AUTUMN DREAMS.

SEPTEMBER.

I do welcome thee, September,
I who number three-score years,
And I now can well remember
When September had no tears.

Then the Margaruites and Asters,
And the Golden Rod were things
That grew in the purple pastures,
Royal as the robes of Kings.

When the Chestnut burs were bursting,
And ripe fruit fell from the trees,
Then the leaves in sadness rustling,
Hung their harps upon the breeze.

And in that far back September,
I a child with children played,
Plainly do I yet remember
How each playmate was arrayed.

I for three-score years have wandered
Through each Autum's rich domain,
One by one my band surrendered,
'Till but few on earth remain.

Yet this fair and new September
I do hail with praise and prayer,
Days departed softly number,
Picture garments angels wear.

Touching almost Heavenly flowers,
Hearing Heavenly fruitage fall;
In these fadeless orchard bowers,
Over this life's crumbling wall.

Dream I see the last band gathered,
And their voices think I hear;
Weep not that my buds soon withered,
Smile that they are free from care.

Thou art dear to me September,
Dear for these celestial dreams,
That at three-score make me wander
Through thy vales down golden streams.

MATILDA CANBY.

Wilmington, September 21, 1878.

EARTH'S LONE CHILDREN.

A boy, not over eleven years old, whose pinched face betrayed hunger, and whose clothing could scarcely be called by the name, dropped into a carpenter shop on Grand River avenue the other day, and after much hesitation explained to to the foreman:,

"We want to get a grave-board for ma. She died last winter, and the graves are so thick that we can't hardly find her's no more. We went up last Sunday, and we came awful near not finding it. We thought we'd git a grave-board, so we wouldn't lose the grave. When we tho't we'd lost it Jack he cried, and Bud the cried, and my chin trembled so I could hardly talk!"

"Where is your father?" asked the carpenter.

"Oh, he's home, but he never goes up there with us, and we shan't tell him about the board. I guess he hated ma, for he wasn't home when she died, and he wouldn't buy no coffin nor nothing. Sometimes when we are sitting on the door-step talking about her, and Jack and Bud are cryin', and I'm rememberin' how she kissed us all afore she died, he says we'd better quit that or we'll get what's bad for us. But we sleep up stairs, and we talk and cry in the dark all we want to. How much will the board be?"

The carpenter selected something fit for the purpose, and asked:

"Who will put it up at the grave?"

"We'll take it up on our cart," replied the boy, "and I guess the graveyard will help us put it up."

"You want the name painted on it, don't you?"

"Yes sir, we want the board white, and then we want you to paint on it that she was our ma, and that she was forty-one years old, and that she died the second of November, and that she's gone to Heaven, and that she was one of the best mothers as ever was, and that we are going to be good all our live and go up where she is when we die. How much will it cost, sir?"

"How much have you got?"

"Well," said the boy, as he brought out a little bag and emptied its contents on the bench. "Bud drawed the baby for the woman next door and earned twenty cents; Jack he weeded in the garden and earned forty cents, and he found five more in the road; I run of errands and made kites and fixed a boy's cart and helped carry some apples into a store and I earned sixty-five cents. All that makes one hundred and thirty cents, sir, and pa don't know we've got it, cause we have kept it hid in the garden under a stone.

The carpenter meant to be liberal, but he said,

"A grave-board will cost at least three dollars."

The lad looked from his little store of metals to the carpenter and back, realized how many weeks had passed since the first penny was earned and saved, and suddenly wailed out:

"Then we can't never, never buy oue, and ma's grave will get lost."

But he left the shop with tears of gladness in his eyes, and when he returned next day little Bud and Jack were with him, and they had a cart. There was not only a head-board, but one for the foot of the grave as well, and the painter and carpenter had done their work with full hearts and had done it well.

"Ain't it awful nice—nicer than rich folks have!" whispered the children, as the boards were being placed on the cart; "won't the grave look nice, though, and won't ma be awful glad!"

Ere this the mother's grave has been marked, and when night comes the three motherless ones will cuddle close together and whisper their gratitude that it cannot be lost to them even in the storms and drifts of winter.

THE BOY AND THE BRICK.—A boy hearing his father say "Twas a poor rule that would not work both ways," said: "If father applies this rule to his work, I will test it in my play."

So sitting up a row of bricks three or four inches apart, he tipped over the first, which striking the second, caused it to fall on the third, and so on through the whole course, until all the bricks lay prostrate.

"Well," said the boy, "each brick has knocked down his neighbor. I will see if raising one will raise all the rest." He looked in vain to see them rise.

"Here, father," said the boy, "is a poor rule; 'twill not work both ways. They knock each other down but will not raise each other up."

"My son," said the father, "bricks and mankind are alike, made of clay, active in knocking each other down, but will not raise each other up. When men fall they love company; but when they rise they love to stand alone, like yonder brick, and see others prostrate below them."

MOTHERS why do you let your children suffer with croup, cough, or cold when Leary's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry and Tar will cure them. Sold at 35 cts. by all dealers. oc12-2

A Remarkable Result.

It makes no difference how many Physicians, or how much medicine you have tried, it is now an established fact that German Syrup is the only remedy which has given complete satisfaction in severe cases of Lung Diseases. It is true there are yet thousands of persons who are predisposed to Throat and Lung Affections, Consumption, Hemorrhages, Asthma, Severe Colds settled on the Breast, Pneumonia, Whooping Cough, &c., who have no personal knowledge of Boschee's German Syrup. To such we would say that 50,000 dozen were sold last year without one complaint. Consumptives try just one bottle. Regular size 75c. Sold by C. F. Stam, Chestertown, and F. M. Goopsw, Millington.

A TALK WITH

FRUIT GROWERS.

I HAVE now growing on my farm a fine Seedling PEACH NURSERY, (from the seed of the Smock,) of

Over 200,000 TREES.

Being from Smock Seed, and growing on land that never grew trees before, they must prove especially hardy and prolific. I shall bud 50,000 (commencing June 15,) for this fall's planting; such trees will run from 3 to 4 feet in height. I shall bud the balance for planting the following Fall.

As most all planters have preference for special varieties, I propose to take orders before budding is done; customers furnishing their own buds if they prefer, so that all may be accommodated.

Do not fail to give this matter proper consideration, and send in your orders early; by so doing you can secure just the varieties you want. But if delayed till you are ready to plant, Nurserymen may not have the kinds you prefer.

I will give instructions how to forward buds upon inquiry.

I have a general assortment of

ALL KINDS OF

NURSERY STOCK.

Twenty years' experience as an extensive Fruit grower and Nurseryman, certainly entitles me to a reasonable share of patronage on this Peninsula.

HALE'S
HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR
FOR THE CURE OF
Coughs, Colds, Influenza, Hoarseness, Difficult Breathing, and all Affections of the Throat, Bronchial Tubes, and Lungs, leading to Consumption.

This infallible remedy is composed of the HONEY of the plant Horehound, in chemical union with TAR-BALM, extracted from the LIFE PRINCIPLE of the forest tree ABIES BALSAMEA, or Balm of Gilead.

The Honey of Horehound SOOTHES AND SCATTERS all irritations and inflammations, and the Tar-balm CLEANSES AND HEALS the throat and air passages leading to the lungs. FIVE additional ingredients keep the organs cool, moist, and in healthful action. Let no prejudice keep you from trying this great medicine of a famous doctor who has saved thousands of lives by it in his large private practice.

N.B.—The Tar-Balm has no BAD TASTE or smell.
