Chestertown,

SATURDAY MORNING.....MARCH 17, 1883.

"Beautiful Spring" with Variations.

—KYSER.—

'Tis Springtime, and
The March winds blow;
The rain begins to fall,
'Tis Springtime, and
The pussy cat
Begins his caterwaul,
The blossoms burst;
The flowers bloom;
And in the evening's shade,
How pleasant to
Escort your girl
Out on a promenade.

'Tis Springtime, and
All nature wakes
From out her lethar-gy;
The tuneful birds
Commingle songs
With nature's harmo-ny.
The Muses all
Awaken with
The spirit of the times;
And each one takes
His quill in hand
To manufacture rhymes.

Methinks, says I,
I'll register
Upon the mighty roll;
And with a will,
Unto the work,
I did commend my soul
My heart, my all;
And soon the work
Revision underwent;
Then to the "News"
At once I did
The following present.

The Editor
Smiled blandly when
The poem I unrolled;
And 'neath his desk
At a bull-dog,
A wicked glance he stol'd;
"Shell out," said he,
"Your poetry;
Pray do at once proceed."
With stately bow
And flourish grand,
I then commenced to read.

"Beautiful Spring,"
Oh, beautiful Spring,
Of thee will I sing;
Thy praise I will sound all the year.
Each year thou dost bring
A sweet offering
To the——

Ah, woe is me,
But, ah, the whoa
That checked my mad career,
It razed me to
The mother earth,
And stood me on my ear.
'Tis sad indeed
To retrospect
My aspirations just
A three weeks since;
And now behold
Them leveled with the dust.

My pants are slit
From junction down;
My hat's a total wreck;
My coat-tail's torn
Completely off
An inch below my neck.
My weight is less
By twenty pounds;
My scalp is pasted o'er
With paper, rags,
And mucilage;
And bruises by the score.

My appetite
Is good, but ah,
'Tis hard to satiate;
I grumble, but
I see I must
Accept it as my fate.
All this is due
That Editor
And his pugnacious pup;
I tire to eat
My grub, because
I take it standing up.

My spirit's gone;
And with it all
My hope to ever bring
Before the peo-
Ple of "Old Kent"
The finale of my "Spring."
But e'en should I
Again attempt
To pen a season's praise,
I'll let Spring go;
And make the Fall,
The subject of my lays.

THE LAW OF CONTAGIOUS DISEASES.

Judge Dixon of New Jersey in a recent charge to the Grand Jury at Paterson, N. J., calls attention to an important principle of law, which will probably be new to many of our readers, and is certainly ignored by many people. A man in that city was employed as nurse in a pest house in the vicinity to a small-pox patient. With a most culpable recklessness he carried the germs of the disease to his home, taking no adequate precautions, if indeed he took any, and communicated the small-pox to his children, one of whom died. "If a man," says Judge Dixon in his charge to the Grand Jury, "conscious that he carries about with him the germs of a contagious disease, recklessly exposes the health and the lives of others, he is a public nuisance and a criminal and may be held answerable for the results of his conduct. If death occurs through his recklessness he may be indicted for manslaughter. It is held that where a person knowingly communicates a contagious disease to another and death results the crime is that of manslaughter. A man may be indicted also for spreading the disease by conscious exposure of others thereto, by his presence in public places, such as on the streets, in halls, etc. He might be indicted as a public nuisance for endangering the public health in this way, even if no consequences had followed. The law provides some penalty for such offenses against the public safety."

HOW A MICHIGANDER KILLED A BEAR.—Last Tuesday Adam Werle, of Pierport, felled a large dead tree, and, on going to the top to trim away some underbrush, was confronted by a large bear, which leisurely waddled from an opening in the hollow top. The snow was very deep and the bear started away, but only moved a few steps when it turned around and sprang upon the tree on which Mr. Werle was standing. It raised upon its hind legs when within ten feet of Werle and presented a very ugly and defiant look. But Adam was not the man to get up and dust under such circumstances. For a few moments they eyed each other; then in a twinkling of an eye Adam pulled off his hat and threw it in the bear's face, which the bear clasped with his fore paws, and in a second more it received the blade of the axe in the side of the neck, which sent it rolling from the log. Its life was thereafter soon dispatched.—Manistee Democrat.

GEN. GRANT THANKED.—A large number of ex-soldiers and citizens of St. Paul and prominent members of the Minnesota Legislature have united in a letter to Gen. Grant expressing their high appreciation of his efforts to secure Gen. Fitz-John Porter "that simple measure of justice which a misapprehension of the facts bearing on his case has been long and largely instrumental in withholding from him." The signers declare that "whatever may have been public sentiment touching the merits of Gen. Porter's case as presented to the country from time to time by the several tribunals that have been charged with its determination, there is no denying the fact that at the present time the American people demand his restoration to the position in the light of more recent disclosures, for twenty years unjustly deprived."

IT is reported that a lady in Boston was promised a seal-skin cloak if she would not speak for a quarter of an hour. She set her lips for silence; but at the end of a few minutes she exclaimed, "Mind you, it's got to be a two-hundred-and-fifty-dollar one!"

A WESTERN POLITICIAN having made a speech wound up by saying: "Gentlemen, them's my sentiments, and let me assure you they are the sentiments of an honest man. But, gentlemen, if they don't suit you they can be altered."—Texas Siftings.

"It may be true," said Jones to his son, "that the last drop makes the cup run over, but when I poured out the last drop of my old Bourbon this morning, it didn't do it by about half a pint. I wonder who's been at that jug."—The Drummer.

The following notice was posted by a Virginia firm:

"Notes: De copartnership heretofore resisting betwixt me and Mose Skinner is hereby resolved. Dem what owe de firm will settle wid me, and dem what de firm owes will settle wid Mose."

RESERVE FOR CATARRH.—Take burnt alum and put it in water (make it quite strong with alum) and snuff it up in your head. Do so two or three times a day until relieved.

Invalids who are recovering vital stamina, declare in grateful terms their appreciation of the merits as a tonic, of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Not only does it impart strength to the weak, but it also corrects an irregular acid state of the stomach, makes the bowels act at proper intervals, gives ease to those who suffer from Rheumatic and kidney troubles, and conquers as well as prevents fever and ague.

THE CELEBRATED HYLAND

FARM WAGON

And Iron Frame Cultivator

To Our Friends and the Public:

In introducing these Wagons on the Peninsula, we feel that we are doing something to benefit the public. It seems to be the unanimous verdict of Farmers that our Wagons track better and run lighter than any others made on the Peninsula. This was the decision of the Judges of the Worton Fair, held in September, 1881. Every piece is carefully selected, and nothing but the best material is used.

Our DEARBORNS and CARTS are EXCELLED BY NONE.

Please give these implements a trial and you will find it to your interest.
