Eliza Thomas vs. Frank Thomas.

In the Circuit Court for Kent County, Maryland, in Equity. No. 1627.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree of divorce "a vinculo matrimonii" in favor of Eliza Thomas and against Frank Thomas.

The Bill of Complaint states that for more than two years last past Eliza Thomas has been and still continues to be a resident of Kent County, Maryland. That on or about November the 6th, 1902, she was married to Frank Thomas at Pomona, Maryland, by Reverend J. W. Bond; that two children have been born as a result of said marriage, namely, Charlotte Unice Thomas, who is now about three years old, and a baby who died in November, 1906, when about three months old; that though the conduct of the said Eliza Thomas towards her husband, Frank Thomas, has always been kind, affectionate and above reproach, he has not been true and faithful to her; that sometime in April, 1906, the said Frank Thomas, without provocation, deserted the said Eliza Thomas, which said abandonment was deliberate and final, has continued uninterruptedly up to the present time, and that since said abandonment he has not contributed to the support of his wife, but she has had to earn her own livelihood; that the said Frank Thomas on divers times since the said marriage, to wit, during the year 1906, has committed the crime of adultery with one Elizabeth Johnson, in Kent county, aforesaid, and with divers other persons whose names are unknown to your Oratrix; that your Oratrix has not lived nor cohabited with the said Frank Thomas since she discovered his said adulteries; that the Defendant, the said Frank Thomas, is a non-resident of the State of Maryland and now resides in Chester, Pennsylvania.

It is thereupon this 19th day of July, A. D., 1907, ordered by the Circuit Court for Kent County in Equity, that the Complainant, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in said Kent county once in each of four successive weeks before the 19th day of August, A. D. 1907, give notice to the said non-resident defendant of the object and substance of this bill warning him to appear in this Court either in person or by solicitor on or before the 6th day of September A. D., 1907, to show cause, if any he has why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

A GREAT EXHIBITION

The Jamestown Exposition, A Marvelous Beauty—Worthy a Visit From All Who Can Get There—Everything in Fine Shape.

The Jamestown Exhibition is one of the finest this country has ever held. Heretofore at Chicago and St. Louis the exhibit was so large that we felt as if we had not seen half after looking a whole week. At Jamestown the display covers less space but is equally as interesting and within three days one feels as if he has thoroughly covered the ground. We have had so many inquiries about Jamestown that we decided to publish something of our itinerary.

We left Baltimore on the Augusta, arriving at Norfolk at 7 a. m. There are two ways of reaching the Exposition from Norfolk—trolley and steamer. We chose the former and arrived at the grounds in about thirty minutes and registered at the Inside Inn under whose roof 1500 persons can be accommodated. Nearby in a grove of pines is the Kentucky building, a reproduction of Daniel Boone's fort. Farther south is a tall column of West Virginia coal. We pass the Louisiana, Mother's and Children's, West Virginia, Georgia, Ohio and Missouri Buildings, and, finally, arrive at the Maryland Building. As we were of that grand State we went thru it.

It is modeled after Homewood, on Charles Street avenue, Baltimore, which was built by the Carrolls, and is better known as the former home of the Wynans. It is one of the finest state buildings at the Exposition. We entered into a spacious hall, with smaller rooms on each side, decorated with paintings of Maryland artists and portraits of the six Lords Baltimore. The feature of the building is the replica of the old Senate chamber at Annapolis, the room wherein Gen. George Washington resigned his commission as commander of the Continental Army. Adjoining this is a well-lighted reading-room, in which pictures of educational institutions (except Washington College) in the state are hung and files of newspapers are kept. Over 5,000 visitors have been received at this building since its opening on April 27.

Virginia has an attractive edifice adjacent to the Maryland Building, and Pennsylvania's Independence Hall, with its tower, is next to Virginia. Around the corner is the Baltimore House of Welcome, a building of which the city may well be proud. Nearby is the first government building, in which we spent sometime viewing models of warships, guns and torpedoes, an ox cart from the Philippines, equine figures depicting the various kinds of packs, a large relief model of the Gettysburg battlefield, field guns, cartridge-making, wax figures displaying the army and navy uniforms, pictures of important battles, Jefferson's desk, the West Point exhibit, and other things of interest. The Smithsonian Institution and the National Museum occupy a second government building, a short distance away; across Raleigh Square is a third, the Fisheries Building, and next to that is a fourth, devoted to the Postoffice and Treasury Departments, where the Exposition mail is handled and a small mint is in operation.

