THE NEW YORK TRIBUNE—The Policy of Mr. Greeley to be Maintained.—The latest intelligence of the New York Tribune affairs is that Mr. Wm. Orton has resold to Whitelaw Reid and associates fifty shares out of the one hundred constituting the capital stock of the Tribune association for a large advance on the price at which he last week purchased it He retains one share, and it is further agreed, it is stated, that he shall be elected one of the trustees of the association, thus securing the benefit of his wide influence and recognized business ability. Mr. Reid, it is supposed, thus remains, as before, the managing editor of the Tribune, which most persons of liberal views who have observed its editorship under his management will regard as auguring well for the future. The Tribune has an article on the subject of its own affairs in which it says:

"It is now proper to state that, as the result of certain intrigues and outside efforts to gain control of the paper and to wrest it from the purpose to which our late chief devoted it, some changes have taken place in the proprietorship, and a large majority of the stock is to-day concentrated in the hands of Mr. Greeley's chosen editorial associates—men whom he trained for this particular duty, to whom he intrusted the management of his journal in the gravest emergencies, whom he honored with the confidence of his thoughts and wishes, and whose purpose it now is to continue the work from which he was so suddenly called away."

The purpose of Mr. Greeley, as he formally announced it in his latest writings in the Tribune, was to make his journal more thoroughly than ever the honest and unfettered champion of republicanism, reconciliation and peace.

Over half a million of dollars having been paid a few days since for the bare control of the paper, and now being bought back at a higher price, it is regarded as indicating by far the highest price ever paid for a newspaper on this continent. Henceforth, the article declares, there is no price whatever with which any stranger can buy it.

A TERRIBLE MISTAKE—A Man Taken for a Deer and Shot Dead.—On Monday forenoon last a most lamentable affair occurred in West Virginia, between Frankfort and Springfield, in the section known as the Middle Ridge, about fifteen miles distant from this city. Several gentlemen residing in that section of country were out hunting; among the number were Messrs. Wm. Truax and Joshua Messmore. They had seen some deer and were chasing them up, but found this somewhat difficult, the deer at times getting out of sight. In order to make better progress in the hunt the members of the party separated. Shortly after Mr. Truax espied through the thick wood and brush what he believed to be the hoof of a deer, and in the spur of the moment, thinking he might shoot the (supposed) animal before it could see him, he drew up his gun and fired at the object. A low groan greeted his ear, and hurrying to the spot he found to his intense horror that he had shot and killed his fellow-sportsman, Mr. Messmore. The bullet entered his head just behind the left ear, and instant death was the result. Mr. Truax immediately called others of the party, who soon came up, and in a few moments these men who a short time previous were joyous in the excitement of the sport wended their way homeward, silently and sorrow stricken, bearing the remains of their unfortunate companion.—Cumberland Daily News.

THE DOVER DOCTORS MISTOOK PUMICE STONE FOR DR. WEST'S SKULL.—The Smyrna Times gets off the following:

The West tragedy, with all its horrors, has its humorous side. It is stated as a veritable fact that on the night of the fearful tragedy, when it was thought that West had been blown to pieces whilst laboriously struggling to develop science, two young doctors of Dover made a professional examination at that midnight hour, and gave a decision that the dismembered remains before them were those of their lamented friend, Dr. West, and whilst looking around for the fragments of the body that had been "blown off," a bony substance was handed them. They carefully examined and informed the excited crowd that it was a portion of the "Professor's" cranium. They also told the anatomical name of the bone in Latin and were showing the part of the skull from which it had been blown, when they were informed that they were holding a post mortem examination over a piece of pumice stone.

CORN AS FUEL.—An Ohio paper says: "We are glad to see that many of our citizens are taking advantage of the low price of corn to lay in heavy supplies of it for fuel. We have experimented with it last week, and find that it is an admirable substitute for both coal and wood, and that at present prices there is both economy and comfort in its use. A ton of corn, thirty-three bushels, at seventeen cents a bushel, is $5 60. We consider this equal to a cord of hard wood, as supplied and measured in our market, at $7; the cutting of this cord, $1 50—total, $8 50. Thus making a saving of nearly three dollars a cord. For kitchen fuel it is superior to wood, except hickory, and cheaper than that. It makes a very hot fire, with a great deal of blaze. We judge that three tons of corn are equal to one ton of hard coal, while in economy of its use it is equal to one and a half tons of coal. In a small family and small houses there is always great waste of hard coal, while there is none in the use of corn."

THE Chicago Tribune, the leading Liberal Republican newspaper of the west, has announced its determination to stand by the Liberal cause. This, together with the position taken by Mr. Whitelaw Reid, of the New York Tribune, shows that so far from Liberal Republicanism having died with Horace Greeley, it still has sufficient strength and vitality left to render it formidable to Radicalism. The Republican fight has not ended by a long ways yet.

