DIMPFEL WILL UPHELD

Court Holds That Marriage of W. O. Dimpfel Was Legal.

On July 22nd there was argued before the Circuit Court for Talbot county, sitting in Equity, by Col. John C. Mullikin and George Stewart Brown for the plaintiffs, and William A. Cooper, Jr., and Harrison W. Vickers for the defendants, on a bill filed which, among other things, attacks the validity of a second marriage contracted under the following circumstances: A. and B. were married in Maryland in 1882. In February, 1890, A procured a divorce a vinculo matrimonii from B in New York. B was summoned and appeared by counsel in the divorce proceedings. The divorce decree recited that the marriage "is dissolved accordingly and the parties are and each of them is freed from the obligation thereof, and that it shall be lawful for the said A, the plaintiff, to marry again in the same manner as if the said B, the defendant, was actually dead, but it shall not be lawful for the said B, the defendant, to marry any other person until the said A, the plaintiff, shall be actually dead." A is still living, and B, who is now deceased, contracted a second marriage with C in Washington, District of Columbia, on September 5th, 1890, B and C being both residents of Maryland. The statute of the District of Columbia, in force in 1890, (Act June 19, 1860, Sec. 3,) provided: "That a divorce a vinculo matrimonii from the bond of marriage may be granted in any of the following cases to wit: First: When such marriage was contracted whilst either of the parties had a former wife or husband living, unless the former marriage shall have been lawfully dissolved and no restraint shall have been imposed on the party contracting such second marriage."

The court, which has had the case under advisement for two weeks, unanimously decided that notwithstanding the New York law which divorced O'Sullivan Dimpfel and put restrictions upon him in getting married in New York it did not prevent a legal marriage.

The court declared the marriage of William O'Sullivan Dimpfel and Maria P. Dimpfel, who is now Mrs. Edward Woodall, was lawful and that any child born to them was, under the laws of Maryland, a lawful child, and legally entitled to inherit her father's portion of the estate. They, therefore, dismissed the plaintiff's bill of complaint and ordered them to pay the costs.

The case created a great deal of interest and much speculation as to its outcome, as it involved the distribution of an estate of about $150,000 and the legality of the marriage of Wm. O'Sullivan Dimpfel, one of the heirs named in the will of Frederick P. Dimpfel, Sr., to Maria P. Dimpfel, now Maria P. Woodall. It also attacked the legality of his Wm. O'Sullivan Dimpfel's daughter, Maria P. Dimpfel, by the union and the right to her father's share of the estate.

Sunfield is Making Votes.

A bush meeting or woods campmeeting begun at Masten's Corner a week ago has been crowned with success, and of the forty conversions which have resulted from the work of Evangelistic E. C. Sunfield nearly all were men and more than half were drinkers who were open advocates of the present Delaware license system.

At once, upon their conversion, these men of the world became Christian workers and are earnestly co-operating in the revival effort and have coincided with Evangelistic Sunfield's plan to carry the revival over to Manship's Church, in another part of the celebrated "Shoestring District," next week.

From the united efforts of the week came very many remarkable changes. One entire family, consisting of father, mother, two sons and a daughter, went forward at one time and knelt at the altar and professed conversion.

Several of Dover's public men, who had made early speculations on the result of the license fight in the "Shoestring" and had all given it to the "wets" by twenty majority, now say that they will have to revise their figures and wait until Evangelistic Sunfield gets through his unexpected campaign, as he has transformed the majority of twenty into shouting temperance men.

SHOT AT BULL, HIT DAUGHTERS.

Mr. Fowble, of Whitehall, Also Wounded Lady Visitor.

A bull belonging to Mr. Thomas Elliott escaped from the pasture and broke into the cornfield of Mr. Henry C. Fowble, at Whitehall, Thursday morning.

The farms of the two men adjoin. Mr. Fowble, being unable to get the animal from the field, went to the house and got his shotgun with the intention of shooting at the bull to frighten him from his field.

Mr. Fowble took aim at the bull, and not being a first-class shot, missed his mark and the charge took effect in his two daughters, Misses Minnie and Bertha Fowble, and Mrs. Craver, a visitor.

The family of Mr. Fowble and several visitors were seated on the front porch of the home. The others escaped injury.

Mr. Fowble gave up the bull chase, hurried to Whitehall and telephoned for Dr. E. W. Heyde, of Parkton, who went to the Fowble home and removed the shot from the wounded ladies. None were seriously injured.

Appraisers were summoned yesterday morning to value the damage done the corn by the bull.
