SATURDAY MORNING.....Nov. 10, 1883.

THE ELECTION IN KENT.

The Democratic Candidates for Senator, one County Commissioner and the Sheriff Defeated—Local Feuds the Cause—Wretched Results of Personal Bickerings.

The result of the election in Kent last Tuesday was no less a surprise than a source of deepest regret and mortification to every genuine Democrat in the county. The party must feel humiliated at the fact that men within its folds claiming to be Democrats should allow petty local difficulties—among other things a squabble over a county commissioner—to alienate them from the entire ticket and to use their efforts to compass its defeat. The loss of a Democratic State Senator—the loss of a United States Senator even—would not weigh in the balance against the gratification of petty personal spleen.

We are not disposed to harshly criticise the conduct of those who thus deported themselves; their own conscience will be a severer tribunal when in the future they have cooler moments in which to consider the results of their work.

Mr. Usilton, the candidate for State Senator, made a remarkable poll under the adverse circumstances surrounding him; in the Chestertown district he accomplished everything that could have been expected of him, and in Worton district the whole Republican majority was wiped out and a difference of five in his favor rolled up. He is especially gratified in thus finding in the district of his birth and boyhood such an evident mark of approval. In the other three districts the results were not what was expected. As above stated, local jealousies and factional feuds—with which Mr. Usilton had nothing whatever to do—were partly the cause of the disaster; while the flood of money poured into the districts for the purpose of his defeat was also an important factor.

There is reason to believe that a BARGAIN was made on the night before the election between professed Democrats and leading Republicans which resulted in turning one district over to the republicans where it was confidently expected that a majority of fifty to one hundred would be given upon the other side.

The defeat of our candidate for sheriff is also a calamity to the party, though not so far-reaching as that of the Senatorship. Mr. Rasin was fairly nominated, we believe, and was therefore entitled to the support of all. Mr. Parsons, his opponent, is one of our most industrious citizens—a gentleman of high moral character—and will no doubt endeavor conscientiously to discharge the duties of his office.

Mr. Tilghman Shafer is recognized by all who know anything about the business of the levy court, as having been a most excellent member. Indeed his defeat is specially to be deplored when regarded in the light of a verdict upon his official conduct. Mr. John B. Parrott, republican, who succeeds him, is an intelligent gentleman of Still Pond, and is well qualified for the discharge of all the duties pertaining to the office.

Capt. Wm. D. Burchinal, who outstrips Mr. Usilton in the Senatorial race, is well known in State politics, having served as deputy collector of the port of Baltimore. He is an indefatigable worker, and will no doubt be active in the councils of his party at Annapolis.

The Democrats elect all their ticket except the three above named, so that the results, though bad enough, might have been worse.

ELECTIONS IN OTHER STATES.

The election in Virginia, for one-half of the State Senate and a full House of Delegates, resulted in the triumph of the democrats over the Mahone coalition party by a popular majority of probably over 20,000. As the Senators chosen will take part in the election of a United States Senator in 1885 to succeed Mahone, whose term expires in 1887, the result has an interesting bearing in addition to that which attaches to the immediate defeat of the coalition party. In Massachusetts, Butler, the democratic candidate for Governor, was defeated by Robinson, republican. The Legislature remains republican, as was expected. Connecticut, which gave a democratic majority of 3,127 for Governor in 1882, voted Tuesday for half the Senate and a full House of Delegates. The last Legislature was republican, however, and the result of last Tuesday does not change its complexion. New York turns up republican once more. The State Senators chosen will participate in the election of a U. S. Senator to succeed Lapham in 1885. The last Legislature was democratic by forty-four majority in joint ballot. Pennsylvania elected the republican candidates for treasurer and auditor-general, New Jersey, which gave a democratic majority for Congressman last year of 2,000, elects a democratic Governor, and retains the Legislature. Mississippi went democratic as usual, and Minnesota and Nebraska republican.

GLAD IT'S OVER.

We agree with the remark of a cotemporary that very few people will be disposed to regret that the election is over. Generally speaking, the campaign has been an excellent one on both sides. The speeches were comparatively temperate, there were but one or two mass-meeting quarrels, and the rural voters were profusely fed upon barbecued cattle and scalded oysters. The great body of people to whom politics have no fascination will rejoice heartily that Tuesday's result ended the trouble, at least for many months to come.

