The Kent News.

SATURDAY..... DEC. 31, 1881.

BALTIMORE MARKET.—The Baltimore papers of Thursday quote as follows:

WHEAT—Longberry $1.37@1.40; Fultz $1.30@1.35, for fair to good. CORN—White, prime, 66; yellow 65@66. OATS—Maryland 50c.

A FINE log has been brought to a Milford lumber yard, 114 feet long and three feet through at the smaller end, with but one knot in its entire length.

PRESIDENT ARTHUR'S first public reception will be held at the White House on the 2d of January. Having no wife of his own, he will be assisted in receiving visitors by the wives of the Cabinet officers.

THE Centreville Bank has just declared a semi-annual dividend of four per cent., which added to a previous dividend, makes 7½ per cent for the year.

THE 14-year-old daughter of Francis Adams, of St. Mary's county, Md., was so severely burned one day last week by her clothes igniting from a fireplace that death ensued in a few hours thereafter.

CAROLINE COUNTY farmers complain that there are not enough vessels on the river to accommodate the ever increasing freighting business. Thousands of bushels of corn are now waiting to be shipped.

CAPT. LESLIE, of Elkton, was for a number of years, while in the naval service, on the same ship with Commander De Long, of the Artic exploration ship Jeannette. The Captain remembers him as a bright and promising middy.

ACCORDING to the Cecil Democrat, an Elkton man has succeeded in writing on a postal card, in a legible hand, 2,830 words, equal to ten sheets of ordinarily written cap papar. Such feats are excellent amusement for people who have nothing else to do.

THE Census shows that the State of Connecticut has over 11,000 more females than males, and it is noted as a curious fact that in the smallest towns in the State the rule generally is that the men exceed the women in numbers. The cities show the surplus of women.

MISS JULIA JACKSON, the daughter of "Stone wall" Jackson, attended a ball at Atlanta recently, and the papers say that on account of her distinguished lineage, she received much attention. As Miss Jackson is said to be a charming young lady, perhaps some of the attention was bestowed upon her on her own account.

A BISHOP DENOUNCES DANCING.—In a recent sermon Bishop Pierce, of the Methodist Episcopal Church of the South, denounced dancing as the silliest and most nonsensical amusement that rational beings, so-called, ever engaged in. He said that it had its origin in heathenism, being a pastime of savages; appealing to the lower instincts of humanity and being the chosen sport of the vilest and most imbruted of the human race.

REV. THOMAS GUARD, pastor of Mount Vernon Place M. E. Church, Baltimore, an eloquent and highly esteemed clergyman, has been called to their pulpit by the trustees of Spring Garden Street M. E. Church, Philadelphia. Mr. Guard has signified his willingness to accept the call, provided the Bishop and Conference approve. It is, however, definitely understood that he will remain at Mount Vernon Church until the expiration of his term in 1883.

AN OVERHAULING OF ACCOUNTS.—A NEW York letter says: "There is a pretty sharp overhauling of public and private accounts going on in a quiet way in institutions and offices where persons are employed who are frequently seen in and about Wall street, and the process will be kept up until the end of the year. This extra scrutiny has no doubt been stimulated by the latest defalcation at Newark. The reasoning is that if it was possible for the city auditor there to throw away $125,000 in 'the street' without anybody knowing anything about it, 'the street' is a good place to watch; furthermore, that it is a safe inference that when men who have the handling of other people's money are seen hanging about the brokers' offices, or scanning with anxious frequency the 'tape,' something is wrong. Perhaps a better way than watching the men would be to first watch the books and accounts, so that there would be no locking the door after the horse is stolen. In former years, when a merchant would suspect his clerk, it was no uncommon thing to hire a detective to watch the gaming house, in order to learn something of his habits, but there are few young men or old men ruined now at the oldtime gambling saloon—it is almost always at the stock exchange, where, as everybody knows, the temptations are ten to one as against the faro table and the green cloth."

SERGEANT MASON'S TRIAL.—Mr. Bigelow, attorney for Sergeant Mason, charged with attempting to shoot Guiteau, in response to a question about the trial of his client, said: "We are now ready and waiting for trial. I don't know why Gen. Hancock postponed the trial, unless it was for the purpose of holding it up until that of the Guiteau trial is concluded, for the latter is an important if not an essential witness. It may be necessary for Guiteau to testify in order to prove the corpus delecti. In military courts it is well settled that the confession of the accused shall in no case be taken to establish the defence, but after the corpus delecti has been proven, then the confession can be taken. Consequently Guiteau must testify to prove corpus delecti, as he alone, and no one else saw the shooting. We are ready, and have been for two months and are awaiting the pleasure of Gen. Hancock. My client was recently visited by his brother, of St. Louis. I had much preferred an indictment and trial by the civil authorities in the regular course of law, for two reasons: First—The plea of insanity, which is our defence, can be more easily established before a regular jury than before a court martial. Second—There is naturally strong prejudice against Mason's act as one in violation of military discipline. I think Gen. Hancock will convene the court martial to try this case after the Guiteau trial is concluded, and that my client will be acquitted on the plea of insanity."

