Select Poetry.

I Wouldn't, If I Were You.

I wouldn't, if I were you, my dear,
I would-n't, if I were you,
Be ready to fall in love, my dear,
With any wab come to woo.
For they's a snare in that pitiful stare,
And many a web is spun
With foolish art to entrap the heart
That is ever too lightly won.
Far better it is to be cold and shy;
Better to tarry than run.
So I wouldn't marry in haste, my love,
I wouldn't, if I were you.

Ah! many a soul as pure as yours,
Dear, innocent, trusting maid,
Allured by an evil one, has found to cost,
In love and truth betrayed,
Too late the place where a lover waits,
Far better that he complain
Over his fate to-day, than to-morrow say
I would I were single again.
Though jealousy flirt with but little care,
If lovers be false or true,
I wouldn't, if I were you, my dear,
I wouldn't, if I were you.
If somebody should double the choice,
Then love will become to enjoy;
The baby-aunt wait are it regrets,
Though fate the wedding day.
Far better an hour with love in your power,
Than the ever succeeding ache,
The heart may know in that painful hour
It grieves over its sad mistake,
And the sweet May with December wed,
'Tis better to wait than rue;
I would not in haste to the alter be led,
I wouldn't, if I were you.

A Deaf Editor.

The editor of the Santa Clara (California) paper is happily deaf, and thus tells of his adventures with a female book agent (the book was not a female, of course): We thought everybody in the State knew we were deaf, but once in a while we find one who is not aware of the fact. A female book peddler came to the office the other day. She wished to dispose of a book. She was alone in this world, and had no one to whom she could turn for sympathy or assistance, hence we should buy her book. She was unmarried, and had no manly heart into which she could pour her sufferings, therefore we ought to invest in a book.

She had received a liberal education, and could not in consequence pay her less than two dollars for a book. We had listened attentively, and here broke in with, "What did you say? We are deaf." She started in a loud voice and went through her rigmarole. When she had finished, we went to get a roll of paper, and making it into a speaking trumpet, placed one end of it into our ear and told her to proceed. She nearly broke a blood vessel in her efforts to make herself heard. She mentioned, "I am alone in this world—" "It doesn't make the slightest difference to us. We are a husband and father.—Bigamy is not allowed in this State. We are not eligible to proposals." "Oh what a fool the man is!" she said in a low tone, then at the top of her voice: "I don't want to marry you. I want to sell you a b-o-o-k!"

The last sentence was howled. "We don't want a cook," we remarked blandly; "our wife does the cooking and she would not allow as good looking woman as you to stay in the house five minutes, she is very jealous."

She looked at us in despair. Gathering her robes about her, and giving us a glance of contempt, she exclaimed:

"I do believe that if a three-hundred pounder were let off along side that deaf fool's head he'd think somebody was knocking at the door."

You should have heard her slam the door when she went out; we heard that.

The Talmage Trial.

Mr. Millard to Mr. Bright, showing witness a paper—"Who wrote that editorial?"

"What editorial?"

"That one my finger is on."

"Which finger?"

"This finger."

"This finger on this editorial?"

"Yes."

"What about it?"

"Who wrote it?"

"The finger?"

"No, the editorial."

"What, editorial."

"This editorial in this paper, which I hold up before you, which is headed 'Columbine and Harlequin,' on which I now place this thumb."

"You want to know who wrote it?"

"Yes."

"Why?"

"It's of interest to this case."

"What case?"

"Talmage's case."

"What Talmages?"

"Do you know who wrote that editorial?" excitedly.

"What editorial?"

"The one I just showed you."

"The one in that paper?"

"Yes."

"The one you put your finger on first and then put your thumb on it?"

"Yes."

"You want to know who wrote it?"

"Yes."

Witness reluctantly replies, "I don't know."

Henry Clay.

