Raising Calves.

It don't pay to keep poor milking stock—or poor stock of any kind. To have good cows, the best way for the farmer is to raise them. To do this, he must keep them better than they are generally kept—give them better feed and better shelter in winter. I will tell you how I raise my calves:

When two or three days old, I teach the calf to drink, giving it milk warm from the cow. As soon as it has learned to drink, I give it skimmed milk warmed a little, to which I add a small quantity of corn meal, about a table-spoonful at first, and gradually increase it to one or two handsful, with as much wheat bran, if I have any. I give the calf this mess three times a day, until it can get plenty of grass, then twice a day through the fall, winter and spring, until it can get a good bite of grass the second summer.

The amount of corn meal each calf consumes by the time it is one year old, I estimate is worth about five dollars, and I think they are enough benefitted to more than pay for it. I also give them a little corn meal thrice a day the second winter. There is an old saying, that "blood will tell." I know that feed will tell for my stock, both old and young, show it in size and condition. And I believe that farmers in this country can, taking good common stock to breed from, with proper care and treatment, raise as good milkers as they do on the other side of the water. Why not? Their good feed and good care has made their valuable stock what it is. Why cannot the same result be reached with our common cattle here? Of course it would take time to do it; it took time to do it there. Their Jerseys, Ayrshires and other valuable breeds were not originally what they are to-day, but with extra good feed and care, and selecting the best to breed from, they have reached their present high state of perfection.—L. H. Lines, in Journal of the Farm.

MORBID ANATOMY OF THE EPIZOOTIC.—Prof. Gross, at Jefferson College clinic, recently exhibited the post-mortem specimens obtained from a horse which died during the late epidemic, upon which he made the following remarks: "The horse was of medium size, and fourteen years old; he had been previously healthy during seven years in the service of Dr Maxwell, his last owner. During the prevalence of the horse disease he suffered in common with his solipede brethren, and, although treated with the greatest care, he relapsed, when apparently convalescent, and died. This may be taken as a typical case of death from the disease, complications having been avoided by the treatment.

"The examination, carefully made by Mr. West, disclosed a large quantity of serous fluid in the thoracic cavity; the lungs were partially adherent, and a section sank in water, showing a condition of infiltration or hepatization. In the trachea and larger bronchial tubes spots of lymph and numerous ecchymoses indicated the severity of the inflammation, and the mucous membrane, as far as the anterior nares, was discolored and covered with a mucepurulent secretion. Many of the bronchial lymphatic glands were enlarged. There was no evidence of disease discovered in the œsophagus or remaining viscera, and death evidently resulted from pleuro-pneumonia. The sweeping character of this disease, and its rapid spread over the continent, lead me to consider it of the nature of dengue. It is not communicable by ordinary contact; the morbific germs float in the atmosphere, making it epidemic rather than contagious."

WE have had several inquiries as to the value of orchard grass as a hay crop, and the opinions of our correspondents seem to vary very much. We find that where it is allowed to stand until nearly ripe, the verdict seems to be that it makes very poor hay. In England it is highly esteemed, and is usually known as cock's foot. Its main advantages are that it starts very early in the spring, grows very fast during the summer, and bears frost well in the fall and early winter.—One objection to it is its disposition to grow in bunches, or tufts, but this can, in a great measure, be remedied by thick seeding. Another objection is that it should be sown alone, for it ripens most too soon for clover, and much too early to cut with timothy. This is probably the main reason why our farmers do not grow more of it. We have sown it with clover instead of timothy, and find the mixture to make first-class hay, but in order to get the full growth of the clover, we have to let the orchard grass stand longer than we would if sown alone. It is rapidly growing into favor in Kentucky and Tennessee.

LAST season's wheat crop amounted to about 240,000,000 bushels, raised upon an area of about 20,000,000 acres, indicating a yield of from 12 to 13 bushels per acre. This amount is an increase of five per cent. on the crop of 1871. The decrease by the partial failure in the Middle States amounted to about 4,000,000 bushels. The Southern States having largely increased the area sown with wheat, have increased their products fifty per cent. Taking the crop of 1871 as 100, we may represent that of 1872 by 60 or a loss of 40 per cent. This is more than made up by the increased yield in California, and the increased area in the Southern States. Taking the crop of 1871 as a basis for Texas, we find the crop of 1872 represented by 320, showing that, inasmuch as the crop of 1872 is not extraordinary, that of 1871 must have been a failure.

