The Kent News.

SATURDAY - - - - JULY 26, 1879.

LORD CHELMFORD celebrated our Fourth of July by walking into the Zulus and giving them such a drubbing that the war is virtually over.

THE Boston Herald says Chastine Cox is a peacock of vanity, and conducted himself during his trial like a military general at a dress parade.

AN Ohio correspondent of a New York paper asserts that Geo. H. Pendleton is laying his pipes for the Presidential nomination in 1884.

GOVERNOR COLQUITT, of Georgia, thinks that even Mormon missionaries cannot be murdered with impunity in his State and will offer a reward for the slayer of Elder Standing, who was shot on the public road a few days since.

HANLAN, the noted oarsman, whose victories in England have been recently chronicled, expresses the belief that total abstinence from liquor and tobocco is necessary to the most successful physical efforts. He attributes his own success to total abstinence.

MR. SHERMAN has two thousand women employed in the Treasury Department, and it is suggested that they can be utilized to aid the boom. Each one is the sister, the cousin or the anut of some male person, who casts a vote and can be influenced.

ROBERT BONNER appears to have in Edwin Forrest the best trotter in the country. He is said to have driven the horse to wagon, on his three-quarter mile track on Saturday, in 1:15¼. The New York Sun remarks that it is safe to say $150,000 would not buy Forrest to-day.

PRESIDENT HAYES has accepted the invitation of Rev. Dr. Stokes, President of the Ocean Grove Camp Meeting Association, to be present at the tenth anniversary of their first religious service on July 30th. Rooms have been engaged for him at the Arlington House.

THE trial of Col. Thomas Buford, at Owenton, Owen county, Kentucky, for the killing of Judge Elliott, was brought to a close Wednesday. The jury brought in a verdict of murder in the first degree, and sentenced Buford to imprisonment for life.

AN interesting decision touching the validity of negro marriages during the period of slavery has just been rendered in Augusta, Ga. An administrator of a negro decendent denied the right of the son to inherit, on the ground that his parents were not regularly married. The son however, showed that his parents lived together in what was considered marriage among his race, and the court decided that the relation constituted that of wedlock, and that the son was entitled to the property.

NEW YORK'S NEW PEACH REGION.—According to a correspondent of the New York Tribune, Delaware and Maryland peach growers are threatened with formidable compitition in the peach orchards that have been recently planted in certain tracts along the Hudson river valley. Very flattering success has been obtained in the Ulster districts, and throughout that section there has been produced a kind of mania upon the subject. It is estimated that more than 3,000,000 trees have been set out during the past two years, and next spring there is to be more planting than usual done.

NELSON BOGARD bargained to buy the farm on which he and his mother lived, at Dark Bend, Ind. The owner was seen going to the place to deliver the deed and get the money, but he was never known to return, and his horse remained among Bogard's stock. The missing man was a stranger, and nobody was particularly interested in his fate, or in disproving Bogard's assertion that he had departed afoot after selling his horse and farm. That was seven years ago. Afterward, a boy who had been reared on the Bogard farm was found hanging in a barn. Old Mrs. Bogard fell ill recently at the age of 77, and, believing that she was about to die, confessed that she and her son murdered the stranger for his money, and killed the boy because he knew something about the crime. But she recovered, and is now in jail, together with her guilty son.

FREEMAN, the Pocasset Adventist, who sacrificed his little daughter, is still strong in the belief that God called him to do the deed, just as he did Abraham, and with all the faith related in the Bible of Abraham he calmly awaits the issue. The fact that his daughter was not raised does not trouble him; for, although that was his belief, it was not made a part of the revelation of God's will to him, and he is calmly confident that it was done by God for some wise purpose. One object that he thinks he sees is the awakening of Christians out of the dead-and-alive condition in which they exist to-day, by this exhibition to the world that a faith as strong as Abraham's exists even in this lax and indifferent age. Careful observation still fails to discover any signs of insanity in him.