WHAT THE REPUBLICANS HAVE GAINED.—The Philadelphia American, a pronounced and very able Republican journal, is of the opinion that the party now represented by President Arthur has not made any valuable or creditable gain by its "coalition" with the repudiators of Virginia, but, to phrase it as a Hibernian would put it, has clearly "gained a loss." It says:

Mr. Riddleberger is to succeed Mr. Johnston as Senator from Virginia. Instead of a Senator standing on the Republican platform, we are to have one who repudiates some of the most important utterances of the Republican party—a party based on an ephemeral and discreditable issue. Such are the Republican gains from the coalition. The caucus did not even pretend to consider Mr. Lewis as a candidate. No other man was named than the author of the bill for the repudiation of the State debt, whom the Senate would not accept last Spring even as its Sergeant-at-Arms. We cannot say we regret this; we merely hope that it has taught the party a lesson.

Rumors of a revolt similar to that of Mr. Mahone are heard from Georgia and Texas. We do not see any evidence that there is anything behind the rumor in either case. The mischievous influence of the successful alliance between ignorance and unscrupulousness in Virginia will not be felt at once in the other States—not, indeed, until some issue arises which tends to produce a similar alliance.

NOTES IN THE GUITEAU TRIAL.

A STRANGE WOMAN.—Marshal Henry thinks Mrs. Scoville, (wife of Guiteau's lawyer and sister of the criminal,) a "Strange Woman," and most persons will agree with him. He said:

"Why, look at her in the court-room. Do you know of any lady of your acquaintance that would go into that room and question witnesses being examined on the stand? I don't believe that you do. Then she will sit there and laugh at the sayings of Guiteau, as if she thought them smart, and it only encourages him to keep it up. I tell you she is like him, only she may not have as much egotism as he has got."

The reporter then asked the Marshal:

"What do you think of the idea of putting Guiteau in the dock?"

"I think that he should have been put there long ago. If I had my way he would be there. I would take the guard away from around him, move the ladies away from that locality and let men occupy those seats. I think he would behave himself and be more decent. I would not be surprised if the judge sent him to the dock pretty soon, for he is getting tired of his conduct."

"Do you think the jury will convict him?"

"Certainly. How can they do otherwise? Pretty plain case against him, I should think, and one that ought not require much time to deliberate over."

A CONTRIBUTION FROM KANSAS.

Mr. Corkhill received on Monday by express from Kansas a package, which was found to contain a very ingeniously devised gag "for Mr. Guiteau," which was made from a corn cob. The prosecuting attorney declares he will insist upon having Guiteau removed to the prisoner's dock if he undertakes to renew the tirade of abuse with which he has regaled the court since the opening of the trial, and especially during the past week. Mr. Scoville has been engaged for some days in the preparation of his closing argument for the defense, which will probably consume two days in its delivery.

CHRISTMAS GREETING.

Guiteau issued a lengthy address last Monday, which he termed a "Christmas Greeting." It is made up of his usual nonsense, and closes as follows:

"I put up my life on the Deity's inspiration, and have not come to grief yet, and I have no idea I shall, because I do not think I am destined to be shot or hung. But that is a matter for the Deity to pass on, and not me. Whatever the mode of my exit from this world, I have no doubt my work will go thundering down through the ages; but woe unto the men who kill me, privately or judicially!

United States Jail, Washington, D. C., Christmas, 1881."

JUDGE COX EXPECTS VINDICATION.

His attention having been called to the criticism of the press, Judge Cox said the other day:

"I am aware that my course has been severely criticised, but I feel that it would not be proper for me to say anything in reply. When the right time comes I shall be heard."

"It is charged that you have been too lenient with Guiteau; that he has been allowed to have his own way too much."

"The last is true. It is the most remarkable case I ever heard of; but it would not be right for me to seek vindication through the newspapers. I think in the end, however, that everyone will be satisfied. It has been a most difficult case to manage."

Judge Cox seemed to be fully aware of the general feeling of discontent at his treatment of the assassin, but intimated that the end of the trial must furnish his vindication.

IN THE DOCK.

On Wednesday the prisoner continued his interruptions, and the prosecuting attorneys insisted that he should be remanded to the dock. This led to an exciting discussion, in which the prisoner took a most prominent part as usual:

Mr. Scoville said he desired that the prisoner should be controlled and made to sit still, and he hoped the court would adopt some means (treating the man either as sane or insane) to compel him to do so. Nobody was more annoyed at these interruptions than himself.

The Prisoner, (excitedly.)—"That is because you are a jackass in this case two-thirds of the time. If I had a first-class lawyer I would let him alone. Your theory is too small—your brain is too limited."