THE PLEA OF INSANITY.—In Indiana they are trying to remedy the nuisance of the plea of insanity in criminal cases.—A bill before the Legislature of that State provides that whenever an indicted person is found not guilty by reason of his temporary insanity, the court shall send him to a lunatic asylum for a term of years proportionate to his crime. This would be an easy punishment to desperate men, but if they will add an amendment repeating the number of years in the State prison or hanging when discharged from the asylum, it might do some good.

Water as Fuel.

On Monday and Tuesday afternoon, says the San Francisco Alta, a large number of citizens, by invitation, visited the brass foundry on Fremont street for the purpose of witnessing some experiments with a new fuel recently invented. They were shown into that portion of the establishment occupied by the furnaces, and in one corner found a brick furnace some eight feet long and six feet high. On the top of this was an iron tank holding about ten gallons, which was filled with crude petroleum. From this tank a pipe about an inch and a-half in diameter, led into the side of the furnace. A small jet of oil not larger than a small goose-quill, was permitted to flow out of this tube; a light is placed beneath this jet, and it immediately ignites. Another pipe, about an inch in diameter, leads from a steam boiler stationed some fifteen feet away. This pipe leads a small jet of steam upon the burning oil, and the moment the steam strikes the oil the oxygen in the water is set free and ignites with a tremendous roar, generating in a very few moments a most intense white heat.

From this small source the entire chamber of the furnace, which is some two feet by five feet, is filled with a flame so brilliant and dazzling that one cannot gaze on it for more than a moment at a time. This flame possesses all the heat of an oxyhydrogen flame, and beneath its fierce power the hardest metals melt in a few moments. The inventor of the apparatus by which the elements of heat, which nature so generously provides, can be utilized, is a very modest man, saying that he did not want to bring his discovery before the public until he had fully demonstrated that it would do all he claimed for it. He says that the cost of furnaces will be only a nominal sum; that they will be within the reach of every one who owns a quartz ledge, while the amount of oil consumed in twenty-four hours will not exceed ten gallons at a cost of $2.

The doctor has every confidence in his discovery, and declares his ability to furnish fuel for a voyage of one of the Panama steamers to and from Panama for the insignificant sum of two hundred dollars, while the entire quantity will weigh not to exceed twenty-five tons. He further says that at an expense of five dollars per day, he can run furnaces that will smelt one ton of ore every thirty minutes. If only one-half of what is claimed can be accomplished, the discovery will prove of incalculable advantage to the mining interests of the Pacific coast, and will create a revolution in steam travel throughout the world.

A THIRTY-ONE HOURS' DANCE—An Old Man Wins a Wager.—Jimmy Kennovan finished his thirty-one hours' dance at 2 o'clock last night. Jimmy kept in locomotion throughout the whole time announced, only taking a brief recess at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, for the purpose of bathing his feet and having a brief respite. At this time he showed few symptoms of overexertion. His feet were slightly swollen, but he otherwise seemed as fresh as when he commenced. His extremities were bathed by his trainer with brandy, which proved a most excellent specific for the purpose for which it was used. Before the expiration of the ten minutes allotted Jimmy began to feel sleepy, and was glad to begin his exercise again as soon as possible. At frequent intervals he drank wine with raw eggs as an invigorant. His appetite was also keen during the trial, and he ate heartily. When the last twenty minutes before the elapse of the thirty-one hours had come Jimmy, who, it seemed, had husbanded his strength for the close, "let himself out." He seemed as fresh and more vigorous than when he first began, and he danced the last three dances with an energy and heartiness which would have put to blush a youth of sixteen.—Jimmy, in fact, did not stop when 3 o'clock struck, but kept on going for nearly ten minutes longer. When the feat was finished he departed with his trainer for his lodging, where he was placed in a hot bath, rubbed down, and put to bed The spectators during the evening enjoyed themselves in singing and dancing, and passed the time very agreeably.—Jimmy slept calmly and peacefully until 7 o'clock this morning, when he arose and dressed himself. He made his appearance on the street this forenoon, apparently as fresh as ever. For a person sixty years of age, the feat which he has performed is truly remarkable.—Vallejo (Cal.) Chronicle. December 14

HAVE WE AN INCORRUPTIBLE JUDICIARY?—An honest and incorruptible Judiciary is the salvation of the people. It tolerates no oppression—it winks at no infraction of the law—it stands for the protection of the weak and the humble against the strong and the haughty and adheres to the right, though the heavens fall.

