SATURDAY, MARCH, 30, 1907.

THIS is the glad Easter time. May the NEWS' readers rise to a higher plane of living and thereby enjoy the blessings of life more abundantly.

Christ the Lord is risen today;
Sons of men and angels say;
Raise your joy and triumph high
Sing, ye heavens! And earth reply.

IT is certainly a matter of congratulation that Chestertown has two such men as Thomas S. Bordley and William M. Culp who are willing to serve as commissioners of the town. Both are eligible, notwithstanding the efforts of certain parties to prove the contrary.

IT is said that the Marvin family, since their child disappeared, have fed free, as many as forty people to dinner in one day. The place has been literally overrun, tramped down, and turned out by detectives, reporters, curiosity seekers, and the knots and ends of society. And it is said that nobody will plow and harrow barefoot on that old farm in the next twenty years on account of broken whiskey bottles. The temptation must now be great to a sensitive family in such a misfortune, to conceal the matter, and privately work the case up themselves.

THE will of Mr. Isaac Freeman Rasin the well-known Democratic politician, was admitted to probate in the Orphan's Court, Baltimore. It bequeaths nearly the entire estate in trust for Mr. Rasin's six children for life and then to their descendants. Letters on the estate were granted to Mr. Rasin's son and daughter, Carroll Wilson Rasin and Mrs. Gertrude Browne Gatchell, who were named as executors without bond.

Provision is first made in the will for the payment of Mr. Rasin's just debts and funeral expenses and the erection over his grave of a tombstone precisely like the one over the grave of his wife.

THE Maryland Shellfish Commission has decided that all the oysters in the waters of the Chesapeake Bay, north of an imaginary line from Bodkin Point, in Anne Arundel county, to Swan Point, in Kent county, shall be thrown open to tongers between April 15 and May 15, for the purpose of catching oysters for planting. The oyster beds in this territory are known among the oystermen of Maryland as "The Lumps," and while none of the oysters there are very large, all of them are especially adapted for planting. This action by the board has been anxiously waited for sometime by the oystermen and it is from this territory that all the new bars in the State are to be stocked.

THE GOLDEN RULE APPLIED TO LIFE.

There is no better code by which to live than the golden rule. If we will faithfully live according to this brief yet all-embracing code of personal conduct we shall best advance our common interests. "Whatsoever you would that men should do unto you do ye even so unto them" is a venerable utterance.

It has been the guide of millions in ages past and it will continue to guide the conduct of millions yet to be. It is the rule of high purpose. It is the rule of Christianity. It is the rule of men and women who are given to right thinking and noble doing. Hold fast to it amidst good and evil report.

It calls you to generous and lofty duty. It lifts you out of the mere grossness of self. It leads away from the ungenerous and the uncharitable. It paralyzes the tongue of hate and closes the lips of slander.

If you can do no kindly act to your brother act not at all. If you cannot make his burden lighter do not make them heavier. If you cannot lift him up do not cast him down.

I am a firm believer that, as a people, we are growing in grace and expanding in all the ways which make for better men and better women, for more and better homes, for a better city, a better state and a better country.—By Vice-President Charles W. Fairbanks.
