HOME AND FOREIGN WHEAT SUPPLY.—The wheat product and the demand for exportation are matters of such general interest as bearing upon the trade and commerce of the country that we extract from the bureau of agriculture the following statement: The wheat crop of the present year is estimated by the bureau at not less than three hundred and fifty millions of bushels. The English wheat crop, which governs the demand from the United States, has now been harvested, and is represented to be unusually short from defective caring. The deficiency, moreover, is the greater from the larger area now devoted in the United Kingdom to sheep and cattle raising, a million of acres formerly devoted to the production of cereals being now employed in raising grass and root crops. Those who expected a home crop of wheat equal to seven months consumption have now come to the conclusion that it will not suffice for more than six months, or perhaps for only five and a half. Taking the home supply at ninety-two millions, it is calculated that not more than eighty millions will be available for conversion into bread. The total requirement for consumption being estimated at one hundred and eighty-four millions of bushels, it follows that the deficiency in England to be drawn from foreign sources amounts to one hundred and four millions of bushels. Of this the United States has of late years supplied forty-four per cent., and this proportion of the supply has been maintained from January to July of the present year. Of the crops both at home and abroad which have since been harvested we have this summary: "Western Europe has diminished wheat crops. Central and Eastern Europe fully medium production; the United States a large surplus. Egypt and India will probably increase their shipments. This country must be depended upon for an increased proportion of the required supply. There will be a good demand and good but not necessarily very high prices, unless the exigencies of war should obstruct distribution or greatly increase consumption and waste." We are disposed to regard this review of the continental crops as rather overstating than understating them; but of the unusual large surplus of wheat harvested in the United States the evidence from all quarters is clear and conclusive. It is possible that the English demand for our wheat will be increased during the current year from forty-four per cent. of the total quantity required to make up the deficiency to fifty per cent. But while this may turn out to be true the large supply of wheat seeking a market for home consumption or export, owing to the great harvest of this year, will necessarily keep down prices to a reasonable standard.

THE REV. DR. JOHN HALL defends the business of politics in the Ledger. He says: "Let us dismiss from our minds the idea that there is anything otherwise than honorable in the choice of a political career. A lawyer, a doctor, a banker, a clergyman, proposes to be a public servant, and to live by the legitimate reward of his service. Why should not a man choose a polit cal career, with the same honorable objects?" Dr. Hall also believes in office-seeking, so long as it is done by worthy men. "Nor is it," he says, "to be a reproach to a man who has chosen a political career that he seeks to be in office. Why should men have to affect reluctance, and to chatter commonplaces about 'yielding to a sense of duty' in taking office? A good man embarked on a political career is as likely and as free to seek office as a lawyer to seek business, or a minister to seek a congregation."

EVARTS' excuse about that English mission muddle is not so bad. He is reported as saying: "I have been compelled to change my opinion of the Pennsylvania republican delegation in Congress. I was very much mistaken in them. When I asked them to select a man from their State for the English mission, I had no idea that they would go into the graveyard and resurrect a man who was not only dead, but who had been dead so long that his heir was actually in possession of the estate."

Delays are Dangerous.—If this axiom is true respecting the ordinary affairs of life, still more obviously so as regards the exigencies o approaching disease. Unquestionably! Yet how many neglect to practically recognize this plain truth when health is in the balance. Of the many premonitory symptoms of disease a hacking cough is the most prophetic of peril. Arrest it at the outset with Dr. WISHART'S PINE TREE TAR CORDIAL, and so avoid Consumption, Bronchitis, Inflammation of the Lungs, Coughs, Colds, and, indeed, all Affections of the Respiratory Organs, are entirely cured by this sovereign remedy, which also eradicates Dyspepsia, Piles, Gravel, Nervous Debility, Torpidity of the Liver, Urinary Difficulties, Constipation, Palpitation of the Heart, Scrofulous Affections, and the infirmities peculiar to the gentler sex. This Cordial derives its virtues from the vegetable kingdom, and is infinitely to be preferred, both on account of its superior efficacy and freedom from nauseous and injurious properties to the officinal drugs so often administered with no other effect than to offend the palate and disorder the stomach. The Pine Tree Cordial can always be relied on to do what is claimed for it. Sold by all Druggists. Principal Depot, 916 Filbert street, Philadelphia. mr24.

