Agricultural.

Corn for Sheep in Winter.

A correspondent has the following to say in regard to the feeding of corn to sheep in Winter. Corn is the staple for winter feeding, and it is not essential nor even important that it be ground.—The thorough rematication which sheep give their feed in chewing their cud takes the place of grinding and saves the miller's toll. But corn should be fed sparingly and carefully in Winter, especially if the weather is warm, close, sultry and muggy. Oats are only slightly dearer per pound than corn, and for fall and early winter feeding will give much more satisfactory results. This is especially true if the feeding had been commenced while the sheep were at grass. The oily nature of corn makes it too heating except in the coldest weather, and besides it is too concentrated food unless hay is fed with it to give the stomach the proper distention. The chaff of oats, which is always fed with the grain, serves this purpose admirably. I have never used bran or mill feed for sheep, but when bran is cheaper than oats it may be properly substituted for the grain in mixing with corn. But in all cases, bran, mill feed or grain should be fed dry.

Shipping Good Fruit.

That honesty is the best policy for shippers of produce there can be no manner of doubt. A consignment of fruit to market should exhibit to the eye just what it contains. The worst apples should no more go on the top of the barrel than the best ones. A shipper's barrel soon becomes known. Poor fruit should not be sent, anyhow. Many people, no doubt, think we harp needlessly every year upon this matter of assorting fruit. The caution is not needless, and we shall continue to repeat it until we see a better state of things in the market. A peck of poor fruit will spoil a barrel. The price is not fixed by the good specimens, but the few poor ones bring the whole lot down to their level. Every one who sends fruit or other produce to market should know that it is sold by its appearance. If a person expects to be a shipper for many years there is more need than ever for keeping poor fruit at home.

Kindness to Stock.

Occasionally, we see domestic animals that are as wild as foxes, and at the approach of man manifest the greatest alarm. This is usually caused by ill treatment on the part of some one in the past. It is a positive disadvantage to have animals treated unkindly, it matters not whether they be horses, sheep, or cattle, the results are the same. They will not eat so well; they are likely to be restless; they will not grow as fast as they should, and there is a constant loss from this wholly unnecessary cause. Therefore, we say, treat your animals with the greatest kindness, and don't allow any one to strike, kick, or abuse them. Your animals will always give you a cordial welcome when they have no reason for expecting abuse. Treat them kindly, and they will reward you well for it by bringing into your pockets more profits for their keeping.

It is well for the inexperienced pickle maker to be told that there is just as great difference in green tomatoes as there is in anything else. To insure crisp and fine flavored green tomato pickles, it is necessary to start with fine grained, firm tomatoes, and the half grown ones are best. They are not so juicy, and the slices look and are really more compact. They keep their shape better, too. Another point to be noted in pickle making is that in order to have good cucumber pickles that will keep well, they must be fresh when you begin the pickling process. If kept for two or three days they become soft, and it is almost impossible to succeed with them.

Potato Water.

The water in which unpeeled potatoes have been cooked is said to be poisonous. It is recommended for using on plants, infected with insects; also, to wash brick work or keep off the fungus growth which often discolor it, in damp places especially. But the water in which peeled potatoes have been cooked is certainly healthful and excellent to use in bread sponge. The skin of the potato, when the tuber has been exposed to the sun and air in growing, sometimes becomes green, and in that state is regarded as poisonous.

Farmers' Clubs.

Not until farmers appreciate the value of farmers' clubs, farmers' institutes, horticultural and stock societies better than they now do, will they make the progress they ought. None of these meetings are attended by half the number they should be. There is but little encouragement for the friends of progress to work in behalf of the farmer when their labors are received with so much coldness.

In England no attempt is made to grow grapes in the open air. Currants are grown in tree form. Gooseberries are there in their chosen land and grow to a fabulous size, though the quality is not very good. The strawberry does well as regards bountiful crops and size of berry. But Prof. Budd tells the Iowa Homestead that the quality is far below our Charles Downing.

House plants cannot flourish without much care in Winter, and insects are especially to be looked after. Tobacco tea kills the green fly, white hellebore the mealy bug, and red pepper is "good" for almost all insects.

A Life Doubly Assured.

A resident of Bangor, Maine, writing to C. N. Crittenton, New York, for a supply of HALE'S HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR, mentions incidently that three months ago a New England life-insurance company refused to grant him a policy on the ground that he was consumptive. "But," he adds, "thanks to the healing properties of that invaluable preparation, my lungs are perfectly sound, and I yesterday passed a medical examination without an objection, and insured my life for $5,000." Of druggists generally.

PIKE'S TOOTHACHE DROPS cure in one minute.

Preventive of Malarial Diseases.

OPINION OF EMINENT DR. H. R. WALTON, OF ANNAPOLIS, MD.

"COLDEN'S LIQUID BEEF TONIC is a most excellent preparation. It is par excellence, superior to cod-liver oil or anything I have ever used in wasted or impaired constitutions, and extremely beneficial as preventive of malarial diseases." (Remember the name, COLDEN'S—take no other.) Of druggists generally.