To the persons who read the newspaper for its general information, we tender our congratulations that the columns are not to be filled with politics, to the exclusion of more solid and more interesting matter. And there are many others who will rejoice that the end has come. The families of the politicians; the wives of the much-abused candidates; the independent voters, who have been plagued beyond endurance by imploring electioneers; all these and hundreds more are sincerely glad that it is all over. It will now be in order to turn from politics and revel in anticipations of Thanksgiving turkey and cranberry sauce.

The total number of registered voters in the State this year, including Baltimore city, is 201,533; in 1882 the aggregate was 182,286. The total increase in 1883 is, therefore 19,247; the increase of white voters is 16,797 and of colored voters 2,450.

The total registered vote in Baltimore city is 70,030; in 1882 it was 64,164; total increase, 5,865; white increase, 5,452; colored increase, 414.

The counties, exclusive of the city, have gained 13,381 voters; the city has gained 5,866. The counties have gained 11,545 white voters and the city 5,452. The counties have gained 2,036 colored voters and the city 414.

INTIMIDATION.

It is a fact well known that in Kent county some of the colored people vote the Republican ticket from fear of personal violence from their fellows. Many of the more ignorant regard it a crime against the race to vote any other ticket, and they do not hesitate to threaten dire consequences as the result. One of the most outrageous scenes ever presented at a polling place was that enacted in Chestertown during the voting last Tuesday. An old colored family servant desired to vote the Democratic ticket, but feared to attempt the feat until he was offered protection by two of our prominent citizens. As soon as they were noticed a great crowd of colored men began to jeer and threaten him, and when near the window the way was completely blocked up by a regular mob excited to frenzy by the cries of some to capture him and others to desist. For a time the pulling and pushing, yelling and cursing was fearful, and a bloody row seemed inevitable. But happily the disturbance was quieted without serious consequences. Fred. Nicols, a prominent colored man, and S. S. Baker, a custom-house officer, deserve credit for the part they took in preventing greater trouble.—To the credit of Fred we may say that an instance came to our knowledge in which he actually advised a colored man to vote for a Democrat if he desired to do so! He seemed to be an exception to the rule. But why should a colored man any more than a white man be required to ask of another the privilege to vote as he pleases? He claims to be free and yet he is not allowed to [illegible] the highest rights—that of independent [illegible] Bloggers are doing last-[illegible] ling

OUR JUNIOR'S DEFEAT.

Our friends—and enemies too, for that matter—no doubt want to know how we feel over our defeat. Well, to tell the truth, we do feel pretty bad, or rather, we did feel so on election night, when we figured out the fact. When our friends at Masseys let us know that they couldn't spare us but 130 majority from the first district, we felt like kicking somebody. Cause, why didn't they wait till we let them know how much we wanted? It is well understood—among our opponents—that heretofore this has always been the plan adopted. But Sam wouldn't wait this time; he let the cat out of the bag before she was ready to jump and she broke her back over a zig-zag! We can see the figures of that dispatch now—we can take in the whole scene in that "council of three" as one recklessly opened it, the other grasped it and began to read, while your humble servant deciphered "400" and "530." And then how we did feel we'll never tell! But we made our way out into the darkness and the rain and crept over to that old upstairs office, where for the past two hours the workmen had been waiting, with press ready inked, and slips of paper ready cut, to put in type the glorious fact that "the Junior" was indeed a Senator! Into that half-lit sanctum we stepped. A crowd of anxious friends greeted us with expectant look, and we would not be so cruel as to keep them in suspense, so we immediately said in sad, sepulchral tones the two fatal words: "I'm beat!" Our senior, in startled voice replied, "The thunder you say!" and a dozen and one others wanted to know the whys and wherefores, and we told them of that cruel dispatch. We then walked around and looked carefully at the case of brevier type where we were wont to labor before we caught the senatorial bee. Now you'll want to know why we did this. We'll tell you. We wanted to say something to that stricken company—something in the way of encouragement—but we felt such an awful big lump in our throat that we couldn't properly articulate, and we performed that little ruse in order to gain time for relief from the obstruction, so as not to let on that we were a bit concerned about the matter. We succeeded—in repelling the intruder, not in fooling the crowd—and then we told them how much we appreciated their kind interest and how mad we were with those other fellows who beat us. And we went home. There all the consolation we got from any of the members of our domicile may be expressed thusly: "I'm truly glad of it!" Then we went to bed and took plenty of time to think. We thought all about how much money we could have made out of that office on a salary of $480 per annum after paying board and neglecting business at home; we thought—oh, how long we thought, of the 174 applicants we might have for the one position at our disposal, and the cursings that would fall upon our poor defenseless head from the others who had "prior claims." And we thought, too, of the fact that there are some people living and at large who would demand as our first and only duty as a legislator to make local option laws, while another class would be persistently clamoring for legalized "red-eye." The "dog question" didn't disturb us much, though it has been hinted to us that we lost some votes because we didn't like dogs! After all these various thinkings we arose in the morning measurably reconciled to our defeat, and after we had gone to the office and settled down to old duties, the itching for the "robes of office" had so thoroughly left us that we felt like kicking our warm-hearted young friend "Pryor" down stairs because he disturbed us with the information that later returns had been received and we were certainly elected by two majority! It didn't enthuse us worth a cent.

