The Kent News.

SATURDAY.....NOV. 19, 1881.

BALTIMORE MARKET.—The Baltimore papers of Thursday quote as follows:

WHEAT—Longberry $1.45@1.52; Fultz $1.35@1.42, for fair to good. CORN—White, prime, 66@70; yellow 66@70. OATS—Maryland 50c.

NOT YET DEAD.

Editors Kent News:—I do not much care to read obituaries, still less to hear them pronounced. They suggest a train of thought altogether incompatible with a fun-loving disposition. I, therefore, take up the potent quill to hit on the head a certain story going the rounds in Galena to the effect that the Galena Literary Society is dead and buried. Dead and buried indeed! As well might the Immortal be called dead! Certainly it hasn't that appearance, Messrs. Editors, when we know the fact that said society is just on the eve of giving one of the most spicy entertainments (to say the least) that Galena has yet honored with her presence. Indeed, instead of being dead, it looks very much as if she was about to be married to and become a life-long helper of a vital secular interest of Galena, i. e., good pavements and well lighted streets that our village folks have in view. Yes, on the evening of Thanksgiving day the society proposes to present a programme alike agreeable to the sober-minded and to the fun-loving. Though the members will have been scarcely ten days in preparation, the exercises promise to be very rich and attractive.

A word in reference to this excellent society before closing. It has had to contend with many difficulties since its organization one year since, yet it numbers some twenty-five or more members. Some of our townsfolk of literary tastes have not, I regret to say, given it the encouragement it merits as a public educator. It might become still more of a factor than it is in instilling good morals, polite manners and literary culture if others would take hold and lend it a helping hand. It has already accomplished much for its membership. It now proposes still more to benefit the material interests of Galena, and hence it becomes the patriotic duty of Galena's every citizen on Thanksgiving evening to extend a thank-offering by being present at the aforesaid entertainment. The audience on that occasion will probably be requested to elect a committee of three to join with a like committee from the society and attend to the fair and proper expenditure of the funds for public improvements. OBSERVER.

[COMMUNICATED.]

Messrs. Editors:—Permit me through the columns of the "News" to say a few things in reference to the meeting held in the Presbyterian Church at Kennedyville Nov. 10, under the auspices of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society. They deserve a more extended notice and a higher tribute of praise than my feeble pen can bestow, however. "Verily, they shall receive their reward." Scattered as they were over miles of country, exposed to inclement weather and bad roads, they came together with one mind, one purpose—to make the occasion not only pleasant for all but profitable, by stimulating and infusing greater interest in the cause. The afternoon meeting was addressed by Miss Loring, a returned missionary from Syria. I had not the pleasure of hearing her there, but have heard her, and am safe in saying all were edified from her graphic account of the servile condition of her sex in that distant heathen land, and are, from the success already attained, greatly encouraged and stimulated to nobler efforts and greater sacrifice for the social and spiritual redemption of their sex. Is there a holier object for which to labor? May God smile upon and abundantly reward them. The social degredation of the women of Syria is revolting to all the finer conceptions of her relation to man.

Messrs. Editors, it would be rude in me not to mention some things that gave zest and interest to the above meeting. First, the presence of the M. E. choir, of your town, voluntarily tendering their services gratis; not only did they discourse grand music to the pleasure of all, but reminded us of that grander event when all God's elect, of whatever name or nationality, shall join in richer anthems to the Redeemer of men. I am not personally acquainted with any of the choir, but hope all their hearts are tuned for that Heavenly music sung by angels' voices. The compliments of the ladies of the society are hereby tendered them, and they feel under lasting obligations when they remember the dark ride over twenty miles of muddy roads.

The ladies, too, of Kennedyville and vicinity are not forgotten for the interest they manifested in bringing in their flowers for decorating the church. May they all eventually find a home where flowers never fade nor lose their freshness, in the beautiful hereafter. Last, but not least of all the favors, was the the one conferred by Mr. Jones, the genial host of the hotel, who gave them his house, table linen and dishes and his services, all that they might be able to spread before friends—a bountiful lunch—which was enjoyed by all, particularly the friends from Westminster Presbyterian Church, Georgetown. WESTMINSTER.

THE Hon. George B. Loring, in his speech at "the Lodge of Sorrow" held in memory of Garfield at Washington, Thursday evening, of last week, said that the companions of the dead President's days of toil and trial were never forgotten. "That habit of simplicity," added Mr. Loring, which made him essentially a social being led him to adhere with vital tenacity to those who stood by him in his labors. 'Remember me kindly to the old House,' said he to a friend and legislative companion who saw him the day after he was shot, and his warm heart realized all his stricken powers to send forth the kindly message from that bed of agony and death.'

