THE GREAT SHIP CANAL.

The Chester River Route.

A "sailor," who claims to be a life-long inland navigator, has a communication in the Centreville Record of the 23d ult., urging the Chester River route as the most desirable for the proposed ship canal. He says: "I would suggest to enter the river at Love Point and follow the main channel, which is pretty deep, as far as Chestertown, thence to Crumpton, straightening the low flat marshy crooks in the river, thence to Millington, the head of tide water, cutting across the low promontories wherever it is found necessary in order to make it as straight as practicable; from thence in a straight line to Durk creek, north of Clayton and Smyrna, about 11 or 12 miles through fast land not exceeding 30 feet above tide level. From the head of Durk creek follow the bed of the creek to its mouth on the north of Bombay Hook Island, the distance from the head of the creek out to ship channel not exceeding 9 miles. One great advantage at this point is that the ship-channel can be reached in about 500 or 700 yards from the mouth of Durk creek, which cannot be done at any of the termini named except Lewes, and perhaps the terminus of the Sassafras route at Liston's Tree. All of the other routes named it is necessary to cut a channel of from one and a-half to two miles through hard sand or oyster beds in order to reach deep water. It would be an utter impossibility to keep such a channel open, as it would have to be cut square across the tide. Besides, during the prevalence of a north east storm it would be subject to fill up to such an extent as to require ten mud machines one month to dredge it out. Familiar as I claim to be with the Delaware bay I don't think it is practicable to keep a channel open at any of the points named below Bombay Hook. I have a very poor opinion of the Breakwater as it would be sheer madness in a ship-master to attempt to run a vessel, or to approach such a place during the time of a north easterly storm as it is right dead to leeward and direct on the Atlantic coast, and from my experience it would be at a great risk of life and property for captains to attempt it in time of a southeaster or northeaster, as a vessel cannot be controlled in a narrow space on a lee shore in a heavy sea. Hence I say the Choptank route, if ever made, will be a failure, The Chester river and Durk creek route, if adopted, would have good and safe approaches at both termins. The north side of Bombay Hook is considered a good harbor for both ships and coasters, and the mouth of Chester river is open and accessable at all times to vessels. This route would be about as free from ice, except perhaps the Choptank route, as any of the routes proposed. In regard to the distance I would say the capes of the Delaware can be reached from the mouth of Chester, in about ninety miles and cutting across Eastern Neck narrows it could be made seven or eight miles shorter. But that I would not advise, as it would be an ugly place to deal with, in a hard northwester owing to the long hard beach which makes out from the main. Any prudent ship-master would much prefer to run a few miles further in a good open river. I think the route I propose would be the cheapest of any, as there would only be 11 or 12 miles, at the most, to cut above a tidewater level through a comparatively low country. The cutting through fast land is the most expensive in the first place, and to keep in repair afterwards. But where a channel could be cut on a tide level it would not be so expensive to keep in repair, as it would not be subject to wash. As a means of National defense the route I propose would have advantages over any other route, as the approaches would be available at all times for the transportation of troops &c., whereas the Sassafras route would be closed with ice from 30 to 50 days during a hard winter. The bay, north of Pool's Island, is also subject to be closed with ice when there is little or no ice in Chester river. As regards the Choptank route for National defense &c., there are often times when vessels such as are usually employed in the transportation of troops could not with any degree of prudence approach the mouth of a canal anywhere in the vicinity of the Breakwater with either sail or steam. I claim that the Chester river route is the shortest except possibly the South East creek route to Dover which is a little more direct, but would be more than double the distance to cut through fast land and then would have a very difficult approach to contend with on the Delaware shore, where it would require a channel cut from two to three miles out to the ship channel in the bay. I think a canal by the Chester river route could be constructed for a little over half the cost of any of the other routes surveyed, as the cutting through the high land would be so much shorter. It is proposed to build the canal without locks and in my opinion that will be a failure. I think the tide rises some 5 feet higher in the Delaware bay than in the Chesapeake, hence there would be a constant flow of water towards the Chesapeake terminus. I think it would be necessary to have a lock in the Delaware terminus as a protection against storm-tide, which sometimes rises very high in the Delaware bay and river.

In my opinion it will be necessary to have a summit level, that is a lock at each end of the cut through the fast land. I do not believe a canal can be constructed across the Peninsula without this lock. All my experience teaches me this. If gentlemen who differ in opinion will take a look at the chart of Delaware bay they will see at a glance what the difficulty would be in cutting and keeping a channel open across the flats and shoals to the ship channel which is pretty much on the Jersey shore except right at the Breakwater. Just above Bombay Hook the channel is very near the Delaware shore. These are in brief, the reasons why I deem the Chester river route cheapest and the most practicable. SAILOR."

An old lady writes us: "I am 65 years old and was feeble and nervous all the time, when I bought a bottle of Parker's Ginger Tonic. I have used little more than one bottle and feel as well as at 30." See other column.