Those who have not fully investigated the matter, are at first disposed to doubt the correctness of the low yield per acre, but from our knowledge of the manner in which the data are obtained, we believe them nearly correct.

ONE of our subscribers wants to know how to destroy horse nettle. We can give him but little information, and that not the result of our own experience, for we have never had it on our farm. We can give but one sure plan to destroy this and other weeds, viz: prevent it from forming leaves, and it will soon die.—The leaves are its lungs, and without them it cannot carry out its functions. Nothing short of total smothering will do.—An occasional cutting off will have but little effect. The small patch to which our friend alludes should be attacked at once and killed.

CUTTOR seems to have made it a rule to allow twenty pounds in every ten hundred pounds, in the weight of a pig, for waste in dressing and offal. This, while it may hold good for a pig weighing not more than one hundred pounds, is not fair for a heavier one. The Kentucky rule is one pound in four for the first hundred, one pound in eight for the second, and one pound in in fifteen for the third hundred. It is not fair to deduct one pound in four from the weight of a three hundred pound pig.

LONGEVITY OF FARMERS.—In a late address before the Farmers' Club of Princeton, Mass., Dr. Nathen Allen said that according to the registration report of deaths in Massachusetts, published now for about thirty years, and preserved with more accuracy and completeness than anywhere else in the country, the greatest longevity is found to be obtained in agricultural life. In the ten different occupations, as given in these reports, the cultivators of the earth stand, as a class, at the head, reaching on an average the age of sixty-five years, while that of the next class, merchants, is only about forty (40)? years; that of mechanics of all kinds, about forty-eight years; and that of shoemakers, about forty-four years.—Thus there is an advantage of about fifteen years on the side of farmers as compared with merchants, as they reach an average age but little short of the threescore years and ten allotted by the Psalmist to human life.

MARKS OF A GENTLEMAN.—No man is a gentleman who, without provocation, would treat with incivility the humblest of his species. It is a vulgarity for which no accomplishment of dress or address can ever atone. Show us the man who desires to make every one around him happy, and whose greatest solicitude is never to give offence to any one, and we will show you a gentleman by nature and by practice, though he may never have worn a suit of broadcloth or ever heard of a lexicon.—We are proud to say for the honor of our species, there are men in every throb of whose heart there is a solicitude for the welfare of mankind, and whose every breath is perfumed with kindness.

THE HOUSEWIFE'S TABLE.

The following is a very valuable housewife's table, by which persons not having scales and weights at hand, may readily measure the article wanted to form any recipe without the trouble of weighing. Allowance to be made for an extraordinary dryness or moisture of the article weighed or measured:

WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

Wheat flour, one pound is one quart.
Indian meal, one pound two ounces are one quart.
Butter, when soft, one pound is one quart.
Loaf sugar, broken, one pound is one quart.
White sugar, powdered, one pound one ounce are one quart.
Best brown sugar, one pound and two ounces are one quart.
Ten eggs are one pound.
Flour, eight quarts are one peck.
Flour, four pecks are one bushel.

LIQUIDS, ETC.

Sixteen large tablespoonfuls are half a pint.
Eight large tablespoonfuls are one gill.
Four large tablespoonfuls are half a gill
Two gills are half a pint.
Two pints are one quart.
Four quarts are one gallon.
A common sized tumbler holds half a pint.
A common size wine glass is half a gill.
A teacup is one gill.
A large wine glass is two ounces.
A tablespoonful is half an ounce.
Forty drops are equal to one teaspoonful.
Four teaspoonfuls are equal to one tablespoonful.

NICE BREAKFAST CAKES.—Take one pound of flour, one half teaspoon salt, one half teaspoon soda, and one and one-half large cups of milk, one ounce of sifted loaf sugar, two eggs. Make them as you would soda bread, with the addition of sugar and eggs. Mix flour, tartaric acid and salt well together, taking care that the two latter are reduced to finest powder, and stir in sifted sugar. Dissolve the soda in the milk, add the eggs, which should be well whisked, and with this liquid work the flour, etc., into a light dough. Divide into small cakes, place in the oven immediately, and bake for twenty minutes.—Mrs. Beeton's Cookery.