Henry Clay is discussed by a writer in a New Haven journal, who says that the statesman once corrected him in the pronunciation of a great Cardinal's name. "Yonghemmade," said Mr. Clay, "was Rich-elieu, not Rishe-lieu." As I thanked him he took out an enormous red bandana handkerchief and spread it across his knees, his feet resting upon a rug whereupon was worked the sentence, "Protection to American Industry."—The next operation was to bring out a gold snuff box of an oblong square form, hinged at the narrow end. Then leaning forward, his elbows resting upon his knees, he took a pinch and talked in a very fatherly, genial way, in a deep sonorous, musical voice. His personal magnetism was wonderful. Little children, as he walked through the markets at Lexington were wont to run and sometimes pull him by the coat tail and say, "How do you do, Mr. Clay?" and occasionally would put a bunch of flowers in his hand."

The Game of Life.

Man's life is but a game of cards. First it is "cribbage." Next he tries to go "go it alone," at a sort of a "cut, shuffle and deal" pace. Then he 'raises' the 'deuce,' when his mother 'takes a hand in,' and contrary to Hoyle, beats the 'little joker' with her 'five.' Then with his 'diamonds' he wins the 'queen of hearts.' Tired of 'playing a lone hand,' he expresses a desire to 'assist' his fair 'partner,' 'throws out his cards,' and the clergyman takes a ten dollar bill out of him on 'a pair.' She 'orders him up' to build free. Like a 'knave he joins the 'clubs,' where he often gets 'high' which is 'low' too. If he keeps 'straight' he is oftentimes 'flush.' He grows old and 'hard' 'sees a 'deal' of trouble, when at last he 'shuffles' off his mortal coil and 'passes' in his 'checks.' As he is 'raked in' by a 'spade,' life's 'fitful game' is ended, and he waits the summons of Gabriel's 'trump,' which shall 'order him up.'

Mind Your P's.

A Western paper tells its readers how "to mind their P's" in the following paragraph:

"Persons who patronize papers should pay promptly, for the pecuniary prospects of the Press have a peculiar power in pushing forward public prosperity. If the printer is paid promptly, and his pocket-book kept plethoric by prompt paying patrons, he puts his pen to his paper in peace, his paragraphs are more pointed, he paints his pictures of passing events in more pleasing colors, and the perusal of his paper is a pleasure to the people."

Paste this piece of proverbial philosophy in some place where all persons can perceive it.

"I trust you will be true to me" he said in accents mellow. "Of course I will, my dear," said she, "till I get another fellow."

John Augustus Rogers, a Kentucky temperance lecturer, has committed suicide, after six weeks of uninterrupted intoxication.

Our stock of Tile is very heavy, and we sell it very low for cash; but are prepared to enter into arrangements with farmers, who may want to put in tile, and who may not have the cash, to give them six or nine months credit. It is the opinion of many close-calculating Farmers, after TWENTY-ONE YEARS experience in testing it side by side with other popular fertilizers, that an application of 100 pounds of "EXCELSIOR" is equal to 200 pounds of any other fertilizer or guano, and therefore fully 100 per cent. cheaper.

The above are the most concentrated, universal and durable Fertilizers ever offered to the Farmer—combining all the stimulating qualities of Peruvian Guano and the ever-durable fertilizing properties of Bones, in fine, dry powder prepared expressly for drilling, and it is the opinion of many close calculating farmers, after over twenty years' experience in testing the "Excelsior," manufactured by me, side by side with other popular Fertilizers, that an application of 100 pounds is equal to 200 pounds of any other Fertilizer or Guano ever offered for sale, therefore fully 50 per cent cheaper. SPRING & SUMMER FASHIONS, 1879.

JUST RECEIVED,

And I would like every one to call and see them, and leave their measure for a new suit. I guarantee all work made in my shop to fit, and made in the best manner. I could refer you to the Bishop and his laymen, to the politicians in the Conventions, but I do not, for the reason that I want my work to stand on its own merits. If I merit, I am ready to pay for goods or refund the money. References are cheap. I do not resort to them, as I would not place a friend in so awkward a position as to recommend me above any other person. That's the kind of a man I am.

Cutting done in the best manner for the public, and made plain so any one can put it together.