A DEMOCRATIC DISCOVERY.—The five border States, Maryland, West Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee and Missouri, that are universally thrown into hotch-potch as part and parcel of the "solid South," and as thoroughly "rebel," actually supplied the national government with a larger number of soldiers to fight for the Union and to suppress the rebellion than five New England States. Here are the official figures of the War Department:

Maine	72,114	West Virginia	32,063
Connecticut	57,359	Maryland	50,316
New Hampshire	36,629	Kentucky	79,025
Vermont	35,262	Tennessee	31,092
Rhode Island	23,699	Missouri	109,114
Total	225,063	Total	301,610

So it appears that five "rebel" States actually sent 301,610 soldiers into the Union army to suppress the rebellion, or 76,547 more than five New England States.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

SENATOR BURNSIDES stands out conspicuously from his Republican brethren as opposed to military interference at the polls. All the Republican Senators but he voted for bayonets at the polls, and he has thus made a most patriotic record. Even the Woonsocket Patriot, a Republican journal of his State, says: "General Burnside has taken counsel of his courage, and has both voted and declared his hostility against bayonet rule at the ballot box. This determination has added more to his Senatorial reputation than all his other labors in Congress. A soldier by profession, he evidently understands the sentiment of the army; a statesman by nature, he knows that military interference at political elections is death to free institutions."

THAT LEGACY TO JEFFERSON DAVIS—Another Will Contest in Prospect.—Mr. S. Percy Ellis, the brother of Mrs. Sarah A. Dorsey, who bequeathed by will all her property to Jefferson Davis, is a resident of 1068 Lafayette avenue, Brooklyn. Mr. Ellis says Mrs. Sarah A. Dorsey was the eldest of four children, two only of whom are now alive—Mr. S. Percy and his sister Inez. Their brother, Thos. La Roche, died a soldier in the Confederate service. In 1851 Miss Sarah Ellis married a son of Justin Dorsey, of Maryland. This gentleman died in 1875. His widow then took up her residence at Beauvoir, on the gulf, a few miles from Mississippi city. Tor two years the ex-President of the Confederacy had been a guest at this place. The property conveyed to Mr. Davis consists, besides ready money and large tracts of uncultivated lands in that State and Kansas, of Beauvoir Elk Ridge plantation, Tensan parish, La. It is estimated to be worth $250,000. A short time ago Mrs. Dorsey visited her brothers. She was an enthusiast on the subject of Southern independence, and looked upon Jefferson Davis as the man who would yet work wonkers for it. She believed that nothing could reward him for his "great work." Mr. Ellis, while aware of this deep-set enthusiasm for Jefferson Davis, did not think that she would go so far to prove her zeal as to give up to him all her wealth, when it was known that her husband had expressed a desire that the son and daughter of her brother Percy should have assured to them an income. The reporter learned Thursday from a trustworthy source that Mrs. Dorsey's will is to be contested, and steps have been already taken toward that end. —New York Times.

WHAT HAS BECOME OF THE TRAMPS? is the question asked by a Philadelphia cotemporary. This is their peculiar season, yet we hear a very little of them and their depredations. In some States it is known that severe laws have been passed against tramps, and Pennsylvania is one of those States. Have "tramps," then, a wholesome respect for the law that sets them to hard work or confines them within close walls in the genial summer time, when they long for the open-air luxury of the hay stack? Doubtless, however, many of them have gone to work without calling in the rigor of the law. In fact the reduced number of tramps abroad may be taken as one proof at least of the growth of better times—more industry and more employment for those that will work. Some may never recover from the vagabond disposition, but the majority will, as opportunity offers.

CHANDLER PREPARED FOR A FISTICUFF.—The New York World quotes Senator Zach. Chandler, of Michigan, as saying to a recent interviewer: "Many years ago I determined to take a course of training in boxing, and I employed one of the best trainers in the country, the man who trained Heenan for his famous prize-fight before the war. I was under this man's charge for at least six months, and in that time became quite an adept in using my fists. I got up a first-class muscle, and have preserved it to this day. No person in the Senate suspects that I am a boxer, or that I can strike a blow of iron, but if I am ever assailed my assailant will discover that I can defend myself without resorting to weapons."
