A Great Work Just Completed!

The Popular Want at Last Supplied!

The "People's Cyclopedia" or universal knowledge is the grandest, latest and cheapest work of the kind ever published. It contains 58,000 topics, 5,000 illustrations, splendid colored maps and hosts of features nowhere else to be found. It has 28 editors; 400 contributers and is a library within itself of great value to any man or family. It contains the wide research of such men as Drs. McCosh, Hurst and Edison, and of eminent jurists inventors and scientists. It has received the highest commendations from universities, colleges and Schools. It has been adopted in many of the schools as a standard work of reference. Bishop Huntington says:—"Its range of information is immense and it has brought down the history of the whole world's life literally to the present year."

Bishop Williams says: "I have examined it carefully and can heartily recommend it."

Dr. J. P. Newman says: "It contains the cream of the Britannica and other great works at a small part of their cost."

S. W. Mason, L. L. D., graduate of Dartmouth College says: "Before examining the People's Cyclopedia, I could not see how so good a work could be made. I cannot now see how a better work can be made.

It is certainly one of the richest, cheapest and most popular works that has been put before the people. Information and specimen pages can be obtained of F. A. DAVIS, Atty. 925 Chestnut st, Philadelphia, or A. J. MYERS, Agt. for this part of our State. Reference is made to the Editor of this paper and Dr. I. L. THE SUN.

NEW YORK, 1883,

More people have read THE SUN during the year just now passing than ever before since it was first printed. No other newspaper published on this side of the earth has been bought and read in any year by so many men and women.

We are credibly informed that people buy, read, and like THE SUN for the following reasons, among others:

Because its news columns present in attractive form and with the greatest possible accuracy whatever has interest for humankind; the events, the deeds and misdeeds, the wisdom, the philosophy, the notable folly, the solid sense, the improving nonsense—all the news of the busiest world at present revolving in space.

Because people have learned that in its remarks concerning persons and affairs THE SUN makes a practice of telling them the exact truth to the best of its ability three hundred and sixty-five days in the year, before election as well as after, about the whales as well as about the small fish, in the face of dissent as plainly and fearlessly as when supported by general approval. THE SUN has absolutely no purposes to serve, save the information of its readers and the furtherance of the common good.

Because it is everybody's newspaper. No man is so humble that THE SUN is indifferent to his welfare and his rights. No man is so rich that it can allow injustice to be done him. No man, no association of men, is powerful enough to be exempt from the strict application of its principles of right and wrong.

Because in politics it has fought for a dozen years, without intermission and sometimes almost alone among newspapers, the fight that has resulted in the recent overwhelming popular verdict against Robesonism and for honest government. No matter what party is in power, THE SUN stands and will continue to stand like a rock for the interests of the people against the ambition of bosses, the encroachments of monopolists, and the dishonest schemes of public robbers.

All this is what we are told almost daily by our friends. One man holds that THE SUN is the best religious newspaper ever published, because its Christianity is undiluted with cant. Another holds that it is the best Republican newspaper printed, because it has already whipped half of the rascals out of that party, and is proceeding against the other half with undiminished vigor. A third believes it to be the best magazine of general literature in existence, because its readers miss nothing worthy of notice that is current in the world of thought. So every friend of THE SUN discovers one of its many sides that appeals with particular force to his individual liking.

If you already know THE SUN, you will observe that in 1883 it is a little better than ever before. If you do not already know THE SUN, you will find it to be a mirror of all human activity, a storehouse of the choicest products of common sense and imagination, a mainstay for the cause of honest government, a sentinel for genuine Jeffersonian Democracy, a scourge for wickedness of every species, and an uncommonly good investment for the coming year.

Terms to Mail Subscribers.

The several editions of THE SUN are sent by mail, post-paid, as follows:

DAILY—55 cents a month, $6.50 a year; with Sunday edition, $7.70.

SUNDAY—Eight pages, $1·20 a year.

WEEKLY—$1 a year. Eight pages of the best matter of the daily issues; an Agricultural Department of unequaled merit, market reports, and literary, scientific and domestic intelligence make THE WEEKLY SUN the newspaper for the farmer's household. To clubs of ten with $10, and extra copy free.

Notice To Tax-Payers.

The Tax Book for 1882 will be opened for the payment of taxes on Tuesday, August 15.

A discount of five per cent. will be allowed on tax bills paid in August; four per cent. on those paid in September; and three per cent. on those paid in October.

All Tax-Payers are hereby notified to arrange for paying their taxes for 1882 by the first day of January, 1883. The laws of the State, and the method of doing business of the county now practiced, absolutely require this. Immediately after January 1, 1883, delinquents will be proceeded against by advertisement and sale of their property, that all tax bills for 1882 may be closed in thirty days from January 1, 1883.

We Must All Scratch.

Said the first little chicken,
With a queer little squirm,
"I wish I could find
A fat little worm."

Said the next little chicken,
With an odd little shrug:
"I wish I could find
A fat little bug."

