A Frontier Bulldozer.

When I applied for the position of city editor of the Daily Scalper, a frontier paper of some pretense, the man at the desk simply asked my name, age, and weight, and what I knew about the business and he employed me.

"The proprietor is not hard to suit," I remarked to the foreman that evening as I began my labors.

"What do you think so?"

"Because he engaged me at once," I replied.

The foreman laughed.

"That's because he thinks you won't last more than a week," he said.

"Why?"

"Why, don't you know, you are called all you know, knocked in the head, shot to pieces—bowled out. Some of 'em leave the first day, others hang on a week or more, and then we carry 'em to that hill you see over there and plant 'em. There's a row of local editors over there half a mile long, and all died with their boots on."

Truly this was not very discouraging, but did not long believe it.

"It's an easy thing," delicately he forced. "Why, you don't look like other editors, and then this is a high pressure newspaper. If you wish to be popular you must pitch into people like blazes. Those fellows on the hill were popular.

"And that's why they got killed. I suppose?" said I.

"I reckon so; at any rate they are dead. Joe Hodges killed them."

"Joe Hodges?"

"Yes."

"Who is he, pray?"

"The town bully; the master of the village, a genius double back-action rough. Better not say anything about Joe, or he'll waits in here and smash you into a jelly in no time. Very particular is Joe about newspaper notices."

"Then he shall have none in this paper," I emphatically.

"But what can we do," exclaimed the foreman, "Why, that sort of fellow won't be slighted—nothing he hates so much as neglect; and then he's mixed up in every row, so you'll have to mention him. In fact, Joe Hodges is on the fight every time a man comes to town."

"Well, I'll see about it," I said, as one of the compositors, a little frightened fellow, clambered down from his stool and rushed into the composing room.

"I'll fix Joe Hodges," I said to myself, when the man was gone. "The first blow is the hardest, so here goes."

I [illegible] a [illegible] article, comparing Joe Hodges with a mule, and saying that, according to all accounts, he was a drunken rascal, unfit for human association.

The notice was put in type at once and appeared in the paper next morning, along with the other locals, and that afternoon Joe Hodges called.

I was busy writing when he came in, but I looked up, and a hurried glance told me who he was.

"This is Joe," said the compositor.

In a half drunken way he floundered into a chair.

"What is your name?" I said, glancing at him.

"Joe Hodges."

I dashed it down on a broad piece of blank paper on the table.

"How old are you?"

"Forty two," with a surprised look.

I dashed that down in the same way.

"Your birthplace?"

"Missouri," with still more surprise.

I put it down and then reached for a heavy revolver, which I cocked and laid on the table.

"Are you married?" I asked with a quiet look at the astonished man.

"No," he replied, stammering.

I put the answer down.

"What is your business?"

"A blacksmith."

I made a record of the fact, and looked up to ask another question, when I saw that the bully had risen and stood glaring at me, with his hand on the door.

"What in thunder are you writing?" he yelled, his face almost purple.

"An obituary."

"Whose?"

"Yours."

He may have had urgent business down on the street; I do not know; at any rate he suddenly withdrew from my presence and never [illegible] I.

Mrs. Cooley's Remedy.

My neighbor, Cooley, suffered a good deal last winter from rheumatism in his breast, and his wife was badly frightened about it for fear it should end in consumption. Cooley could not be induced to try any remedy for the trouble, and Mrs. Cooley was thirty miles distant when it set in to kill him. She determined to try strategy. She made up a dry mustard plaster, and one night while he was asleep she sewed it on to the inside of his undershirt so that it would just about cover the rheumatic place. Cooley dressed himself in the morning, wholly unsuspicious of the plaster, and went down stairs. At the breakfast table, while he was talking to his wife he suddenly stopped, looking cross-eyed, and a spasm of pain passed over his face. Then he took up the thread of the conversation again, and went on. He was in the midst of an explanation of the political situation in Ohio, when all at once he ceased again, grew red in the face, and exclaimed:

"I wonder what in the—no, it can't be anything wrong."

Mrs. Cooley asked what was the matter, and Cooley said:

"Oh, it's that infernal old rheumatism again, come back awful. But I never felt it exactly the same way before; it kinder stings me."

Mrs. Cooley said she was sorry.

Then Mr. Cooley began again, and was just showing her how the ravages of the potato bugs in the East, and the grasshoppers in the West would effect the political result next fall by making the people discontented, and so likely to strike at the party in power, when he suddenly dropped the subject and jumping up, he said:

"Thunder and lightning, what's that? Ouch! O, Moses! I feel's if I had a shovel full of hot coals inside my undershirt!"

"Must be that rheumatism getting worse," said Mrs. Cooley sympathetically.

"Oh, gracious no. It's something worse than rheumatism. Feels like fire burning into my skin. Ouch! Ow-wow-yow! It's awful. I really can't stand it another minute. I believe it's cholera, or something, and I'm going to die."