We desire to call the attention of our readers to the Grand 60 day offer of the Mendelssohn Piano Company, whose advertisement appears elsewhere. This Company offers an $850 Square Grand Piano, 3 stringed, 7½ octaves, in a handsome rosewood case, for only $245, also many other styles of Pianos and Organs at great bargains for 60 days, including sheet music at one-third price. These Pianos, including Grand, Square Upright, made one of the finest displays at the Centennial Exhibition, and were unanimously recommended for the Diploma of Honor and Medal of Merit. The Mendelssohn Piano Co. are the first to do a general business with the purchaser direct, saving him more than one-half the price charged by other first-class makers.—This saving is made by doing away with the Agency System, and giving the people the Pianos at wholesale or agency prices. We would recommend any of our readers who have any idea of ever buying a piano or organ to send for their illustrated and descriptive catalogues, which will be mailed free to all. 3

The Value of Clover.

Clover is the great fertilizer—a fertilizer of magical power. Few farmers realize the power and value of clover as a fertilizer. Shade is a fertilizer of very great power, and a well-set field of clover, if undisturbed by stock, furnishes a very thorough and complete shade. It grows luxuriously and shades perfectly. The value of the stalk as shade, and the value of the semi-decomposed stalks as food for young and growing plants, is very great. One variety of vegetation, in its decay, furnishes food and nourishment for another.

It is estimated that on every well-set acre of clover, there are two and a-half tons of clover roots. The long tap root of the clover penetrates to the sub-soil five or six inches. The atmosphere is loaded with fertilizers, which are taken to the sub-soil by the clover roots, and these roots bring to the surface potash, soda and other valuable fertilizers. In clay soil there are large quantities of potash, soda and other valuable fertilizers in the sub-soil, which contribute materially to the development and perfection of vegetation. The sub-soil may be reached and its fertilizer made available to all cereal crops by clover roots, by deep plowing and by subsoil plowing.

Clover is the cheapest of fertilizers. A bushel of clover seed, costing five or six dollars, will sow eight acres. The clover, if allowed to attain its full growth of stalk and root, and to remain on the ground, is a valuable fertilizer. Whereas, to manure from the barn-yard, six cords to the acre, requires three men, four horses and two wagons—a man to load, a man to drive, and one to scatter the manure. Manure should be scattered as hauled. In heaps it heats and loses its strength.

Clover is a beautiful crop. The eye of the farmer and of all lovers of the beautiful sparkle with delight on seeing a well-set field of clover. Every one feels that clover is a great fertilizer, and is a sure indication of comfort and prosperity.

Clover is valuable as a hay crop. One and a-half or two tons of clover may be made to the acre. For fattening purposes "timothy is to clover as 41 is to 18." Clover hay is worth nearly double, so say the best authorities. After making small clover hay, from two to four bushels of clover seed may be made from the same acre in a favorable season.

OLD umbrellas and buggy tops are now being utilized by ladies for theatrical hats. The demand for them almost equals that for Confederate bonds.

THE ROCHAMBEAU PAPERS.—The correspondent of the Baltimore Sun, writing from Washington on Monday, says: In the Senate to-day a report was made from the joint committee on the library on the subject of Rochembeau papers. The Rochambeau collection consists of military papers, letters, letter books and maps which belong to the Count de Rochambeau, Marshal of France, who commanded the forces sent by France to aid the United States in the war of independence. These papers were brought over by the Marquis de Rochambeau at the request of the joint committee on the library. There are between 1,700 and 1,800 papers, all original. The letter-books consist of nine volumes, containing copies of multitudes of letters, relating principally to the conduct of the war in America. There are about 1,400 original letters and documents, covering the years from 1780 to 1794, embracing letters and military papers by French and American officers. Among them are one hundred letters from Washington to Rochambeau, all upon military affairs and topics of public interest; also a series of military and typographical maps covered by the operations of the French land and naval forces in America, thirty-eight of which are original, and delineate the entire series of campaigns in which the French forces were engaged from Rhode Island to Virginia. These are considered extremely valuable. The committee recommend an appropriation of $20,000 for the purchase of the papers.

MONEY VALUE OF NEW YORK.—The returns of the commissioners of taxes and assessments for New York show that the entire amount of real and personal property assessed in that city aggregates about two billions of dollars. The Tribune claims, however, that this sum falls short of representing the actual wealth of the metropolis, as real estate is assessed at only sixty per cent. of its value, whilst an immense amount of personal property escapes taxation altogether, for various reasons. In addition, there is the exempted church property, amounting to $55,000,000; the school, college and library property, also exempt, footing up about $59,000,000, and the property of the United States, worth about $15,000,000, which is equally beyond the reach of the State tax-gatherer. The Tribune says a growing feeling seems to exist in favor of abolishing all personal taxes, on the ground of difficulty of collecting them with fairness and equality, and of doing away with all exemptions on real estate. During last year plans were filed in New York for the erection of 2,682 new buildings, to cost nearly $44,000,000. If New Yorkers continue to build as they are building now, sparing no cost and putting up structures often the size of a block, the metropolis will soon rival any city in the world in the size, beauty and cost of its buildings.

