NOTICE.

The subscribers, about to retire from the city, inform those whom it may concern, that they have placed their Books and Accounts in the hands of Mr PETER STEIGER, who now is, and for several years has been, Clerk in the Office of the Federal Gazette. They therefore, for the last time, earnestly request all those still in arrears to make amends for their former want of punctuality, by giving him the least possible trouble in settling their accounts. To gentlemen at a distance they particularly address themselves, since, from the circumstance of their remote residence alone, they believe, very trifling remittances have been made. The accounts of such will once more be forwarded to them, and if not paid in a reasonable time, the most efficacious means will be taken to compel payment

[In reply to an article copied from a Philadelphia paper, "A Friend to Order" solicits the publication of an extract from a work which we have never seen, nor ever before heard of. To gratify the Friend to Order, we give place to his communication.]

Mr. Editor,

The following extract from a new work, entitled, "An Examination of the Bible, or an Impartial Investigation of Supernatural and Natural Theology," &c. (for which subscriptions are now receiving in this city,) is presented to the public as a rational and conclusive answer to the erroneous extract which appeared in the Federal Gazette of Wednesday last, from the Philadelphia Aurora, respecting "Militia Returns."

"The divine law, like God himself, is unbounded; it is given for the universal government of the world, and extends without exception to all circumstances and conditions of men. They that obey the law of God from a principle of love are the religious of mankind who do not live in fear of, nor under the law of justice, but under the law of love, which governs the obedient will and pure affections of the good, and has for its immediate object the preparation of the soul of man for heaven, and is not satisfied with any performance unless it proceeds from a due sense of duty and of love. They that do not obey the law of God from a principle of love, are the irreligious and wicked part of mankind, who live in fear of and under the law of justice, which governs the disobedient will and evil desires of the wicked, and has for its immediate object the preservation of society in the peaceable enjoyment of life and property, that the religious and those desirous of becoming so may not not be prevented by the wicked and licentious from meeting together, for the purposes of instruction, communion, and the worship of God.

"The law of justice cannot be dispensed with; and the man that will not support and enforce it as far as lies in his power, does not do his duty to God, the world, or himself. Justice guards and protects religion; without it the world would be in a state of universal confusion; and it would be as impossible for man to become religious as it would be for one tortured with excruciating bodily pain to reflect with composure on any subject. Is justice, then, so essential to the existence of virtue and religion, to be abandoned by the virtuous and religious, and left to the protection of the wicked and unjust? No it would be too unnatural, and truth and justice would revolt at the idea of such preposterous conduct, and yet it is what the advocates of non-resistance contend for. It is hoped they will consider the subject better, and so believe and act as not to incur the charge of partial and inconsistent conduct; and that they will not only support and enforce justice against corruption in their own hearts and in their own families, but in society likewise, by the civil authorities they have or ought to have, in common with their fellow-citizens, appointed for the purpose: and that should any hostile power on earth invade their country, in violation of their rights and of the sacred law of justice, they will not dastardly desert her cause, nor let their rulers fall victims to their superstitious folly."

A Friend to Order.

☞ As the public are interested in the above subject particularly at the present crisis, other editors who published the Philadelphia article are respectfully requested to give this an insertion.

LONDON, April 15.

Yesterday both houses of parliament adjourned, the lords for a fortnight, the commons till Tuesday week. This short retirement from public service will prove very acceptable to the noble lords, as well as the honorable gentlemen, from the hardy duty which has been recently required of them. The acts which have been passed during the winter months of this session will not hereafter be distinguished for legislative importance in the statute book, but the debates and discussions which have in the mean while taken place in both houses have been arduous and protracted, much beyond any recent example.

Ireland is still disturbed by some local insurrections, unconnected, however, with any questions of general politics, and arising solely out of local oppression.

Parliament is now adjourned for ten or twelve days. In looking back to the several divisions which have taken place in the house of commons on the different questions which have been discussed, it appears that about one hundred and eighty members have voted against ministers.

Stocks have been gradually rising for some days past. The influx of money from the stoppage of all commerce, and the scarcity of stock, from the large sums daily bought up by the commissioners, have been assigned as the only reasons for the amelioration.

Marshal Bernadotte had returned over the Great Belt previously to the 26th ult. and resumed his functions in Holstein and the adjoining districts of Germany. And it is certain that at that time not a French soldier had been landed on the island of Zealand.

Late letters from Calcutta are full of complaints respecting the unprotected state of the trade in the bay of Bengal.

Lord Melville returns to Scotland at the recess, reinfecta. He says that he came up to London only to attend the Scots judicature bill. The Scots people, he alledges, are too moral and conscientious for jurymen.—They would starve one another to death rather than agree to a verdict.

