SATURDAY.....DEC. 18, 1880.

HENRY BERGH ON SENTIMENTAL PHILANTHROPY.—Mr. Henry Bergh, the well-known President of the New York Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, was present at a meeting of Miss Linda Gilbert's Library and Prisoners' Aid Society recently at the Cooper Institute. After the usual speeches and some of the usual "gush" on the subject of prison reform and the condition of the unhappy violators of the law—to whom, of course, a decent humanity is due, and no more—Mr. Bergh was summoned to the platform and asked to speak. His remarks were in the nature of a bombshell in that camp, yet so vigorous and healthy in some regards that they deserve to be repeated, though some of his more extravagant expressions need not be taken literally. He said that he was utterly opposed to the sentiment of the meeting. He believed that if a man cannot live without murdering somebody he must be got out of the way—"I say kill him"—by which it is presumed he means duly try him and hang him. Speaking of the lackadaisical sentiment shown for Chastine Cox, the negro murderer of an old lady in her house at night, Mr. Bergh said: "What have we seen during the last few months in the Tombs of this city? Atrocious murderers treated as no philanthropist, no good Christian, no honest man is ever treated: flowers, fruits, all the luxuries of life showered upon a man as black in his heart as he was black in the face." His own clients, misnamed of the lower creation, Mr. Bergh was happy to say, did not commit such atrocities as the clients of this mission were in the habit of doing. On the subject of the "improvement of criminals" Mr. Bergh spoke his mind very freely. "Let me tell you," he said, "how I would improve them. I would abolish all the penitentiaries in the land, and save the expense of running them. In their place I would have whipping posts everywhere. And to make sure that the lash was laid on feelingly, I would offer a reward for the invention of a steam machine that couldn't be bribed with offers of political place and money. No man has had a better opportunity to see what criminals are made of than I have had, and I tell you that hundreds of them commit crime to be sent to the places which you provide for their comfort. They are warm and clean there; they get good soup and nice potatoes, and everything which hard-working, honest men and women can't get in your tenement-houses."

WHERE THE UNITED STATES BONDS ARE HELD.—In regard to the old issues of government bonds no exact record seems to have been kept of their distribution, but the case is different in every respect to the four and four-and-a-half per cent. bonds of the new funding, an interesting table showing the distribution of which has just been published. There were on June 30, 1880, as shown in this table, $698,381,800 of these bonds outstanding, of which the national banks held $475,988,650, banks and trust companies held $166,927,300, foreigners $12,019,060, and the remainder—$343,446,800—was held by individuals in the United States. In Maryland $3,434,400 of these bonds are held by men and $1,749,300 by women, making $5,183,700 in all. In the District of Columbia $8,247,650 are held, of which only $1,465,500 are owned by women. These securities are not much sought as investments in the South. While New York holds them to the value of $173,789,400 and Massachusetts $38,184,400, the great State of Georgia holds only $176,900, and Florida $218,550. Only $311,400 are owned in Arkansas and $397,600 in Alabama. The Eastern States held in all 17.9 per cent., the Middle States 64.4 per cent., the Western States 14.2 per cent. and the Southern States only 3.5 per cent. In the total of individuals holdings of these bonds $72,678,850, or 21 per cent., are owned by women. Of the individual holdings Baltimore is credited with $4,504,250.

BLOWING OUT A KEROSENE LAMP.—A very common method of extinguishing a kerosene lamp is to turn down the wick until only a minute flame is visible and then blow down the chimney. This is a most dangerous practice, being very frequently the cause of explosion.—People who use kerosene lamps should make it an absolute rule never to extinguish a lighted lamp, in that way. It is just as easy to blow in the lower end of the chimney as the top, except that the person blowing is required to stoop a little to do it. But the best way to extinguish the light is this: Turn the light up to full height. Then with your mouth upon a level with the top of the chimney, and about a foot or more from it, blow horrizontally over the top and the light will go out instantly. The blowing draws the the air from the chimney, and without air combustion cannot be sustained; hence the light goes out.

Rev. Dr. L. W. BATES, one of the most distinguished ministers of the M. P. Church, wrote and published the following editorially in the Methodist Protestant:
"Any in need of his (DR. WORTMAN'S) services may employ him without hesitation. From knowledge of his practice for the past two years, I have no doubt that he will cure nine hundred and ninety-nine cases in every thousand. I speak, not only from personal experience, having been cured by him after twenty-two years of suffering, but also from a knowledge of a host of patients who applied to me as a reference. Out of some twenty-five or thirty cases that came under my observation, through this means, he has not failed in one. L. W. BATES."