The District Attorney.—"The time has come for action in the interest and for the vindication of justice itself. There has been some public criticism with regard to the disgraceful conduct of the man here on trial, because his conduct was an affront to the dignity of the court, offensive to good order and against decency."

The Prisoner, (laughingly.)—"I will give you worse than I give you now, if you put me in the dock, which you cannot do."

The Court directed the marshal to clear the dock and place the prisoner there. During the confusion and noise incident to this movement the prisoner exclaimed, in a subdued tone, "I have no objection to going to the dock if your honor says so."

The Court.—"I say so, simply in hopes of keeping you quiet."

The Prisoner.—"I move the courtroom be cleared; if I am going into the dock I want the courtroom cleared."

The Court directed the marshal to place the prisoner where he could have a full view of the witness.

The Prisoner (from the dock.)—"I am doing very well here, if your honor please. It is only a confession of the prosecution's weakness. I would not be afraid to go all over Washington alone, or New York or Boston. Thunder that broadcast. God Almighty will curse the prosecution. Take time on this Corkhill. You are having your way for a few minutes; but God grinds slow and sure. You have got no case, and you know it."

READ CAREFULLY!
And BE THOROUGHLY CONVINCED THAT THE FIRM OF BORDLEY BROS.
Have decided from this date to offer to the community at large
Bargains in Clothing
AND
Gents' Furnishing Goods,
More Wonderful perhaps than has ever been seen in this or any other market.

Now, read attentively, and you will find out some facts that will really surprise you. We do not try to humbug the people by telling them that we manufacture all our Clothing; it would be false, for we manufacture nothing, neither does any other clothier in Chestertown; we all buy alike, except this difference, viz:
BORDLEY BROS. BUY MORE CLOTHING
THAN ANY HOUSE IN TOWN,
and because they buy larger they buy Cheaper. Another fact we wish the public to thoroughly understand; it is this: We do not sell Clothing or anything else on commission, but, upon the contrary we pay the CASH for every article we buy.

The season is late, and our stock is entirely too large. Now, in order to sell these goods more rapidly, we intend for the NEXT THIRTY DAYS to offer BARGAINS such as will absolutely surprise the people of both Kent and Queen Anne's. We have nearly 500 Overcoats on hand, and in consequence of the very mild weather they have not been going off as fast as usual. In order to hasten the sale of these goods we have Marked Down every Overcoat in the house to astonishingly low figures. Indeed we are selling a great many Overcoats far below what it cost to manufacture them. Just here we will name you a few prices in order that you may know how we are selling them:

A good heavy Overcoat, men's size, for $2.00
" " " " boys' " " 1.75
A much better Overcoat, men's size " 2.50
A still better Coat, extra heavy " 3.00
A good Overcoat, fit for Sunday wear for 5.00

These Overcoats in any other House would sell for more money. Now, we do not put these figures here merely to catch the eye; they are the honest, legitimate price of our Overcoats, and you have only to walk into our Store to have it proved. We have also some VERY FINE OVERCOATS; indeed, some of the finest in the market, which we are selling extremely low.

WE MAKE A SPECIALTY OF
Youth's, Boy's & Children's Suits
And OVERCOATS.
We have on hand a Large and Varied Assortment of these Goods. We buy them direct from New York, thus insuring to our customers the Latest Designs and Lowest Prices.

ALL DURING THE MONTH OF DECEMBER we intend to display a good many Goods on the Street in front of our Siore, with Very Low Prices marked on them, so that people can see for themselves how low we are selling goods. But of course our Stock is entirely too large to show but few goods; so that in order to find out how exceedingly low we are selling Suit Goods and Overcoats you will have to come inside. Now we know that a great many people make their Children

CHRISTMAS PRESENTS,
Of a SUIT OR OVERCOAT.

Now if you call at BORDLEY BROS'. CLOTHING STORE, you will find more Suits and Overcoats for Boys and Children than any other Store on the Eastern Shore of Maryland. Look at the following prices and compare them with any other house of your acquaintance, and see if we don't sell them cheaper than any other place you can buy them:

Solid Wool Kersey Suit, for Men $6.50
A Splendid Suit, we guarantee to be Solid Wool, for Men, only 9.75
A good School Suit for boys, only 3.00
A fine solid wool suit for boys, only 5.00
A fine solid wool Overcoat for boys, only 4.75

These figures are so astonishingly low that you can hardly believe them, but we positively declare that if you will call at BORDLEY BROS.' CLOTHING HOUSE you will then become thoroughly convinced that what we here advertise is honest and correct.

WHY IS IT?
You ask, have BORDLEY BROS. so suddenly decided to sell their Clothing so remarkably cheap? We answer: because the season has been so late, and their stock is entirely too large; therefore they have decided to cut it down by cutting down prices. In short, they have determined to get rid of their ENTIRE WINTER STOCK even at COST, rather than carry it over.

We mean every word we say, and you have only to glance at the prices on the street, or come in the store to be convinced that what we here advertise is every word true.