April 17.

There is a rumor that the Marquis Wellesley is going out again to India, with sir Arthur Wellesley as commander in chief. The latter appointment may be true.

Saturday captain Goodall arrived in town from St. Domingo, having landed from the Hopewell on Wednesday. Capt. Goodall is stated to be the bearer of some propositions from Christophe to our government.

The accounts from Holland state, that a loan has been opened at Amsterdam under the direction of the principal merchants and bankers for fitting out small armed vessels. The first subscriptions, it is said, amounted to 500.000*l.* and the books were to close in the beginning of the present month.

Our squadron in the Adriatic has experienced much kindness from the inhabitants of the Seven Islands, who have expressed their desire to co-operate with a British force in the expulsion of the French, who are not in sufficient numbers to sustain themselves against a very moderate British force. At Corfu they have only 1500 men, at Zante only 100, and 50 at Cephalonia. This latter island would be an acquisition of great value to us, as we might keep it with 500 men. The inhabitants, who have 340 vessels, are particularly attached to the English, and by no means partial to the French.

Long wool has lately been employed in making cables and ropes for the navy, and for other purposes; and the admiralty, on the representation of sir J. Banks, has, we understand, directed their being tried in the king's service.

Mr. Paull, the rival candidate of lord Cochrane and Mr. Sheridan, for the borough of Wesminster, committed suicide on Saturday.

Price of Stocks: 3 per cent. consols 66 1-2.

A convention has been signed between Denmark and France, by which 12,000 Danish troops are to act with the French army destined against Sweden, under the command of the French general; another body of Danish troops, under the command of a Danish officer, is to be employed in the Swedish expedition, and is now assembling in Zealand. This convention, it is further stated, stipulates that no French or Spanish troops are to be quartered in Holstein.

The other accounts of the internal state of India, brought by the General Stuart, are of a more agreeable nature. It is said, that the India government, apprized of the designs of France and Russia, against Hindostan, were engaged in attaching the native powers to its interest. Scindea and Holkar are represented as having made the warmest professions of friendship, and to have offered to assist the British power, in repelling any attempt to disturb the common tranquility—the Gauacur Peeishwa & Nizam have made similar declarations, probably with more sincerity; but the circumstance which more than any other manifests the general sentiment in India in favor of the English is, that the Seiks have consented to the occupation of some strong passes in their country by British troops, in the event of the menaced invasion being attempted.

Depots of stores are forming in the upper provinces, and many of the hill forts were reparing.

Several floating batteries were constructing at Bombay to be stationed on the Indus and its branches, and numerous armed vessels are to be stationed in the Western Gulphs.

The duke D'Angoleme, who married the daughter of Louis XVI. is about to sail for Gottenburg.

Twelve sail of the line are said to be ready for sea at Brest, with troops, conjectured to be bound to the River of Plate. They are watched.

Austria is said to have declared against little but spirited Sweden.

The French consul at Dantzic has been sent prisoner to Paris—accused of having accepted bribes to permit the importation of British goods.

Three more French fishing vessels have been sent into Portsmouth, making, with those already arrived there, 27. Among the reasons assigned for the capture of vessels of this description, which have been hitherto suffered to pursue their peaceful calling, it is said that the creation of a navy, being a grand object of Bonaparte, it becomes necessary to destroy his fishery, as France now possesses no other nursery for seamen.

An American captain, who arrived on Wednesday from Holland, states, that 500 American seamen had been allowed to depart from the Dutch ports; and that proper shipping had been engaged to carry them to America. By the same communication we are informed that the American ships and cargoes formerly detained, had not been released.

An expedition is collecting in the Downs—It will be inconsiderable in size, for the ultimate success of the enterprize does not depend upon the magnitude of the force.—We should deem it culpable to betray by a more intelligible designation the object of the expedition, in which the German Legion and the 51st regiment are to be employed.

Gen. Moore, and cols. Abercrombie, Cuyler, and other officers, are going to America.

The king of Prussia has ceded the province of New Silesia, to be added to the dutchy of Warsaw.

It is said that within a short time 5 sail of the line have been built and fitted for sea at Toulon.

Tripoli has made a treaty with England.

A duel has been fought between Mr. D....y, an American of fortune, and capt W. of the navy. The parties are half brothers; the dispute was a family one. Each was wounded at the second fire; D....y dangerously.

April 19.

Two French frigates, the Hortense and Hermione, from the West-Indies for France, have been but too successful in destroying our ships. Near 12 Liverpool vessels are already stated as having been taken or sunk.

The American ambassador was at the lord Mayor's feast yesterday.