OYSTER CATSUP.—Boil two dozen of oysters in their liquid till the flavor is drawn from them; strain, and add to the liquor an equal quantity of raisin wine, with a dram each of mace, whole white pepper and allspice, and the thin peal of a lemon; simmer twenty minutes, and when cold bottle with the spices in it. The catsup may likewise be made of the oysters without their liquor, beaten in a mortar, seasoned with salt, cayenne pepper and mace, and added to an equal quantity of raisin wine; then run through a sieve and bottle.

FOWLS.—In this age of fowls we think we cannot do our friends a kinder act than to tell them to feed their fowls with onions. As the manure of the hen-house is the best for onions, so onions, chopped fine and mixed with Indian meal, is, occasionally, the best food for chickens. It should be given once or twice a week, and will prevent gapes, and all kinds of inflammation of the throat and eyes.

Political.

A FAMILY QUARREL.—Between the partisans of the recognition of the negro by a Cabinet appointment, and the demand for some practical recognition of woman's rights as carrying out in good faith the plank upon the subject slipped into the Philadelphia platform, as a sop to Cerberus, the Administration of the 4th of March next promises to find itself the object of many disagreeable reminders of an indebtedness it desires now to repudiate. With Captain Macheath it will probably say: "How happy would I be with either, were t'other dear charmer away."—The inevitable Fred Douglass, and the colored Professor of law in Washington College, in the District of Columbia, Jno. P. Langston, have already come to logerheads over this matter of official recognition. Prof. Langston having been urged for a Cabinet office, Mr. Douglass has expressed his opinion—too just to be palatable—that he is "an impudent, shallow-brained chap." Professor Langston retorts by calling Mr. Douglass "a conceited, over-estimated individual," which is also too true to be pleasant. As if this were not enough, the shrill voice of Mr. Henry Blackwell echoes through the land, claiming that female suffrage is a cardinal principle of the Republican party, and the female suffragists join in chorus.—Baltimore Gazette.

on the nature, treatment & radical cure of Spermatorhœa, or Seminal Weakness, Involuntary Seminal Losses, Impotency, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc; also, Consumption, Epilepsy and Fits, induced by Self-Abuse, &c.—By ROBERT J. The world-renowned author, in this admirable Lecture, clearly proves from his own experience, that the sad and alarming consequences of self-abuse may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically

THE EUREKA FANNING MILL.

THE GREATEST INVENTION OF THE NINETEENTH CENTURY!

Farmers Look to Your Interest!

THE attention of Farmers and Mechanics is particularly directed to the combined economy, utility and practicability of the Eureka Mill, and to the many other advantages it possesses over every other Fanning Mill which has been introduced to the public.

It is the fruit of long and patient investigation by the inventor, who has made it his constant study for over twenty years. He has secured several patents for Mills, and has always been rewarded with the best of success. But not feeling satisfied with his former attainments, he determined to reach the climax, and he now believes that his new invention will warrant him in exclaiming in the joy of his heart, like the philosopher, Phythagoras—EUREKA!—signifying in the Grecian language, "I have found it." This has given the name to this new Mill.

In this Mill are all the former improvements to which have been added several more, adding still greater advantages than were at first anticipated, or even thought possible by the inventor himself. It embraces the three great essentials necessary in every invention:

It combines ECONOMY, UTILITY and PRACTICABILITY!

THE "EUREKA" MILL

is small and lighter, and is capable of doing more and better work in a given time than any other Mill ever invented.

IT IS THE ONLY MILL

that will successfully remove from wheat all such pests as Cockle, Garlic, Oats, Rye, &c.

Should an extra quality of grain for seed or gristing purposes be required, it can be so arranged as to catch in one box perfect grain, and in the other, grain fit for market or mill. Here is made a great saving usually lost sight of: for nearly one quarter of the grain cleaned in the common Mills is lost when sown, on account of shrunken kernels and inferior grain. The Eureka Mill saves all this, and gives seed every kernel of which will grow when put into the ground, and this saving will, in a short time, pay for the Mill.

HINES & BURCHINAL,
