NEW-YORK LEGISLATURE.

Message from his Excellency the Governor.

GENTLEMEN—Conformably to the declaration made in my public communication, I now do myself the honor of detailing the measures of defence which have been pursued in the recess of the Legislature.

Learning that General Brown's army had retrograded to Erie, and was jeopardized, and that he had called on Major General Hall for a small militia force, I dispatched Col. John B. Yates, one of my aids, to that frontier with authority and directions to consult with the principal officers and characters there, and to make a further call for such force as might be deemed necessary. His report is herewith communicated. Part of the militia called out by that order, have crossed to Erie, and conducted like patriots and brave men, as will appear by the official letter of Major General Brown, which accompanies this message.

Taking it for granted that Sackett's Harbour would occasionally be drained of regular troops, during this campaign, and that the commanding officer there would of course be under the necessity of asking for temporary reinforcements of militia, the Major General and Brigadier Generals of the surrounding district of country, were severely instructed to comply promptly with any call for militia, without waiting to consult me; and I engaged to confirm, as far as depended on me, their official acts in such cases. Accordingly, bodies of militia have, at different times, repaired to the defence of the Harbour, and a considerable number are now in service there.

The success of the enemy at Washington, spread a momentary panic on the sea board. The Corporation of the city of New York, had previously made an arrangement with the general government for the advance, in the first instance, of the funds necessary to pay three thousand militia, to be called into service at New-York. Upon receiving a requisition for that number of militia, it was immediately put in service. Soon after the disasters at Washington, a requisition was made by the commanding officer of the third Military District, for a large additional number of militia for the defence of New-York. This call was also promptly complied with and numbers rather exceeding the amount of the requisition, are now in the service of U. S. at New-York.

The Champlain frontier was at that time considered by me, perfectly secure, and I was confirmed in this opinion, by a communication from Major General Moores, of the militia, a copy whereof, marked C. accompanies this communication—But after I had made a call upon the militia of the interior counties to make up the number required for New-York, a communication, acquainting me with the withdrawal of a principal part of the Northern army from that frontier, and with General Izard's call upon Major Gen. Mooers, for a militia detachment, was received by me at New-York, and contained the first intimation I had of that movement. An express was instantly dispatched with orders for General Mooers, to comply with General Izard's demand immediately. Gen. Mooers however, had anticipated my orders, by calling out the militia of Clinton, Essex & Franklin; and upon the receipt of my instructions, made a further levy for militia of Saratoga, Montgomery and Schoharie counties, detached and organized as a part of our quota of 13,500 men, required by the President's order of the 4th of July last, and upon the Rensselaer, Washington and Warren brigades en mass; and I directed that part of the detachment of 13,500 men, made from Rensselaer county, to repair to Plattsburgh with General Eddy's brigade. A few of these troops had arrived, and the residue were on their way when the glorious triumph of our naval and land forces at Plattsburgh was announced.

In addition to the militia in service at N. York, I thought it my duty, with the advice of the city authorities to organize, for the defence of New-York, a body of seamen. Accordingly I have formed corps of sea fencibles, upon the principles contained in the act of Congress relative to that description of troops. But they are liable to disbandment if the Legislature should disapprove of their employment. About one thousand of this description of troops have been raised, and are stationed in the block houses, water-batteries, and at other places in the harbour, where they can be most serviceable. The Corporation have been so liberal as to advance the funds for paying them in confidence, that the same will be assumed and refunded by the state.—As the time for which the sea-fencibles have been paid in advance will soon expire, an immediate expression of the intention of the Legislature, with respect to their continuance is desirable, to the end, that they may be disbanded without further expenses, in case the employment of them should not be sanctioned.

It is with regret, I notice that the militia generally have appeared without arms or equipments; and that too, where it was well ascertained that they were provided with them at home. There is no law which enables the officers to punish such delinquency.—There was no alternative left, therefore, but to assume the resposibility of purchasing an additional supply of arms to equip them, or to leave the city of New-York unprotected. I did not hesitate to purchase arms with funds advanced by the Corporation of New York, under an expectation that they would be reimbursed by the state. The sum advanced by the Corporation to the Commissary of this state, for providing muskets, equipments, ammunition and camp equipage, and the sums advanced by them to the principal paymaster for raising, paying and equipping about one thousand sea fencibles, will be stated in a communication as soon as I may receive the return from those officers, which they have been directed to make.

In addition to these sums, five hundred dollars were advanced, at my request, to one of the Assistant Deputy and Qr Master General of militia at New-York, for the purpose of meeting some expenses indispensable for the comfortable accomodation of the militia, the Deputy Quarter master general of the District not being in funds to give the requisite assistance but a part only of the last mentioned advance has been expended, the account and vouchers for which, with the balance in hand, will be transferred to the Deputy Quarter master general, and the state be thereby exonerated from it.

