ALEXANDRIA, October 19.

HEALTH-OFFICE, October 19.

The committee of health report seven deaths, for the 24 hours ending this morning at 10 o'clock.

They acknowledge, with gratitude, the receipt of twenty dollars from Joseph Pleasants of James River, and ten dollars from a friend, by the hands of A. Smith, esq. as donations for the use of the poor.

It is with peculiar pleasure the committee of health lay the following report of the health officer before their fellow-citizens, sincerely hoping and confidently believing the favorable predictions therein contained will be fully justified by the event of a few days.

The health officer has the satisfaction to announce to the board the rapid decline of the epidemic within a few days past. From the concurring reports of the physicians, there appear to be but four cases now existing that present indications of unfavorable terminations, and these are not not of recent origin. Several cases of fever have occurred since the 15th instant, but it is believed that but few, if any of them, betray symptoms of impending malignancy; among these, some have originated in houses, charged by previous disease, with contagion. Should their result be favorable, which must be speedily ascertained, an inference will be justifiable, that our absent citizens may return with safety. In the mean time, the health-officer earnestly recommends, as an essential preparatory measure, that all our houses, including stores as well as dwellings, be daily opened for the admission of fresh air. In such as have sheltered disease at any period of the season, it will be equally necessary to explode gun-powder in their corners and other recesses, and to make a plentiful use of lime to the walls and ceiling, and of soap and water to the floors.

The number of deaths, which have taken place within the last 48 hours, will not stand in opposition to the foregoing statement, when it is remembered, what is a well known fact, that those whose situations have remained critical towards the close of this species of epidemic, have been generally swept off on the first accession of weather, unusually cold.

ELISHA C. DICK, Health-officer.
October 19, 1803.

The task which you have assigned me will be undertaken with great diffidence, but my utmost endeavors shall be exerted to discharge the duties of the chair with fidelity; in executing the rules and orders of the house, I shall rely with confidence on the liberal and candid support of the house.

The house then proceeded to the election of a clerk, when John Beckley was elected by nearly an unanimous vote.

The oath to support the constitution of the United States was then administered to the speaker, and by him to the respective members.

A message was sent to the senate, informing them that the house had made a quorom, and chosen Nathaniel Macon, speaker.

A message was received from the senate, informing the house that a quorum of the senate was assembled, had, in the absence of the vice-president, elected John Brown, president pro tempore, and were ready to proceed to business.

Mr. Dawson, after a few preliminary observations, offered to the house the following resolution:

Resolved by the senate and house of representatives of the United States of America in congress assembled, two-thirds of both houses concurring, that the following article be proposed to the legislatures of the several states, as an amendment to the constitution of the United States, which, when ratified by three-fourths of the said legislatures, shall be valid to all intents and purposes, as part of the said constitution, viz.

That in all future elections of president and vice-president, the persons shall be particularly designated, by declaring which is voted for as president, and which as vice-president.

Which being read, was taken into consideration, and on the motion of Mr. Dawson referred to the committee of the whole on the state of the Union.

The speaker laid before the house sundry papers transmitted to him from Kenhawa county, in the state of Virginia, respecting the election of Thomas Lewis.

Referred to the committee of elections.

Mr. J. Randolph, from the committee appointed to wait on the president, reported that they had waited on the president, and that he had signified to them that he would make a communication to that house, to-day, in writing.

In a short time, the message was received by Mr. Harvie, his secretary---which was read.

Ordered, That it be referred to a committee of the whole house on the state of the union.

Adjourned.

Tuesday, October 18, 1803.

The house resolved itself into a committee of the whole on the state of the union—Mr. Varnum in the chair.

The president's message having been read, resolutions were offered by Mr. J. Randolph and Mr. Dawson, on the several parts of the communication, and reported to the house, which immediately took them up, and agreed to them as follows:

Mr. Randolph's resolutions:

Resolved, that so much of the president's message as relates to the regulations proper to be observed by foreign armed vessels within the jurisdiction of the United States;

To the restraining of our citizens from entering into the service of any of the belligerent powers of Europe;

And to the exacting from all nations the observance, towards our vessels and citizens, of those principles and practices which all civilized people acknowledge; be referred to a select committee.

Referred to Messrs. Randolph, N. R. Moore, G. Griswold, Crowninshield, Blackledge, Rodney, and Rhea, of Tennessee.

Resolved, That so much of the president's message as relates to the adopting of measures for preventing the flag of the United States from being used by vessels not really American, be referred to the committee of commerce and manufactures.

Referred to the committee of commerce and manufactures.

Mr. Dawson's Resolution.

Resolved, As the opinion of this committee, that so much of the message of the president of the United States as relates to our finances, ought to be referred to the committee of ways and means.

On motion of Mr. Thomas,

Resolved, That a committee be appointed to enquire, whether any and what amendments are necessary to be made in the acts establishing a post office and post roads within the United States; and that the said committee have power to report by bill or otherwise.

Referred to Messrs. Thomas, Walton, Hanna, Wadsworth and Alexander.

On motion of Mr. Nicholson,