Said the third little chicken,
With a sharp little squeal:
"I wish I could find
Some nice yellow meal."

Said a fourth little chicken,
With a small sigh of grief:
"I wish I could find
A green little leaf."

Said the fifth little chicken,
With faint little moan:
"I wish I could find
A wee gravel stone."

"Now, see here," said the mother,
From the green garden patch:
"If you want any breakfast,
Just come here and scratch."

Farm Law.

Common law is understood to be founded upon common sense. An innkeeper who puts up a horse for one of his guests is held responsible for the safety and security of the animal while it is in his possession. If the horse is stolen, or gets kicked or injured by other horses, or steps a foot through a hole in the floor and breaks a leg, the inkeeper is ordinarily liable for the loss or damage; so he is if the stable and horse be destroyed by a fire. An innkeeper is held liable as an insurer of goods placed in his custody by a guest, or "to the act of God, or the public enemy." An innkeeper is supposed to keep his stable floor repared, his vicious horses where they will not endanger others, and to take upon himself the risk of fire A person who takes in horses to pasture does not. like an innkeeper, insure their safety. He is obliged to use reasonable care, but is not liable for the wantonness or mischief of others.

If horses or other animals taken in to be pastured, be stolen or lost by accident against which the owner of the land could not guard, he is not responsible. Yet if there was a particular negligence through which the animal was lost or became injured, or if it were proved that there was gross general negligence to which the loss could be ascribed, the grazier would be held responsible. If the pasturer leaves the bars down or the gates open, or obviously week places in the fence unrepaired, and the animals stray out and are lost or stolen, he is using less than ordinary diligence; and must make the loss good. If a dangerous pond hole, swamp or muck bed is allowed in a pasture, unprotected by a suitable fence, and an animal taken in to pasture gets stuck in the mud and is lost, the pasturer is liable for the loss. The loss would also come upon him if he took the animals in and agreed to pasture them gratuitously, provided the pasture be not as safe as the owner of the animals had a right to expect.

If a pasturer takes in a horse, knowing him to be vicious, and other horses are injured by him, the pasturer is liable for the damages. If one takes in an animal to pasture and at the end of the season the animal is in poorer condition than when taken, the owner of the pasture is understood to be answerable unless it can be shown that the animal has some constitutional defect which is the cause of his lameness, and that is not from having been kept in a poor pasture. The case will be different if the owner of the animal knew at the time the pasture was first occupied how many animals were to be kept in it, and consented to the arrangement. In this case he would have no remedy, though the food be eaten to the roots.

If a party hires a pasture and agree upon a certan price to be paid for the feed growing upon it for a special term, the lessor does not become liable for the quality of the feed that grows, unless it can be proven that there was an implied understanding that the feed should be fit for the eatage of animals. An accidental distribution of some poisonous substance over the field, as in manure, or otherwise, does not hold the owner of the pasture liable. The party hiring has such risk upon his own shoulders.

If cattle which are afflicted with a contagious disease break away from their owner and stray into adjoinning pasture and infect other cattle with the disease, the owner of the trespassing cattle is responsible for the damage arising from the spread of the disease, and also for the injury done to the grass by the trampling over it of his infected animals, and public at large are not required to protect themselves or there property by fencing or otherwise.

If an innkeeper puts up a horse belonging to a guest, the former has a lien ubon the horse for his keep, whether he puts him in his stable or turns him into his pasture; but if a man takes in horses or cattle to pasture at a certain price per week, or by contract, he cannot detain them for the payment of their keep unless there is a special agreement to that effect. By the common law no lien exists in the case of pasturement. The owner of animals pastured does not relinquish entire possession, as, if he did, he would not have the right to milk his cows while being pastured by another party, nor to take them away at any time he saw fit, but if a special contract is made that the pasturing shall be paid for before the cattle are removed, then the pasturer has a lien, and can hold the animals for payment, and the owner would be liable for an action in trespass should he attampt to remove them without first making payment.

The foregoing decisions have been compiled by the N. E. Farmer from Hanover's "Law of Horses," published by Robert Clark, Cincinnati.

The Secret Out at Last.

It has long been a source of wonder, as to why Courtney failed to meet Hanlan in a sculling contest. The general explanatory argument was, that he feared the little Canadian. This opinion, however, is exploded by the authentic announcement, that on the days fixed for the race, Courtney was unable to sit in his shell, on account of the intense itching and soreness caused by the Piles. Having recovered through the use of Swayne's Ointment, he now announces that he will row Hanlan any time this Summer.

An Awful Responsibility.

Everybody has something to say about Consumption. We all deplore its terrible ravages, but only a few of us seem to have common sense enough to take the proper means of preventing it. It is as simple as "two and two are four," that HALE'S HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR, taken as a remedy for Coughs, Colds, Difficult Breathing, Hoarseness, or any of the symptoms which pave the way for that terrible destroyer, will effect a radical and rapid cure of the ailment, and avert all danger.
