Pop Corn Crop This Year Much Larger Than Last

Pop corn is not so much of a luxury this year as last.

The farm price in December, 1934 averaged within 2 cents of $5 per hundred pounds. In the early months of 1935 some eastern dealers asked 12 to 15 cents a pound for certain varieties. The December price to farmers for the 1935 crop was $2.15 per hundred pounds.

In 1934—the draught year—the crop in the three principal producing States of Iowa, Kansas, and Nebraska totaled a little over 5,000,000 pounds. The 1935 crop is estimated at well over 34,500,000 pounds by the Crop Reporting Board.

Records show that a surplus of pop corn is more common than a shortage.

Bowling Scores

The Electric Light pin smashers clinched the championship in the Centreville Duckpin League on Monday evening when they snared three points from the Never-Sweats in a high scoring rampage.

The power lads were steaming with voltage and cracked the team record by socking 2272 pins. Every man bettered the 400 mark and the good 730 game rolled by the Never-Sweats in the last string was 50 pins from being close.

Colonial Stew Is Best Union Of Oysters, Milk

The Colonial oyster stew offers the housewife the opportunity of combining two of the world's most nearly perfect foods in a savory, strengthening dish.

One of the dishes which America has contributed to the World's cooking, the Colonial stew is unexcelled in driving out the chill and damp of the cold, raw days of fall and winter.

Combined in the stew is all the wealth of food elements found in milk and oysters. The Colonial stew comes near to being a perfect food, supplying nearly all the system's needs.

The ingredients of the stew are:
¼ cup butter
1 pint oysters
1 quart milk
1½ teaspoons salt
pepper
1 teaspoon paprika.

The recipe endorsed by the Oyster Institute of North America suggests that the proper method of preparation is to melt the butter, add the oysters and cook for three minutes or until the edges of the oysters curl. Then the milk, salt, pepper and paprika should be added and stew brought nearly to a boil before serving with crackers.

66 Below Is Coldest Ever Recorded In U. S.

The all-time low record of temperatures in the United States is 66 degrees below zero—reported from Riverside Ranger Station in Yellowstone Park, February 9, 1933. The world record is 90 degrees below zero in northern Siberia, while 78 below has been experienced in Alaska. Only two States, Montana and Wyoming, have been colder than 60 below zero since the Weather Bureau started keeping track of the weather.

Several States—New Hampshire, New York, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, the Dakotas, Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, Utah, Idaho, and Washington—have records of 50 or more below.

Every State has subzero temperatures on its weather records. The cold wave of February 1899 brought weather of 2 below to northern Florida and zero to the Alabama coast. States as far south as Tennessee have had temperatures 30 below zero. The record for cold in Texas is 23 below. Temperatures of 16 to 18 below have been recorded in Louisiana and the northern portions of the east Gulf States.

Norma Shearer's Romeo for her new picture, "Romeo and Juliet," has been chosen. No, it's not Robert Taylor as the inside rumor first had it, but Leslie Howard, brilliant actor. Studio officials evidently changed their minds because of their desire for a big name player. John Barrymore will be Mercutio in the picture. Also in the cast are Edna May Oliver as Juliet's talkative nurse; Frank Lawton, Benvolio; Basil Rathbone, Tybalt; C. Aubrey Smith, Lord Capulet.

Although Betty Grable and Jackie Coogan announced their engagement, they cannot marry for at least two years. The lady's contract at RKO will not permit matrimony until she's 21.