And now to close, more seriously, we do sincerely thank the many noble-hearted Democrats of Kent who stood by us in this warmly contested fight; we hope it may be in our power to do many of them a like good service. To the false friends, who deceived and badly treated us—who professed to be Democrats and were not—we have to say that if they can only see themselves as others see them their conduct will appear sufficiently reprehensible. To our republican opponents we do not propose to whine about unfairness, but accept the result with all the resignation that the circumstances attending it will admit.

RE-OPENING AT LYNCH'S.—The Meth. Protestant Church at Lynch's Station was re-opened on Sunday last, under favorable auspices. The church has been tastefully painted within and without, and a new carpet laid in the pulpit aud aisle, and the building presents a very attractive appearance and reflects great credit on the congregation. Rev. W. M. Strayer preached an excellent sermon on Rom. viii-18, in the morning, and Rev. L. E. Barrett one in the evening on St. Luke, xiii-28. The collections amounted to $100, which with the amount friends collected, frees the church of all debt. The services were appreciated by the large congregations in attendance, and the hope is entertained that the church will have a wide sphere of usefulness.

SUDDEN DEATH.—Mr. Andrew Sutton, an aged and highly respected citizen of Kennedyville, died suddenly last Tuesday. He was standing near the voting place talking with several gentlemen when he suddenly fell forward upon his face and prone upon the ground. A physician was upon the spot and, examining him, found him dead. The deceased was about 70 years of age and leaves a large circle of relatives and friends.

CHURCH ITEMS.—President J. T. Murray, of the Meth. Prot. Conference, announces the following appointments: Chesapeake, Nov. 24, 25 A. M.; Chestertown, Nov. 25 P. M.; Crumpton, Nov. 27; St. James', Dec. 2 A. M.; Kennedyville, Dec. 2 P. M.; Warwick, Dec. 8 and 9.

AT the Harford county fair a curious relic was on exhibition. It was an old and worn child's shoe, which had been in the possession of the Norris family, near Wilna, and was probably a hundred or a hundred and fifty years old. It belonged to a child five years of age who was lost. She accompanied some of the male members of her family from her home, the present residence of D. Lee Norris, to the home of another branch of the family, where the country residence of J. Alex. Shriver is now situated. They left her there while they went to attend court, then in session at Joppa. She attempted to return home alone through what was then a wilderness, and was lost. Court adjourned to assist in the search, which was found to be unavailing, and the following spring some persons were attracted by the lowing of cattle around a certain spot, and this shoe and the bones of the child were found.

KENT COUNTY.

THE UNOFFICIAL VOTE—THE RETURN JUDGES DISCOVER ERRORS AND ADJOURN TO NEXT MONDAY.

The return judges and clerks from the several districts of this county met at the Court House in Chestertown last Thursday, and the work of making the return was begun. Upon an examination of the tally sheets of the First District a number of errors in addition were discovered—one mistake gave five votes to each of the republican candidates more than they were entitled to; another made Mr. Trew, one of the republican candidates for county commissioner, receive five votes less than he was entitled to. These errors were so plain and palpable that it was decided to adjourn the meeting until next Monday so as to give time for a meeting of the judges and clerks of the first district to correct the lists named.

