As Taber is being groomeed by the National Grange for the post of Secretary of Agriculture, his address was accepted as an enunciation of his views on the farm problem.

Out of the five hundred or more property owners in Towson but twenty-five or thirty have neglected so far to connect up with the sewerage system notwithstanding the fact that they have been notified to do so time and again.

Now the time has been reached when patience ceases to be a virtue with the authorities and "the dead line" will be on Monday, at which time The Metropolitan Sanitary District, under whose supervision sewerage comes, will take decided action.

(By Nancy Hanks)

Cranberries and plum pudding may lose their traditional playmate on the Thanksgiving menu if war prices continue to prevail in the turkey market. Baltimore county housewives are discussing this melancholy prospect with their neighbors.

"Fifty-five cents a pouund is too much," they declare. "Before the war the best turkeys sold for 20 and 23 cents a pound. We can't afford to pay $5 or $10 for a turkey. Think of all the other things that have to go with it."

Turkeys sold in market this week from 50 to 55 cents a pound. The wholesale prices ranged from 42 to 45 cents. Many of the dealers expressed the opinion that the price would drop considerably during the next week or two.

They base this prediction on the fact that there is a large supply of