"Do try to be calm, Mr. Cooley."

"Calm! How can a man be calm with a volcano boiling over under his shirt. G'way from here. Get out of the way, quick, while I go up stairs and undress. Murder-r-r r-r, but it hurts. Let me get out, quick."

Then he rushed up to the bedroom and stripped off his clothing. His chest was the color of a boiled lobster; but he couldn't tell for the life of him what was the matter. Then his eyes rested on something white on his shirt. He picked up the garment and examined it. Ten minutes later he came slowly down-stairs with a dry mustard plaster in his hand, while his brow was clothed with thunder.

Going up to Mrs. Cooley, he shook the plaster under her nose, and said in a suppressed voice:

"Did you put that thing in my clothes?"

"I did for the best, Charles," she said, "I thought—"

"O, never mind what you thought, you crooked-nosed, chuckle-headed idiot! Never mind what you thought. You've taken the bark clean off my bosom, till I'm raw as a sirloin steak, and I'll probably never be well again as long as I live. That lets you out. You play any more tricks on me, and I'll hist you into the coal bin and keep you there till you starve to death."

Then he slammed the door and went out. Mrs. Cooley doesn't know to this day exactly what effect the grasshoppers are going to have on the fall elections.—Max Adeler.

A Double Surprisal.

While Mr. and Mrs. Enright are agreed upon most all other subjects, they do not exactly agree as to how trames should be treated. That matter came up the other day: Mrs. Enright was tender enough for him to say:

"Every time you feed a hungry person you lay up treasures in heaven."

"I can't have them annoying me, and I won't," was her spunky reply.

"Does it annoy you to have a hungry man ask for food?"

"Yes, it does."

"I'd be only too glad to feed and converse with a score of them," he continued. "I like to ask them of their past deeds and future plans, find out if they realize that there is another world; put new and better thoughts into their souls. Oh! Hard times make the tramps."

"I'll fix you, old man," she said to herself as she left the room. Next morning when he had been gone an hour a tramp called and asked for a sandwich. The fellow was invited into the parlor to warm and wait for dinner. At half o'clock Enright thought of them. At half-past o'clock there were three of them. At a quarter to seven there were seven. Half an hour later there were twelve seated two more. About noon while waiting for her husband to arrive and ask them of their future hopes and fears, and chuckling over her scheme, she heard one of the tramps call out:

"Let go my hair!"

"Give it to him!" intuitively cried.

"Rah, for me!" screamed a third, and then the crashing and smashing drowned their voices. The whole crowd fought across and around the parlor, out into the hall, the door, then [illegible] being dragged down the front steps in air. Enright came home.

"Mother of us. Go for him!" yelled a big tramp, and the good man was hit on the ear, pitched into the snow, and didn't come to until a dozen camphor bottles had been collected. Hearing the noise, thinking on his wife's ann. They stood in the parlor door and gazed on the panorama. It was gorgeous.

"How much treasure in Heaven do you think has been laid up for you, Mr. Enright, this morning?" she mildly inquired.

He slowly reached for the camphor bottle, took a long sniff and replied:

"Hannah, let us feed the poor—we are [illegible]

SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

Testimonials from the most prominent Clergymen, Lawyers, Editors, Druggists, Merchants, Physicians, Statesmen and Postmasters, from persons of education and prominence from all parts of the country attesting to the wonderful curative properties of this great medicine. No other preparation but the Regulator has ever been discovered that would effectually cure Dyspepsia and its kindred evils, and restore the patient to a perfectly healthy condition of body and mind. The rapidly increasing demand for this medicine and our large sales in consequence, is indeed sufficient evidence in itself of its great popularity.

Perfectly Harmless. IT HAS NO EQUAL.

It can be used any time without any fear of injury to delicate persons. No matter what ailes the child, it may be given to children with perfect safety, as the results follow its use, doing no possible injury. As a mild Tonic, gentle Laxative and harmless Invigorant it is infinitely superior to any known remedy for

MALARIAL FEVERS, BOWEL COMPLAINTS, JAUNDICE, COLIC, FLATULENCE, WORMS, NERVOUSNESS, NEURALGIA, DEBILITY, SICK HEADACHE, CONSTIPATION, NAUSEA, BILIOUSNESS.

DYSPEPSIA, &C.

Read the following names of persons well and widely known, who testify to the valuable properties of SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR:

Hon. Alex. H. Stephens; John W. Redfield, Bishop of Georgia; Gen. John B. Gordon, U. S. Senator; Hon. John Gill Shorter; Rt. Rev. Bishop Pierce; J. Edgar Thompson; Hon. B. Hill; Hon John C. Breckenridge; Prof David Wills, D. D.; Hiram Warner, Chief Justice of Georgia; Lewis Wunder, Agent; Prof. Felix, and many others from whom we have letters commenting upon this medicine as a most valuable household remedy.