THE VIRGINIA BARGAIN.—Representative Degendorf, of the Portsmouth (Va.) district has published a card in regard to the bestowal of federal patronage in that State. He says it looks "just a little bit unreasonable for Mr. Mahone to step into the two republican districts in the State and single out his political victims." Commenting on Mr. Degendorf's wail, the Washington Post says: "When Mr. Mahone sold Virginia he did not sell it by counties or square miles. He transferred it in a lump, mountains, cities and towns. Nothing was said about districts in the bargain. The entire State was offered up as a sacrifice to political greed, very much as a butcher would sell a fat calf, and it is as reasonable to suppose that Mr. Mahone could give up a district as that the butchers should agree that the tail of the calf be not included in the general barter."

THE number of patriots who desire to serve the State in the capacity of register of voters is a sore perplexity to Governor Hamilton. Delegations from all the counties wait on him and file in one after another until the temperature of the Governor rises to the boiling point. Still he remains polite. Yet it must be very trying to the patience, for at least two-thirds of the O. L. D.'s in the State want office, and want it very badly, and when the Governor has made all of his appointments those who fail to get office will think "reform" is a humbug, and those who succeed in getting office will become ungrateful to the Governor. The opinion of the O. L. D.'s freely expressed is, "What's the use of reform without office?"—Balto. Gazette.

A CURIOS CASE.—The Somerset (Md.) Herald says: "The marriage of Miss Ella Shores to Mr. Howard E. White, of Dames Quarter District, this county, on the 5th inst., deserves more than passing notice. On the 5th of February, 1880, Miss Shore, then thirteen years of age, was married to her step-father, Sidney Shores. The latter as well as the minister who performed the ceremony," says the Herald, "were arrested and tried for violating the laws forbidding the marriage of persons so related. Shores was sentenced to pay a fine but escaped from prison, and the minister was acquitted. The marriage was annulled by the court, and on the same day of the same month two years afterwards Ella was for the second time united in the holy bonds of matrimony."

SEATS FOR SHOP GIRLS.—Warrants were issued in New York Saturday, at the instigation of several members of the Woman Suffragist Society, for the arrest of a number of leading retail merchants of that city on the charge of violating the statute which makes it the duty of all employers of females in any mercantile or manufacturing business to provide suitable seats for the use of their employes, and to permit the use of these seats to such an extent as may be reasonable for the preservation of health. The cases will be heard March 1. The ladies conducting the crusade express a determination to have the law vigorously enforced.

ONE of our exchanges says: "Considerable of the silver coin now in circulation is not what it appears to be. Sharpers are buying up silver dollars, halves and quarters that have holes in them, procuring the dollars at seventy cents and the others at half their original value. They fill up the holes so ingeniously with prepared wire that no one but an expert can discover it, and then pass them off at full value."

We call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of J. Monroe Taylor. This house has been established nearly 46 years, and their goods are celebrated for purity and strength. We recommend a trial of their Gold Medal brands to all who desire superior cookery. 3

EARS FOR THE MILLION!
Foo Choo's Balsam of Shark's Oil
Positively restores the Hearing, and is the Only Absolute Cure for Deafness Known.
This oil is extracted from a peculiar species of small White Shark, caught in the Yellow Sea, known as Carcharodon Rondeletii. Every Chinese fisherman knows it. Its virtues as a restorative of hearing were discovered by a Buddhist Priest about the year 1410. Its cures were so numerous and many so seemingly miraculous, that the remedy was officially proclaimed over the entire Empire. Its use became so universal that for over 300 years no Deafness has existed among the Chinese people. Sent charges prepaid, to any address at $1 per bottle.
Only Imported by HAYLOCK & CO., Sole Agents for America, 7 Dey St., New York.
Its virtues are unquestionable and its curative character absolute, as the writer can personally testify, both from experience and observation.
Among the many readers of the Review in one part and another of the country, it is probable that numbers are afflicted with deafness, and to such it may be said: "Write at once to Haylock & Co., 7 Dey St., New York, enclosing $1, and you will receive by return a remedy that will enable you to hear like anybody else, and whose curative effects will be permanent. You will never regret doing so."—Editor New York Mercantile Review, Sept. 25, 1880. jl4-3m.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER.

This standard article is compounded with the greatest care. Its effects are as wonderful and satisfactory as ever. It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color. It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff; and the scalp by its use becomes white and clean. By its tonic properties it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness, and making the hair grow thick and strong. As a dressing nothing has been found so effectual, or desirable.
Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for its intended purposes."
BUCKINGHAM'S DYE,
For the Whiskers.
This elegant preparation may be relied on to change the color of the beard from gray or any other undesirable shade, to brown or black, at discretion. It is easily applied, being in one preparation, quickly and effectually produces a permanent color which will neither rub nor wash off.