The paymasters and quarter-masters of the militia of New-York have executed bonds with satisfactory sureties, and in large penalties for the performance of their respective duties, and for rendering accurate and faithful vouchers and accounts for all monies which come to their hands.

The State troops now in service at N. York may be estimated, and are stationed as follows:

One division under major general Ebenezer Stevens of the militia,	5,700
One brigade commanded by brigadier general Samuel Haight, stationed at Brooklyn,	1,800
One brigade commanded by brigadier general Jeremiah Johnson, stationed at Brooklyn,	1,750
One brigade under the command of brigadier general John Swartwout, stationed at Staten Island,	2,150
One brigade at Great Baron Island, under the command of brigadier general ——— Van Orden,	1,500
One brigade at Haerlem Heights, commanded by brigadier general Heermance,	1,600
One brigade stationed at Greenwich, under the command of brigadier general Peter Curtenius,	1,750
A squadron of cavalry, commanded by lieut. col. James Warner,	400
Sea-fencibles, raised for the emergency and stationed in the Rockaway and Gravesend blockhouses, and in forts Gates, Diamond, Stevens, &c supposed to be in the whole, by this time,	1,000
	17,650

These troops, with the regulars, commodore Decatur's force, the United States Sea Fencibles and the militia of New-Jersey, do, in my opinion, place the city of New-York in a respectable state of defence.

All the services which were rendered by my aids-de-camp since the commencement of the war, and which at times have been very arduous, were rendered gratuitously until the first day of September instant, when the pressure of business was such as to call for their constant attendance and employment at my office; and I then ordered them into actual service, deeming it unreasonable any longer to require of them, as gratuitous, such arduous services as were needed, and for the want of which it would have been impossible for me, without destroying my health, to get on with the accumulated military business of my office.

I pray the Legislature to confirm this proceeding, and to make some provision which may hereafter relieve me from my embarrassment in similar cases.

Experience has, I believe, satisfied all reflecting persons the expense, public inconvenience, waste and destruction of military stores, and interruption of agricultural pursuits, arising from calls on the ordinary militia, as now organized and regulated, are totally disproportioned to their efficiency in service, and that therefore a resort to some other measure to repel invasions and to meet emergencies, is indispensable.

I have had the honor to suggest the propriety of organizing and having in constant readiness as an advance corps at least twenty thousand men, uniformed, armed and equipped. These may be raised by classification or otherwise, as may best suit the views of the Legislature. Camp equipage, cannon and arms, for the equipment of that number of men, might be provided and kept in readiness in accessable depots, and the ordinary militia might be excused from service except in a dernier resort, when the exercise of more summary authority than is now granted by law will be necessary to compel attendance and enforce prompt subordination. The organization of staff departments for the state, for districts and for corps, as nearly conformable to the staff of the army as may be practicable, is highly necessary. Should an advance corps of about 20,000 men be raised, uniformed and equipped for service, it might be organized, proportioned and held in readiness, as follows:

For the Southern Frontier.

TWO DIVISIONS.

One regiment of artillery, including company officers	1080
One brigade of sea-fencibles	2160
One battalion of riflemen	540
One squadron of horse artillery, to act also as cavalry	540
Two brigades of infantry	4320	8640

For the Champlain Frontier.

ONE DIVISION.

A regiment of riflemen	1080
One brigade of infantry	2150
A squadron of cavalry	540
A battalion of artillery	460
Two companies mounted riflemen	216	4536

For the Frontier of Niagara, and on Lake Ontario. TWO DIVISIONS.

One regiment of riflemen	1080
One regiment of artillery	1080
Two brigades of infantry	4320
One battalion of sea-fencibles	540	7020

The ignorance of discipline of some of the officers of the militia, render it proper that the military institutions should be kept up in time of war, as nurseries for officers. A liberal gentleman in N. York has offered to uniform a corps of cadets if I would organize them, and permission has been given by the war department for three of the members of the Military Academy of the United States to take charge of and instruct & discipline them. I should be happy, with the approbation of the Legislature, to organize three companies of cadets, and to have them instructed and disciplined for militia officers. One company for New York, one for the Eastern and one for the Western District.

It is probable that no one establishment would be of more importance to the United States and in particular to this State, than a cannon foundery upon the Hudson above the Highlands. If the Legislature will take measures separately or in concert with individuals to erect an extensive foundery on the Hudson I am satisfied that they will thereby greatly advance the public interests. The purchase money of a site and other expenses of an extensive foundery, will probably amount to 70,000 dollars. The establishment may, with industry be put in operation in two months.

The power to organize the militia is vested in Congress. As that body is now in session, it is respectfully submitted whether it would not be advisable to authorize a re-organization of the militia of this State in the recess of the Legislature so as to conform to any new organization which Congress may prescribe during their present session.

DANIEL D. TOMPKINS.

Albany, Sept. 30th, 1814.