SENATOR BECK will present at the next session of the Senate a resolution offered twenty-five years ago by Senator Crittenden touching the insufficiency of statuary provision for a presidential vacancy. The resolution will instruct the Committee on the Judiciary to examine into the laws and inquire whether the provisions they contain are constitutional, proper and adequate in all respects to their purpose and end, or whether any further legislation be necessary or proper, and to report thereon by bill or otherwise.

MRS. JULIA BATES, of Philadelphia, a sewing woman, went to a flag-making establishment kept by Michael Holdman on Saturday afternoon to obtain work, saw Holdman, who led her up on a garret floor, when he tried to get her drunk, and then committed an indecent assault upon her. The poor woman's cries attracted attention, and assistance was rendered. She was found to be badly bruised and beaten about the body.

MRS. GARFIELD has written to Cyrus W. Field, acknowledging the receipt of the popular contributions to the fund for herself and children. She expresses the hope for herself and children that they may be able to use the fund in a way worthy of the late President and satisfactory to those by whom it was bestowed.

A FRENCH visitor to the Yorktown celebration is reported saying that he did not wonder that Cornwallis surrendered at Yorktown, as he himself would have done almost anything to have gotten out of such an uncomfortable place as Yorktown proved itself to be.

A NEW and well-executed counterfeit is afloat in the shape of a $5 gold piece, so perfect in appearance as to defy detection, and of materials which acids will not effect. It is, however, short in weight and has not the proper ring, and is only to be detected by these defects.

A CHINESE highbidder, of San Francisco, shot a Chinese woman who accidently spilled some water on him while washing her feet. The murder was not the result of any anger, but merely on account of a Chinese superstition that the water falling on him portended disaster.

LAST week four cases of small-pox had been reported in Baltimore city. The disease had been brought into the city by a colored family, who recently came from Alleghaney city, Pa. It is not believed that the disease will spread.

COL. HENRY PAGE, of Princess Anne, will deliver an oration, on Thanksgiving day, at the dedication of a new hall, erected by the Knights of Pythias, in Baltimore.

THE view taken generally of the Irish question is that the Land act is righting the wrongs of the tenants, and is virtually accepted by the Irish people as a satisfactory relief measure.

THE recent elections in Maryland seem to have given great delight to the Republicans in this and other States. The New York Tribune now claims Maryland among the "doubtful States" for the presidential election of 1884. Virginia is now claimed at the North as a Republican State, and with a certain show of justice, for the negro vote is the controlling fact. There is no need to blink the fact that at the next election in Maryland the Republican campaign in this State will be conducted with greater skill and energy than ever before, for the prize of Republican domination in Maryland is near enough in sight to encourage the Radicals to make tremendous efforts. There will be no lack of money coming from Washington and elsewhere to help to get such a Legislature as will send a Republican successor to Senator Groome to the United States Senate. All this is, of course, on the hypothesis that the disaffected Democrats will co-operate with the Republicans. At present the sorehead leaders are solacing themselves for the pitiful failure of the late movement by cackling over the fact that they at least helped the Republicans to make gains in some of the counties. But when the Legislature assembles it will be found that no man who was elected by Democratic votes will act with the Republicans. The fact that the Republican minority is strong will harmonize all discords in the Democratic ranks. Should any man elected as a Democrat play Mahone's game and sell out to the Republicans, his political doom will be sealed. The infamy would never be forgiven; nevertheless, the fact that Maryland is now claimed by the Republicans as "a doubtful State" must put the Democracy on its guard. The regular Democracy will tender the olive branch to the disaffected elements. The reforms that the Democracy have pledged will be secured by legislation; all causes of complaint will be removed; it will then be the fault of the self-seeking office-hunters if there remain any disorganization in the ranks.—Balto. Gazette.

We have everything ready and there is no reason for delay, and there is reason for buying now. than those who buy on long credit, or sell goods on commission. WE SELL FOR THE CASH ONLY, and that enables us to sell for much less profit than those who sell on credit, for the merchant who sells on credit must have three profits—one profit for bad debts, one to pay the interest on the extra capital it takes the business, and one to support the merchant and pay store expenses.
The STAR CLOTHING HOUSE buys and sells for Cash Only!
