Agricultural.

The Secret of Good Butter.

Every one knows how superior is the reputation of Philadelphia butter, and many have been the attempts to account for it. Perhaps the most popular notion was that it was due to the prevalence of the "sweet vernal grass" in our pastures and hay fields—the grass which often gives so peculiar a fragrance to meadow hay. But it needed very little reasoning to demolish such a theory as this. This grass is one of the poorest for hay or pasture purposes, and scarcely exists, except on cold clay lands, in partially shady places near groves or low woods. Yet while this grass is the exception, indeed the very rare exception, in low pastures, or in the hay fed to our cows, good butter is the liberal rule in all our markets.

It has long been the opinion of our best agricultural generalizers of facts that we owe much more of the sweetness of our butter to the abundance of springs and spring-houses in our State, than to anything peculiar which grows in our pastures. Milk has a particular affinity for any odors in the atmosphere, and water has some, hence whatever impurities may get into the atmosphere of the spring-house is drawn out by running water, and the very best security is provided against their being absorbed by the cream.

We notice this now through observing an inquiry whether the light of a kerosene lamp in a dairy could possibly affect the quality of the butter; we should answer most decidedly in the affirmative. All odors of every description should be carefully avoided, if the very best brand is desired.

There is one little incident in the reputation of Philadelphia butter which must never be forgotten. The followers of Penn made up a large class of our original farming population. With these people cleanliness was especially one of the virtues. It was not a mere sentiment that it was "next to godliness," but an every day testimony in all they did. Aided in these cleanly practices by their numerous springs and spring-houses, we have little doubt we owe to them as much as to any other circumstances the eminent character which Philadelphia butter enjoys; and we believe that if other quarters would give especial attention to these little niceties, as good butter might be had in any part of the Union as here.

Nevertheless we are obliged to add that there is a great deal of poor butter sold in Philadelphia made in the Eastern counties, arising we think from those having a small dairy churning only half as often as they should.—Germantown Telegraph.

Red Hot Ice.

When, in the "Midsummer Night's Dream," the Lord Chamberlin presents the ingenious play bill of Bully Bottom's very tragical comedy to Theseus, the King exclaims. "Merry and tragical! Tedious and brief! Hot ice and wondrous strange snow! How shall we find the concord of this discord?" Such, however, is the advance of science that the poet's puzzle has been solved, and the concord of hot ice has been recently discovered by Mr. Thomas Carnelley, of Firth College, Sheffield. This diligent experimentalist has found out that any solid can be heated to a considerable temperature if the precaution be taken to keep it under a pressure less than a certain "critical pressure," which is different for different substances. Under this condition the solid heats and sublimes away into a vapor without first melting into a liquid. There is no intermediate state between its solid and its gaseous condition. Acting upon the hint which this general principle gave him, Mr. Carnelly put a lump of ice under an air-pump and reduced the ordinary atmospheric pressure on it to something less than the "critical pressure" for ice, and he was the able to heat the solid block of crystal ice so hot that it burned the fingers on being touched. Nor was this all, he actually succeeded in freezing a quantity of water in a red hot crucible!—London Globe.

More Dogs Than He Wanted.

An editor in Reading advertised the other day that he "would take a good dog in payment of one year's subscription" for his paper. The next day forty-three dogs were sent to the office. The day afterward, when the news had spread out into the country, four hundred farmers had sent two dogs apiece by express, with eight baskets full of puppies, all marked C. O. D. In the meantime, the offer found its way into neighboring States, and before the end of the week there were 8,000 dogs tied up with ropes in the editor's front and back yards! The assortment included all kinds, from the wild bloodhounds down to the peedles. A few hundred broke loose and swarmed on the stairways and in the entries, and stood outside the sanctum and howled, and had fights, and sniffed under the cracks of the door as if they were hungry for some editor. And the editor climbed out the window, up the water-spout and out on the comb of the roof and wept. There was no issue of the paper for six days, and the only way the friends of the eminent journalist could feed him was by sending lunch up to him in balloons. At last somebody bought a barrel of arsenic and three tons of beef, and poisoned the dogs; and the editor came down only to find on his desk a bill from the mayor for $8,000, being the municipal tax on dogs at one dollar per head. He is not offering the same inducements to subscribers now, and doesn't want a dog.

HARDY WINDOW PLANTS.—The Philadelphia Ledger says: "There is no question more difficult to answer than as to the best plants for window culture, for so much depends on the skill or experience of the cultivator. Some growers will make things thrive that others fail utterly with; for some plants require nice care, while others thrive even under neglect. We give a list of plants that do not mind trifling checks. The various classes of geranium, such as the common Zonales, rose, and other scented leaved, and the common Lady Washington. Some of the hardier kinds of dwarf roses, as Bengals and Bourbons, Chinese primroses, cyclamens, and the various kinds of Solanum, as the Jerusalem cherry, for instance, do very well. If there be a chance to trail from the boxes, the Kenilworth ivy, mignonette and the petunia will thrive, and if the trailing be in partial shade, the parlor ivy, moneyworth, spiderwort, or running saxifrage, will be found very useful and easily managed. If the boxes are in partial shade, palms, ferns, and some of the variegated leaved begonias will do well. If one become very successful with these easily grown plants, and become ambitious of floral success, there may be choicer plants experimented with."

A hogshead of rain water in which a quarter of a pound of ammonia and the same weight of nitre are mixed constitutes a splendid fertilising liquid for strawberries. Apply it twice each week in the evening from the blossoming to the maturity of the fruit.

Timothy meadows should not be allowed to ripen their seed before being cut.

EARS FOR THE MILLION!

Foo Choo's Balsam of Shark's Oil

Positively Restores the Hearing, and is the Only Absolute Cure for Deafness Known.

This Oil is extracted from a peculiar species of small White Shark, caught in the Yellow Sea, known as Carcharodon Rondeletii. Every Chinese fisherman knows it. Its virtues as a restorative of hearing were discovered by a Buddhist Priest about the year 1110. Its cures were so numerous and many so seemingly miraculous, that the remedy was officially proclaimed over the entire Empire. Its use became so universal that for over 800 years no Deafness has existed among the Chinese people. Sent, charges prepaid, to any address at $1 per bottle.

Only imported by HAYLOCK & CO.,
SOLE AGENTS FOR AMERICA, 7 Dey St., New York.

Its virtues are unquestionable and its curative character absolute, as the writer can personally testify, both from experience and personal observation.

Among the many readers of the Review in one part and another of the country, it is probable that numbers are afflicted with deafness, and to such it may be said: "Write at once to Haylock & Co., 7 Dey Street, New York, enclosing $1, and you will receive by return a remedy that will enable you to hear like anybody else, and whose curative effects will be permanent. You will never regret doing so."—Editor of New York Mercantile Review, Sept. 25, 1880.

HELP Yourselves by making money when a golden chance is offered, thereby always keeping poverty from your door. Those who always take advantage of the good chances for making money that are offered, generally become wealthy, while those who do not improve such chances remain in poverty. We want many men, women, boys and girls to work for us right in their own localities. The business will pay more than ten times ordinary wages. We furnish an expensive outfit and all that you need, free. No one who engages fails to make money very rapidly. You can devote your whole time to the work, or only your spare moments. Full information and all that is needed sent free. Address STINSON & Co., Portland, Maine.

Collins & Wilson will not be undersold by any house on Boots and Shoes. Give them a call.