The correction of the first error mentioned would reduce Burchinal's majority in the county to six. In the minds of many persons the discovery of these errors has led to grave questioning as to the count of the ballots also, and a strong pressure is being made for a recount. This can only be done by those interested, in the presence of the clerk of the Circuit Court.

The following is the vote in this county as far as could be determined on Thursday by the return judges and clerks. It is not official:

There is evidently a serious error in the vote for Comptroller as reported from the 1st district.

BRILLIANT WEDDING.—The Caroline Democrat states that Christ church in Denton was the scene, Wednesday morning of last week, of a joyous event in the lives of four young persons and their numerous friends. It was the occasion of the celebration of a double wedding. The contracting parties were Mr. Alonzo P. Crew, of Baltimore, and Miss Bettie B. Jump, of Denton; and Mr. Emmett Downes and Miss Sallie E. Jump, both of Denton. The brides are sisters, being daughters of the late Josiah Jump, formerly clerk of the circuit court for Caroline county. The nuptials were witnessed by a large assemblage of friends of the brides and grooms. A popular march was rendered by Miss Minnie Ridgely at the organ as the wedding party approached the chancel-rail, where they were met by the Rev. S. D. Hall, who performed the ceremony according to the ritual of the church. Mr. George M. Russum gave the brides away. Miss Bettie wore a very stylish Havana brown silk, and Miss Sallie was becomingly attired in marine blue silk. The chancel of the church was handsomely decorated with beautiful flowers by the friends of the brides. The windows of the church were shaded and brilliant lights shone from the chandeliers. The bridal presents were elegant and numerous, there being nearly a hundred in number. The young people enter upon their new departure in life with the best wishes of everyone who knows them. Mr. Crew is a native of Kent county and resides in Baltimore, where he is engaged in the commission business. Mr. Downes will reside in Denton permanently.

A HUGE PEACH ORCHARD.—The Wilmington Every Evening says: "We hate to doubt that the greater part of the Peninsula is destined to be covered with peach orchards, or at any rate the business of peach growing will yet reach greater proportions than it has hitherto attained. The peach market, both at home and abroad, is widening year by year, and it is capable yet of almost indefinite extension. Every improvement in rail or water transportation enables the peninsula to add profitably to the acreage of peach orchards. This year's crop would have been a profitable one probably even had not a single cannery or dryer been running. The business is very far from overdone, and the peach must stay."

CARPETS.—Those of our readers who go to the city to purchase carpets are requested to call and examine the stock of Crane Bros., 67 W. Balt. st., Baltimore, opposite the Dime Museum. They claim to be showing the finest line of carpets ever offered in the city, and guarantee to sell from ten to fifteen per cent. less than any other house in the city. †

THE RICHEST FIND OF GOLD IN THE STATES.—The Amadon Dispatch says: One of the richest strikes known in the mining history of California was made three miles south of this place last Saturday. A pocket of quartz of almost unparalleled richness was found less than 100 feet from the surface, in which was contained from $75,000 to $100,000, and about two tons in quantity. Most of this might be termed chunks of gold instead of gold-bearing quartz. Some of these pieces of solid gold were about as heavy as a man could lift from the ground. The largest piece was an oval 16 by 22 inches and six or seven inches thick. This gold is almost black, and of the same character as former strikes found in the same mine. We have no doubt that this is the richest find of gold ever known in the United States at one time. During Friday a ton of this gold-freighted metal was taken out. It is not so rich as the gold taken out some time ago, but there is vastly more of it. The value of this bonanza is estimated at from $50,000 to $100,000. The ledge is five feet wide, and the whole face of it was held together, as it were, by spikes of solid gold. Altogether, 3,000 pounds have been taken from this bunch of ore, and the end is not yet. The very rich streak from which this mass of free gold has been taken ranges from an inch or so up to 20 inches in width. The previous seam varied from the thickness of a knife-blade to three inches.

MARGARET WASHINGTON is George Washington's great grandniece, and, excepting a cousin of hers who keeps up the old family place down on the east shore of Virginia, she has more of the Washington blood in her veins than any other American. She keeps a boarding-house just back of the Riggs Hotel in the capital. Although 70 years old, she is active and alert. Her features have a strong resemblance to those of Washington. She is deep in every charitable work in the city, and a manager for a home for old ladies.
