its result will be severely felt. As you have fixed on the 90th, orders shall be given for that regt. to proceed to you without delay. I had intended the 97th for that service, as being men of a hardier description, but the numbers of the 90th will probably make them equally useful to you. When this regt. together with the 6th and 82d shall have joined you, you will I have no doubt be enabled to efface the recollection of your late disaster, and to effect the expulsion of the enemy from the Province. The information brought to me by Major Coote of the state of forwardness of the marine preparations at Kingston, is not flattering to my expectations of regaining the naval ascendancy on lake Ontario in time for ulterior operations during this season. They do not even promise to be so far advanced as to enable the squadron to afford relief to the right Division by the transport of troops, stores and provisions before the beginning of October. Vascillating communications on the subject which I have received from Sir James Yeo, are calculated to confirm Maj. Coote's report; it is therefore a matter of serious consideration how the right Division is to be fed, without resorting to extraordinary measures. After correctly ascertaining the extent of your resources for that object, you will consider the subject well, and propose what you think will procure the required relief—in affording it you may rely upon the incessant exertions of every department of the army, to perform whatever is practicable. In allotting Maj. Gen. Kempt to the command at Kingston, I have given you an able assistant in an officer of excellent judgment, & much experience. On his arrival there Major Gen. Steven will join the right division—if it is practicable to send down your disabled men from York, it would greatly relieve you, and they would be taken better care of in the Lower Province.

I am, dear sir, very faithfully, your obedient servant,
GEORGE PREVOST.

BOSTON, Sept. 14.

A letter received in town from St. Barts, dated 25th ult. after mentioning the arrival there of several vessels from the Continent, and a Russian ship from Bordeaux, states that the U. S. sloop of war Wasp, captain Blakely, has safe arrived at Bayonne, where he was repairing.

The Quebec Mercury of the 23d Aug. intimates, that peace between G. Britain and America is not very distant; that the war can only be carried on by them on the borders and seaboard, in the nature of chastisement without danger of risking a Burgoynade; and that the most which England will insist on in the negotiation, will be the exclusion of American trade to India, and a trifling curtailment of the fisheries. In reply to this the Quebec Gazette, [the government paper] gives the following paragraph.

"In the present state of military operations peace is generally expected. We dread peace which may be concluded in Europe under the present circumstances of the war. Such a peace will only defer the designs of the enemy against these provinces till a more favorable opportunity, without much probability of its containing any provisions for their future security. We are fuly persuaded that England, with a very limited exertion of her means, possesses the power of obtaining such a security, and breaking forever that spirit of pride and presumption which makes the Americans so universally calculate on the undivided empire of N America. The Americans ought to be made to know that the war which they meditated to carry on in the British possessions, can be successfully transferred to their own territory; that an undiciplined militia cannot prevent a country from being overrun with impunity by a well organized and well conducted egular army; in short, that they were indebted for their Saratogas and Yorktowns, to causes entirely independent of their own strength.

The vessel ashore at Rockaway is said to be a large British brig prize to the Surprise.

FREDERICKTOWN, Sept. 16.

Within the last fortnight our town has been the theatre of much bustle and warlike preparation. Since the capture of Washington 3000 troops have passed through on their rout to that city and Baltimore. Many marched from this county and Washington, and a full regiment under Gen. Singleton from Virginia. In addition to these we have been much amused at the sight of British prisoners and deserters. The former are confined in jail; and the latter sent to Pennsylvania. Since the battle of Bladensburg the British have lost, by desertion alone, about 4 or 500. Many prisoners have also been taken; 107 have arrived in this place to be confined and guarded under the direction of that active and vigilant officer capt. Morris Jones, deputy marshal of Frederick county. Besides these novel spectacles, we have witnessed the entry of a spy and a traitor. The latter conducted the British from Benedict to Marlboro', and was apprehended, in our camp, by one of our officers, who knew he had been with the enemy. He made enquiries as to our force; wished to know if the Baltimore troops had arrived; how many men we had in the whole, and how many more we expected. Being a native citizen these questions excited little or no suspicion, and perhaps the fellow might have returned in safety to the British camp, if he had not been fortunately recognized by the officer mentioned above. Several of the same description have been apprehended near Washington City, and particularly one, who headed them as they entered that place, and gave them all the information they required. These facts being known our wonder ceases, that the capital should fall when assailed by enemies without and within.—Pol. Ex.

A FARM FOR SALE.

Will be offered at Public Sale, on the 10th of October next, if fair, if not the next fair day,

A Valuable Small Farm,

Containing 122 Acres and several square rods, situate in Anne Arundel county, Maryland, near Carroll's Manor, and about 1½ miles from the Baltimore and Frederick-town Turnpik road, in a healthy and agreeable neighborhood. This land is greatly adapted to clover and plaister, and I will venture to say it possesses springs of water equal, if not superior to any in this state. About 40 Acres of this land is heavily timbered; the balance cleared and divided into square lots, (6 in number) mostly in clover. This farm is the late residence of Elizabeth Ireland, deceased, and sold according to her will, for the benefit of her heirs. The improvements are a comfortable two story Dwelling House, a Kitchen, hen house, barn and stable, with a young apple orchard, and excellent fencing.—The sale will be held on the premises; any person wishing to view the farm previous to the day of sale, can have it shewn to them by James J. Dorsey, living on the place. The terms of sale will be cash. At the same place and time will be sold all the Personal Property of the deceased, consisting of Negroes, Horses, Cows, Sheep, Waggon, Farming Utensils, Grain, Hay, and some Household Furniture.