PURELY VEGETABLE,

Its low price places it within the reach of all be they rich or poor. If you are suffering and cannot find relief, procure at once from your Druggist a bottle of Regulator. Give it a fair trial and it will not only afford relief, but a lasting cure. Not a single case of Dyspepsia has been found that it will not relieve. The Grand Fashionable Bazaar OF THE EASTERN SHORE.

Mrs. K. S. Norris of Easton, Md,

Would again call the attention of the ladies of Talbot and Caroline counties to her immense stock of Millinery, Notions and Fancy Goods just received from the cities, and which she is now opening for inspection and sale. Her stock is exceedingly large, embracing every article in Millinery needed by the ladies, and of the very latest fashions, and she does not hesitate to boast of the cheapest assortment now open in the shore. An inspection is all that is required to verify the above assertion. Call and see her, and you will surely purchase.

She would also state that she has secured the services of a lady from the city whose whole time has been spent in the Millinery business, and who of course understands getting up a Bonnet or other job of Millinery in the most Fashionable city style. The rapid increase of business has compelled me to seek and secure first-class Milliners to assist her in conducting her business, and the ladies may feel assured that they can be accommodated in the most fashionable style. Give me a call.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

From a Physician.

NORTH HYDE PARK, VT., Feb. 7, 1878.

Messrs. Seth W. Fowle & Sons, Boston, Mass:

Gentlemen—You may perhaps remember that I once told you I would write you if I found the use of the "Peruvian Syrup" for my wife, who was suffering from general debility, the sequence of Typhoid Dysentery. I had tried the most noted physicians in this State and tried many things without relief. At your recommendation she commenced the use of the Syrup. The first four bottles made but little impression, but while taking the fifth, she began to improve rapidly, and now, after taking some twelve bottles, she is enjoying the blessings of health, and is able to do her work about the house; and I feel that I cannot speak too highly in praise of Peruvian Syrup. I have prescribed it to several of my patients, and have procured the sale of several bottles of it here. You can make any use of this letter that you see fit. Yours very truly, H. D. BAZEMAN, M. D.

THE PERUVIAN SYRUP

Is a Protoxide of Iron in combination with Vegetable Tonics, and is a most powerful Tonic, Alterative, Diaphoretic, Diuretic and Aperient. It is a specific for Scrofula, Liver Complaints and Diseases of the Skin, Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Dysentery, Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Neuralgia, Female Complaints and

ALL DISEASES ORIGINATING IN A Bad State of the Blood, Or accompanied by DEBILITY OR A Low State of the Nervous System.

From Rev. John Gregory, Pastor of the Wesleyan Methodist Church at Pittston, Luzerne County, Pa.

My Dear Sir—Having at various times, personally, and in my own and other families, tested the great value of the medicine called Peruvian Syrup, or Protected Solution of Protoxide of Iron, I most cheerfully recommend it, especially to those who are suffering from dyspeptic and nervous disorders. As a reliable and powerful alterative, it is, I think, unsurpassed; as a tonic, free from all the objectionable features of alcoholic remedies, it is a most efficient auxiliary to the temperance cause. One of the greatest hindrances to the temperance reform at present is as I think the medical use of alcoholic stimulants. Whatever may be argued as to their necessity in certain cases, we can safely say that here is a safe and efficient substitute for those dangerous remedies. This testimony is given unsolicited, with the hope that some who are not yet acquainted with the valuable properties of the medicine may be induced to give it a trial. Yours truly, JOHN GREGORY.

Manhood: How Lost, How Restored!

Just published, a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical cure, without medicine, of Spermatorrhœa or Seminal Weakness, Involuntary Seminal Losses, Impotency, Mental and Physical Incapacity Impediments to Marriage, etc; also, Consumption, Epilepsy and Fits, induced by self-indulgence or sexual extravagance, &c.

Price in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demodstrates, from a thirty years' successful practice, that the alarming consequences of self-abuse may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain, and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately, and radically.

This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

Sent under seal, in a plain envelope, to any address, post-paid, on receipt of six cents or two postage stamps.

No Quinine!

Dr. Berg's German Ague Pills!

Are strictly Vegetable, being entirely free from Quinine Mercury and all other deleterious substances. They have been tested for years in private practice, and have never been known to fail to cure Fever and Ague in its worst stages. Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Headache, Foul Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Neuralgia, Liver Complaint, Nervous Debility and all diseases arising from a change of climate and impurity of the blood, greatly benefited by their use. All I ask is a trial of these valuable Pills, and they will convince the most skeptical of their merits. Ask your Druggist for them and if he has them not, inclose 50 cents by mail to us, and they will be sent free of charge, by the next mail, with full directions for use.