ONE of the most romantic episodes of the Russo-Turkish war occurred last month during one of the bloody combats before Biela. As the Russian troops were falling back before a desperate onslaught of their enemies a young officer was seen behind one of the batteries, boldly encouraging his men to stand their ground. Again and again he rallied the troops, but the fire was too heavy to be endured. They fell on their knees and entreated him to fly, but it was of no avail, and at last he stood alone among the dying and the dead, until a Turkish bullet pierced his heart. When the Turkish commander, struck by the extraordinary gallantry, singled out the body for honorable burial it was found that the young hero was a woman. What strange secret compelled her to renounce the peaceful pursuits of her sex and give up her life in the storm of battle remains untold.

THE State of Pennsylvania did a good thing for its finances when it purchased, for use as a site for a new insane asylum, a large farm at North Warren, Warren county, in that State. When purchased the property was considered to be outside the oil belt, but about a year ago oil was found upon it. Since that time a number of wells have been put down, the property has more than doubled in value, and the commonwealth is deriving a handsome income from the royalty paid by oil producers. Only a few days ago a two-hundred barrel well was struck on the farm, and a third of the yield from this spouter goes into the State Treasury.

HOW MORTON INFORMED HIMSELF.—Though not a ripe scholar like Sumner, he was well informed on many subjects, and thoroughly master of some. He read and studied incessantly, and upon all matters that any way related to his senatorial duties or the party that looked to him more than any other for leadership, he was equipped at all points. Every scrap of information, either concerning men or measures, was preserved in a book whose pages were as familiar to him as the Bible to a devout christian, and from this armory he drew the weapons that no man knew how more skilfully to handle. —Cincinnati Commercial.

MRS. CLEMMER, writing of Speaker Randall, says: "He is extremely winning. Cast in Roman mould, tall and powerful, he sits high and looks the man he is. He is just fifty years old, but does not look forty-five. Mr. Randall has a fine head, covered with closely-curling black hair, clearly cut, strong features, with a square, solid, but not heavy jaw; a mouth that could hardly fail to have its own way, if it set about it. The very strong will of the man is perfectly apparent in his countenance; but, combined with the head and brow, gives the impression of large power, rather than of mere willfulness."

THE OUTRAGE MILL IS AT REST.—There is peace in the land. There are no outrages either North or South other than those incident to all civilizations. The negroes give no token of dissatisfaction with the President's course. Their rights are less encroached upon than when they were under the protection of federal bayonets. Hatred and contempt for the government in the South have given place to a spirit of national pride and a disposition to accept the results of the war and make the best of them. These are among the first fruits of a pacificatory policy in the South. It is not a felicitous time for the irreconciliables to attempt to revive the old sectional and partisan prejudices and hatreds.—Cincinnati Commercial.

A BRIEF PROCLAMATION.—Gov. Vanzant, of Rhode Island, has issued the following Thanksgiving proclamation, which is one of the briefest on record:

"I appoint Thursday, the 29th inst., as Thanksgiving day, and request the people of this State to assemble in their houses for public worship and return thanks to God for His tender mercies and loving kindness; and may those who are blessed with abundance give liberally to the poor."

To those engaged in sedentary pursuits: You are aware of course that activity is promotive of functional effort, particularly of the stomach and bowels; inactivity induces Dyspepsia and all of its wretched consequences. In the absence of plenty of exercise we can cheerfully recommend that invaluable tonic and alterative, Keller's Vegetable Life Drops, the best known remedy for Dyspepsia and those diseases incident to a sedentary course of life.
