Summit of Little Savage Mountain, about four miles West of Frostburg, Md

This is a view from the top of the mountain looking westward toward the Thomas J. Johnson farm. The road is so rough at this point that the traveling public have worn a single track on the extreme north side of the road. About three and one-half miles from the foot of the mountain one reaches the eastern approach to the "Shades of Death" and the intersection of the "Cumberland Road" and Braddock's Road.