Of late years very grave doubts have arisen in the public mind whether the Supreme Court of the United States, constituted as it is at present, is entitled to that degree of confidence and respect which was freely and cheerfully accorded to it and its decisions in the purer and better days of the Republic. That there are still some men belonging to that tribunal of pure character, exalted worth and great legal attainments is admitted, but the apprehension prevails that of late years those appointed to fill vacancies were selected under the influence of a political partizam feeling, and to carry out the behests of a particular party, rather than to do right and promote the ends of justice We believe it is admitted on all sides that certain men have been appointed to seats on the bench of the Supreme Court of the United States, because of their past political services, and as a matter of course all such, are the creatures of the power which elevated them and are at all times ready and willing to do the willl of their master. No one of opposite politics need look for nor expect fair play or justice at the hands of such Judges, and hence we are not surprised that there should be less respect entertained for the present Supreme Court of the United States than was accorded to it in the days of Marshall and Taney and their associates.

THE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH.—The Christian Advocate, official organ of the Methodist Episcopal Church, contains an interesting "address of the Bishops," from which we glean the following:—During the year 1872 the church property has increased in value from $64,698,804 to $69,843,814. Her Sunday schools include in their fold 1,264,940 pupils; her connectional charities in part $878,932; her membership has increased 17,995, and now embraces, including probationers, 1,442,722. From her ranks 16,737 members have this year entered the future life.

A PUMPKIN pie ten feet in diameter and four feet deep was the dessert at a recent California dinner. After that, stop talking about your grandmothers.

Good-Bye Old Year!

[From the New York Commercial.]

We bid you good-bye with a smile, Old Year, because it won't pay to cry. You are bound to go, and leave us, we know, and we cannot but say good-bye. We feel none the less than a long-drawn sigh, a quiver of lip and tearful eye, would better express, we will confess, our heartiest and last good-bye.

You've piled upon us a heavy load and many an ache, on an up-hill road; yet enough for the day was the strength alway, and hence our smile is at best awry, with which we say, Old Year, good-bye.

To be sure we have felt that the aches and pains were often by pounds and the joys by grains; and the screws seemed turned with an extra pinch, as though some malice had hold of the winch; and others seemed having much more delight, and we much less than was fair and right; that coin of the realm and bonds and stocks, and real estate in squares and blocks, and acres untold of prairie and hill and silvery stream and dam and mill; that these and more of the coveted real, and desires fulfilled of beauty ideal, were the lot of too few, while we of the many were often in want of even a penny. But then since we know, or at least don't doubt, that the broods of care swarming about the hordes of manifold wealth that burn and sink and leave by stealth; that "reumatic" love to pain and twist, the grasping heart and the gripping fist—we about conclude that we do not know of one so fortunate here below with whom we'd exchange what the year has brought—though little of profit our hands have wrought—and take his share of trouble and pains, and also his lot of regret and shame, and also the gaunt old skeleton grim that in cupboard or closet is grinning at him.

We cannot but feel, through a load of care, that to say the least it is hard to bear, it has been our lot all along the years, that nevertheless there is joy in life, in spite of sorrow, pain and strife, and hence we regret the old year gone, and wish its draft on time undrawn; that all too soon the new is old, too soon the wondrous tale is told.

The stream of life—Oh, woe is me!
Hath a current too strong and swift;
It hurries me on to the silent sea,
Like a rudderless, soulless wreck adrift;
Oh! would that there were some little bay,
Some headland, 'neath whose tranquil lea
We might forever at anchor lay,
Or float when we would to the deep, dark sea.

But a truce to regrets! let time roll on! what matters what comes or what is gone; It is joy to have lived, it is joy to live; why care for the flight of the fugitive? If each have filled up the fleeting days with noble deeds and high essays, then no remorse or sad regret will cloud the year's serene sunset. LORAN V. HATFIELD.

A REMARKABLE DISCOVERY.—Col. Roberts has discovered the remains of an ancient and deserted walled city, covering three square miles of ground, in Arizona, supposed to have been an Aztec city.—The houses and walls are built of sandstone, strongly cemented. Among the ruins he found pieces of colored pottery, entirely fire-proof. He says if the art of manufacturing it could be re-discovered, it would be invaluable for the lining of the interior of fire-proof safes. Col. Roberts intends at a future day to organize an expendition and thoroughly examine the ruins.

ANOTHER Snow Plow for railways has been invented, and was patented last week, by J. T. Munson, of Massachusetts. It is described as follows: One or more rotary cutters, having slicing knives arranged longitudinally with the shaft, and radial knives at right angles to the same, revolve within a frame, its forward end having projecting wings, and its rear part supporting an endless apron. The cutters and endless apron are so combined as to be operated by power applied to the central shaft.

AN exchange gives the following simple receipt for "greasing the griddle:"—"Take a turnip, cut it in half and rub the griddle with the inner side, and you will find the cakes will come off nice and smoothly, and you will be rid of the disagreeable odor of burning fat."