Down the beach front, toward the Commercial Pier, are the New York, Massachusetts, Illinois, Michigan, Vermont, North Carolina, Florida, Delaware, New Jersey, Connecticut, Rhode Island and Oklahoma State Buildings, the Alaska Building, the Army and Navy Clubhouse, the Athletic Field and the Philippine Reservation. The Arts and Crafts Village, a group of seven old colonial buildings, in which handworkers in textiles, iron, copper, wood, silver, rushes and felt produce articles similar to those used by the early colonists, next engaged attention. From there we went into the States' Exhibits Building, wherein are Maryland's horticultural exhibit and fine displays of other states, of which Virginia has the largest representation.

Across the avenue is the Mines and Metallurgy Building, in which minerals of different states are shown. The Maryland Geological Survey has a booth, with a relief map of Baltimore and vicinity and a wall map of each county in the State. There is also a miniature mining town, with the collieries and miners' homes. The numerous varieties of brick and coal were interesting. We visited the Marine Appliances Building, and observed some beautiful motor boats and launches and objects worthy of a place in that building, and the large Machinery and Transportation Building, in which is an all-steel Pullman sleeping car, and also several steel freight cars, one of the Chesapeake and Ohio's big locomotives and two passenger cars, pieces of machinery, structural steelworkers' exhibits, several makes of automobiles and the carriages of Lafayette and Lincoln. We thought the most interesting attraction was a full-size section of one of the Hudson River tunnels, now in course of construction by the Pennsylvania Railroad.

The Administration Building faces Raleigh Square, the lagoons and the great pier. In it are located the offices of the Exposition Company and a large auditorium suitable for conventions. The Manufacturers and Liberal Arts Building is not far away, and we strolled into that next. After walking through the Foods Building, we came out at the entrance to the War Path, where entertainment may be had at every turn. The shows are unusually good, among them being "The Fall of San Francisco," "Olde Jamestown," "Lee and His Generals," "Tours of the World," "Princess Trixie," a trained wild-animal show; "Paul Revere's Ride," an Esquimo village, "The Merrimac and the Monitor," "The Battle of Manassas" and "The Battle of Gettysburg." The last three are particularly interesting. There are about 25 other shows on the War Path, and unless your purse is full of dimes and quarters it is unwise to enter. It is an easy matter to spend $5 or $10 before you are half way around.

Leaving the War Path, we started toward the trolley terminus. In a moment we came to the "101 Ranch," said to be the largest Wild West show in the world. Before going out of the gate we paused to look at the beautiful Lee Parade Ground, on the edge of which is a reviewing stand, and where troops of many nations parade.

FOREST RESOURCES OF KENT.

In pursuance of the general policy of the State to develop and increase as far as possible, the natural resources of the counties, Mr. F. W. Besley, the State Forester, of Baltimore, with an assistan Mr. Ridgway, is studying our forest resources and preparing a map showing the location and kind of growth on each wooded tract in the county. The first map and report for the county will be published and should be of interest not only to all users of timber in the county but also to all owners of woodland, since it will deal with local forest problems and suggest plans of management suitable for the different kinds of forest growth.

The study so far has shown that only a very small per cent. of the land of this county is in woodlands and this emphasizes the importance of careful management to make the supply go as far as possible.

The soil is well adapted for growing timber as attested by some fine stands in different parts of the county. Block locust and chestnut, two of our most valuable species of trees, grow splendidly here and with the increasing demand for fence posts, poles, rail road ties, &c., there is no reason why it would not be a profitable investment to encourage the growth of some of the locust and chestnut thickets almost started by judicious thinning or even to plant them as one farmer has already done in the county with promise of success.

Mr. Besley will be glad to assist owners of woodlands throughout the State in devising plans of management that will insure the greater permanent returns from these lands.

Will our subscribers kindly note the date on the label of their paper. That date is intended to show the time up to which the subscription is paid. If the label shows your subsciption to be due, will you please remit us for the same without further notice?
