BEECHER DON'T WANT A HOLLIDAY.—Rev. Henry Ward Beecher having been voted six months, leave of abscence, to be spent abroad or at home, the congregation of Plymouth church, Brooklyn, to pay all traveling expenses, has declined to accept, for the following reasons, which he gave to his congregation on Sunday morning last:

"I take it I am a better judge than you can be of what is best for me and best for you. I take it, it is best for you to come here and hear me preach until it is pretty hot weather, and better for me to come here and preach than go wandering about the country or in foreign climes. I have a strong and healthy body, and am not in the least worn out, and don't need a vacation. I make it a Christian duty to sleep well and at the night time; I make it a Christian duty to be wide awake at the proper time, and at work, believing that work in a healthy body is the healthiest thing that a man can do; and although the care and responsibility of such a church as this is great, although it is a serious responsibility, yet I am hopeful. I am not as much wasted by the same kind of work as many men who work upon a different principle. I do not need six months' vacation; at any rate I don't need it now; if I should break down I would take it; until I do you have got to take it every Sunday. So then you may expect regular preaching all through the month of May and through the month of June, and then I shall probably seek the retirement of the mountains, because I have an annual affection—'hay fever'—for which the mountain air is the only remedy, and after that I shall be able to take up the work refreshed and go on again as usual."

It is believed by some that the action looked to getting rid of Mr. Beecher's services.

EDUCATIONAL GIFTS.—The report of the national commissioners of education for the year 1873, now being printed, shows some remarkable and encouraging facts. During the past year there has been an increase in the high schools or academies over 1872. But the chief fact of interest is that although the year 1873 was a period of general distress in business circles, the voluntary gifts for education insted of being smaller are larger than in any previous year of which we have any complete statistics. In 1871 the amount given was $8,000,000. In 1872, it was $9,000,000, or nearly one fourth greater. In 1873 it was $11,226,977, or about one eight greater than in 1872, and forty per cent greater than in 1871. Four fifths of these liberal gifts went to colleges, while to colleges and institutions of science, including medical schools, museums of natural history, and the superior instruction of women there went $9,481,079, or more than eighty-four per cent. The princely gift of Mr. Johns Hopkins of between three and four millions to the city of Baltimore is the qualification of any general deduction fron these figures. The theory that the general government should nuture universities and colleges is not helped by this exhibit. It could give no such impetus to educational enterprise, and especially to right management as are now derived from personal benevolence.

GLOSSING HARNESS.—Those who prefer to have a fine finish on their harness after it is oiled can have it by following these directions. After you have saturated the leather with as much oil as it will readily absorb sponge of the harnes with a thick lather made of Castile soap, and when dry follow in the same manner with a solution of gum Tragacanth of which take ½ ounce, and boil down with two quarts of water, to three half-pints. While boiling stir the content freely as the gum is apt to set to the bottom of the vessel. When cool lay it on quite thin.

SOME students fixed up a ghost and placed it on the staircase of a coy newspaper office the other night, and then retired and awaited developements. One of the editors came along and didn't get frightened. He disrobed it, and now wears a fifteen-dollar pair of pantaloon, a ten-dollar vest, a seven-dollar pair of boots, and an eight-dollar hat, while one of the students goes about without a vest, and another roams around through the least frequented streets wearing a very ancient pair of inexpressibles.

HE FAILED.—Some years ago a man in England who was very thin exhibited himself as a living skeleton. He made much money in this way, and as he grew rich he became fat, until several years after his retirement from show business he was as fat as he had formerly been lean. Lately, having spent his fortune, he attempted to again reduce himself to a skeleton, with the intention of returning to the show business, but he died from exhaution soon after reaching the desired condition.

IRRASCIBLE old party.—"Conductor, why didn't you wake me up as I asked you? Here I am miles beyond my station."

Conductor.—"I did try, sir, but all I could get out of you was: "All right, Maria, get the children their breakfast, nd I'll be down in a minute."

SINCE Connecticut has shown such a decided toudency to the Democratic principles, some attention has been turned to statistics "in the land of steady habits." It is said that three of the nine Judges of the Supreme Court of the United States are natives of that State.

TO TELL GOOD EGGS.—If you desire to be certain that eggs are good and fresh, put them in water; if the butts turn up, they are not fresh. This is an infallible rule to tell a good egg from a bad one.
