Kent News.

Chestertown,

SATURDAY MORNING.....APRIL 14, 1883.

FACTS AND FIGURES.

Maj. W. E. Stewart in the Easton Star.

The census report for 1880 shows the voting population of Maryland to be, Native White, 144,586; Foreign, 38,936; Colored, 48,584. Total entitled to register, 232,106.

The largest vote ever polled in the State was at the election in 1880, Hancock receiving 93,706, and Garfield 76,515 votes, total 172,221; so the vote cast was 59,885 less than the number entitled to register and vote; two-thirds of this number are Democrats but we will claim only half. 29,942; these added to Hancock's vote gives 123,648 as the Democratic voters of the State; and the other half to Garfield's vote and it makes 108,457 Republicans, leaving a clear Democratic majority of 15,191 if every one qualified should register and vote.

Thus it goes without saying that the State of Maryland is fairly and squarely Democratic; the Democratic party has nothing to lose by a full and fair vote, nothing to gain by a false one.

The colored vote may be set down as fairly Republican (it being an open question whether there are 200 colored Democratic voters in the State), and deducting the colored vote from the vote polled for Garfield, we shall see that only 38,944 white men voted the Republican ticket, whereas 93,706 voted for Hancock.

An examination of the registered vote and of the returns of the elections shows that in 1876 Tilden received 91,780 votes and Hayes 71,981; as before stated Hancock's vote was 93,706 and Garfield's 78,515, Democratic majority 15,191. At the gubernatorial election in 1879, Democratic 90,771, Republican 68,609; at the Comptroller's election in 1881 Keating received 75,587 and Gorsuch 61,944 votes, a falling off in the Democratic vote as compared with the election of the previous year of 18,119; but the Republicans made no gains, their vote having been over 16,000 short. The registered vote of the State in 1882 was, white, 142,765; colored, 39,521; total 182,286—but of this registered vote at the Congressional election in 1882 the Democrats received 82,314; Republicans 74,520; total, 156,834: the vote was 25,452 less than the registered vote; the Democratic vote was 11,392 less than at the Presidential election of 1880, whereas the Republican vote was but 3,995 less than at that election, thus showing that a larger portion of the Democratic registered voters neglect or refuse to vote than of the Republicans; and further that the Republicans registered in 1882 a far larger proportion of their voters than the Democrats.

Of this 74,520 Republicans voters in 1882 (granted the interest that the colored voters take in elections) it is reasonable to conclude that nearly all of the registered colored men voted, and deducting the colored registered vote from the Republican vote we find that less than 40,000 white men voted the Republican ticket in 1882, whereas the 82,314 Democratic ballots were cast by white men.

WILL NOT ABUSE THE PARDONING POWER.—Gov. Blackburn, of Kentucky, has refused positively to pardon David Ferguson, the convicted defaulting treasurer of the city of Louisville. He was appealed to by a delegation of leading citizens of Louisville, who presented him with a petition signed by 2,000 citizens, including 200 of the first ladies of the place, to exercise the pardoning power. But Gov. Blackburn, who evidently knows when and when not to exercise executive clemency, had the nerve to refuse, which he did in the following language: "If I should pardon Ferguson I could not let another man go into the penitentiary during the remainder of my term, and I would have to pardon five hundred already in there. If the thing had been done in a moment of temporary aberration there might be some excuse, but this has been carried on for years—a long-continued, systematic course of robbing. Ferguson may be the least to be blamed of all, but he has confessed himself guilty and, being guilty, he should be punished. It makes no difference how much I should desire to pardon Ferguson from personal reasons. I would not have the slightest pretext for doing so officially."

PROMINENT capitalists of Baltimore city intend building a hotel at Pen-Mar, one of the spurs of South Mountain, overlooking the valley and immediately on the line of the Western Maryland railroad. The Assistant Engineer of the railroad company is now constructing a carriage road from Pen-Mar Station, a distance of a little more than a quarter of a mile to the site of the new hotel. This site has long been selected by President Hood for the purpose.

A MAN, lately married, was asked at the club about his bride. "Is she pretty?" "No," replied he, "she is not; but she will be when her father dies!"
