GROWING WHEAT BY WHOLESALE.

The Baltimore Sun has several times spoken of the system of growing wheat by wholesale which has come up in the Northwest in connection with the rapid railroad extensions in that section, and as a necessary attendant upon the development of agriculture there. The Dalrymple farm, in Dakota, is often mentioned as a typical instance of this sort of cultivation, which, indeed, is not farming, as that business is understood elsewhere, but simply a money-making venture, conducted like a bank, a railroad or an army. The organization of the labor on this farm is regimental in discipline and perfection. Mr. Oliver Dalrymple, the manager of the farm, has actually a series of formal rules, printed and rigidly enforced, like the articles of war. These rules are fifty-eight in number, and the officers of the farm are charged with their absolute execution. The farm is divided into three divisions, each under charge of a division superintendent, and the whole under a general manager. Each division has its bookeeper, clerk, foreman, gang leaders, cooks and stable boss, all with clearly defined duties and limited provinces, to which they are closely restricted. All the transactions of the farm of any sort are kept recorded upon printed blanks, the time of the laborers is tallied to the second, and the best sort of work is got out of each by an intimate division of labor, the different gangs having each their specific class of work to look after. One gang does housework, another grubs, another plows, another sows, another harvests, and so on. The rules themselves prove that a military organization is aimed at. The closing rule says: "It should be the cherished purpose of the officers of the farm to imitate the army in the exactness of our field operations, a bank in our transactions and accounts and the best regulated store in the care and order of our personal property." The Dalrymple farm is distant 293 miles from St. Paul, to which it has access by the Northern Pacific road. The main body comprises what is known as the Cass-Cheney tract, 15,500, besides which there are 10,000 acres further on and 40,000 acres on the Red river, or 65,000 acres in all, Oliver Dalrymple being the exclusive manager of the entire body of land. The great success of this particular farm has had a material influence in the development of agriculture in the Northwest, on line of the Northern Pacific railroad and the Red river. Settlements have increased so rapidly that it is estimated that the cultivated acreage along the railroad is added to at the rate of 50 per cent. per annum, and this too, in a section which a few years ago geologists pronounced to be an arid, untillable plain. The wheat crop on these new lands is always large and safe from vermin and disease for the first few years, and its culture is easy, requiring simply the breaking up and thorough inverting of the immemorial prairie sod. This season the central farmstead has 13,000 acres in one single wheatfield, extending farther than the eye could reach in every direction, and averaging a yield of 17 bushels to the acre—221,000 bushels. The editor of the Chicago Railway Review, in the description of a recent visit to the farm, speaks of 25 or 30 reapers sweeping across a section of waving grain, one after another in a diagonal line, and of eighteen steam threshers which he saw at work at one time, each with its complement of twenty-five men and eight teams of horses. During the threshing season, lasting about six weeks, there is an average of twenty-five carloads per diem shipped from the Dalrymple railroad siding. The day is probably not remote when not only all the fertile plains of Minnesota and the Red River section but of Central and Southern Russia likewise, will be tilled in this magnificent wholesale fashion.

THE ORCHARD AND FRUIT GARDEN.

From the American Farmer, Baltimore.

As the larger part of planting will be done this month we give a list to better guide our readers in getting good fruit and such as is adapted to the soil of Maryland:

APPLES.—For the best three well-tried summer apples for home use and market we prefer Early Harvest, Early Ripe, and Red Astrachan; and to cover the season fully, to time of what are called fall apples, we would add Summer Queen for family use. For fall varieties, Maryland Maiden's Blush, Fallawater and Wine. For winter or keeping apples, Limbertwig, Winesap, Shockley, Nickajack, Yates; and among newer kinds, Cowan's Seedling and Nansemond Beauty.

PEARS.—Standard—Osband's Summer, Bartlett, Clapp's Favorite, Sheldon, Seckel, Lawrence, Beurre d'Anjou and Vicar. Dwarf—Duchesse D'Angouleme.

CHERRIES—Early Purple, Gov. Wood, Black Tartarian, May Duke, Early Richmond, Yellow Spanish, Ida and Reine Hortense.

PEACHES.—Amsden's June or Alexander for first early, (when either of these is obtained the planter need not have much anxiety as to the superiority of other quite early kinds, as there is such marked similarity existing between them in size, color and season, as well as quality, as to render more than one variety out of the lot unnecessary,) Early Rivers next; then, avoiding Hale's, we drop to Troth's Early, Mountain Rose, Foster or Crawford's Early, (they are nearly identical,) Mary's Choice or Reeve's Favorite, Old Mixon Free, Crawford's Late, Stump's Silver Medal, Piquett's Late, Beer's Smock, Heath Cling and Belyeu's Late.

In the above fourteen kinds there is of course too large a list for a market orchard, six or eight kinds being enough for that purpose. Our choice of six kinds out of the above list would be Amsden, Troth, Mary's Choice, Crawford's Late, Beer's Smock and Heath Cling.

GRAPES.—Concord, Hartford, Worden, Salem, Agawam, Martha and Goethe.

STRAWBERRIES.—Wilson, Capt. Jack, Cumberland Triumph, Kentucky and Monarch.

Currants—Red Dutch, White Grape and Black Naples. Raspberries—Queen of the market for red, and Gregg for black. Blackberries—Wilson and Kittainny. Quinces—Apple and Orange. Apricots—Early Golden. Gooseberries—Houghton and Downing.

We are aware that many good kinds are left out of our lists, but we maintain that no inferior ones are embodied therein. And after testing and observing carefully the tests of many other growers, if we were planting new orchards we should not go outside of the above. The veteran fruit-grower, however, is or should be competent to make judicious selections for himself.

AN ATTEMPT TO DEFRAUD.—Frank Brown, the telegraph operator at Woodland, says that a few days ago a colored man from the Chapel, entered his office, with a message all written out, which he wished dispatched. Mr. Brown forwarded it at once and hung the copy on a hook in the office. The darkey took a seat, and after waiting awhile said, uneasily: "I say, boss, please send dat message. I want it to go at once." The operator assured him the message had been dispatched. "Ki yi, you can't fool dis chile dat way, boss, I see it a hangin' das on dat hook. Yere got de money, and yer's tryin' to cheat de pore old man! Dat's de message on the hook!"

THERE'S a girl in Kansas only nineteen years old who can knock a squirrel out of the tallest tree with her rifle, ride a kicking mustang, help "round up" a herd of cattle, and down a jack rabbit, and yet, the local paper states in a tone of surprise and a little anxiety, "she's not married."

Lime, Coal, Wood, Oysters in Shell,
MOGEE'S SCHUYLKILL LIME,
MANUFACTURED EXPRESSLY FOR B. F. FLEMING, CHESTERTOWN, KENT CO., MD.
This lime has been used largely by the Farmers in Delaware and Maryland, and is claimed to slake more to the bushel, act quicker, and last longer than any other lime on the market. It frequently pays for itself on the first crop. We refer you to a few who have used it and will testify as to its good results upon their crops:

MALTBY HOUSE,
BALTIMORE.
Recognizing the fact that the relationship existing between the counties of Maryland and the City of Baltimore is such that residents of the Counties have occasion to visit the city frequently during the year; in consideration of these facts and the liberal patronage extended the "Maltby" in the past, I deem it but a matter of justice that some discrimination should be made in their favor. I have therefore concluded to Reduce Price of Board to $2 per Day feeling confident that the same will be fully appreciated by them, and at same time merit and secure an increased share of their patronage. Assuring them that nothing will be left undone that can add to their comfort during their stay.
