FEMININE CHAT AND CHATTER

GOSSIP AND ADVICE FOR THE WORLD OF WOMEN.

Flower Punches the Latest Novelty for the Hostess Who Is Careful About Carrying Out Her Color Scheme — A Nasturtium Punch, Violet and Rose Punch May Be Made From Crushed Petals.

When a color scheme is to be carefully carried out the novelty-loving hostess can use flower punches or ices.

An appetizing nasturtium punch is made by chopping fine the 50 freshly gathered nasturtium blossoms rubbed to a paste with four tablespoonfuls of sugar. Boil for five minutes a pound of sugar and a quart of water; take from the fire and add the juice of one lemon and two oranges, the grated rinds of the orange and the nasturtium paste. Let the mixture get cold, freeze and pack away for at least two hours. Serve in sherbert glasses garnished with a nasturtium blossom and the glass set in a bed of leaves and tendrils.

Fresh violets may be used in the same way, adding the juice of two lemons and omitting the oranges. Just before freezing stir in a pint of purple grape juice, and when frozen stir in a meringue made from the well-beaten white of two eggs and a tablespoonful of powdered sugar. Stand three hours to ripen and garnish with candied violets. If you cannot get the fresh violets, color with grape juice only.

For a rose ice, wash carefully a pint of freshly culled pink or red rose petals and pound them to a paste with two ounces of granulated sugar. Add a quart of water and pound of sugar; boil 10 minutes and cool without straining; then the juice of half a dozen oranges is added. Freeze and serve in sherbert glasses, the stems twined with rose leaves and the ice garnished with candied rose petals and a mat made of petals and foliage on the plate.

For a green punch chop tender nasturtium leaves and tendrils—enough to weigh half a pound—and rub to a paste with two ounces of granulated sugar. Boil for five minutes a pound of sugar and quart of water, add juice of two lemons and two oranges and the leaf paste. When cold freeze and stand three hours. This may be served with a green liquor poured around it. A few drops of vegetable coloring may be added, if needed.

A mint ice may be made in the same way, using 16 large stalks of mint. Serve with creme de menthe poured over the ice.

In making any flower punch be sure the petals are fresh, have been carefully washed and are not culled from bushes that have been sprinkled with disinfectants.

THE ATTIC ROOM.

There is no feasible reason why the attic should not be made into an attractive room, especially when the house lacks space. The fact that it is situated at the top of the house need not detract from its possibilities. Removed from the other rooms, it can be a most desirable retreat for reading or study purposes. The number of stairs to be climbed prevents the frequent intrusions so annoying to the student.

The attic, with a little ingenuity and taste, can be converted into a charming studio, library or bed sitting-room.

Do not consider the task hopeless if the beams are exposed. They can be stained and varnished a dark brown, adding much to the attractiveness of the room.

A number of attics have sloping roofs. Aim to give as much height to the room as possible. The low, unsightly corners can be utilized for book shelves. If the walls are ceiled or plastered, paper them with plain paper of a neutral color.

Cold-water paint is inexpensive and can be had in many tones. The plastered walls may be successfully tinted by this means.

Stain the floor and cover with small rugs.

A good, strong matting of a light brown shade looks and wears well. It also produces greater warmth. Many persons prefer the floor entirely covered. If expense is not to be considered, a large rug of rich, warm coloring produces an artistic effect.

The window draperies should be considered next. Madras, casement cloth and scrim of a tan or green color are appropriate for this purpose.

When all the woodwork is stained brown, the furniture should match. If the room is to be a library, the walls beneath the sloping roof should be filled with book shelves.

Smooth pine planks cut in the right lengths and stained will accommodate many books.

Ordinary store boxes fastened securely together will make a charming window seat. Provide a long cushion covered with cretonne or casement cloth, to match the window draperies, for this window seat.

Hang a frill of the same material around the three sides to hide the boxes. Bank the window seat with cushions.

If a bed is placed in the room, select a small one. Have a cover made of the same material used for the window seat to slip over the bed when not in use.

A screen will effectively conceal the dressing table if the sitting-room must serve as a bed chamber.

The attic should not be a place used only for storing purposes. One portion may be reserved for trunks and discarded articles, but this large, airy, sunny room should not go to waste.

The attic makes the most delightful playroom imaginable. Have you ever spent a rainy day up under the eaves and heard the rain pattering on the roof? If not, you have missed a great pleasure.

The next time it rains take an interesting book and climb to the attic. Settle yourself comfortably and experience the peaceful, care-free, sheltered feeling which comes to those who love the top of the house.

THE CULT OF THE BOX.

The cult of the box is growing apace, perhaps because the modern woman has more fal-lals to keep in order than her grandmother had, or perhaps merely because box adornment is an interesting art. Incidentally it calls for a fair amount of ingenuity, and it entails no little time and trouble in searching out suitable trimmings, most of which belong to bygone periods and can only be found in old curiosity shops or among heirloom bundles of quaint embroideries, old laces, and rich old-world brocades.

Either plain or quaintly shaped boxes, by the aid of rich fabrics and scissors and paste, are skilfully converted into things of beauty—and often of value, for they are covered not only with rare brocades, but with everything old and interesting.

For instance, a miniature chest of drawers covered with pieces of heirloom silks that belonged to bridal gowns of a long list of ancestors, with imitation knobs and handles made from buttons and gold lace cut from old uniforms, is to be seen decorating the room of one woman, who not only uses her latest handiwork as an ornament, but uses it as a receptacle for all the letters written to her by important people.

EMBROIDERY TOUCHES.

Taffeta frocks are seen with heavy embroidery worked upon the stuff, giving a touch of novelty to a material which was becoming too ordinary. One of changeable taffeta mauve and blue, with embroideries, accentuated those colors. Worn by a brunette, this was very effective. Whether these odd yet graceful robes of taffeta the long or short, in some way the droop—the long, pointed back effect—is seen, even if only in an old-fashioned basque, short in front and long behind. The manikins accentuate these effects by the way they carry themselves—a curiously graceful affectation of awkwardness.

ABOUT CURTAINS.

Those who dwell in large towns and cities find it necessary to constantly hang clean curtains at the windows. The house then appears fresh and bright within and from without. If curtains are sent to the laundry they are a heavy drain on the housekeeping resources. When made of madras, swiss, muslin or dimity, they can easily be laundered at home.

Begin by shaking them well out of doors. In this manner all the superfluous dust can be removed.

Prepare a tubful of warm water in which a half cake of white soap has been dissolved. Souse the curtains up and down in this, and when the water becomes black change to a second tub of suds. If the curtains are very much soiled they will require a third tub of suds. Allow them to remain in this for an hour.

Rinse in two tubfuls of clear water, the last of which should have a small amount of cooked starch and a few dops of bluing added.

Hang in the sun to bleach and dry thoroughly before removing them from the line.

Sprinkle well and fold, that the dampness may be evenly absorbed. To successfully iron long curtains place a blanket over the kitchen table and fasten a clean sheet over this. Pull each curtain into shape before ironing. Nothing looks worse than curtains which do not hand evenly.

Use hot irons and rub them over parafin wax to prevent the starch from sticking.

First iron the plain portion of the curtain and then the frills.

If the curtains are plain iron the deep hem first, so that it will hang straight.

RICE CORN BREAD.

Take one heaping cupful of yellow Indian meal, one scant cupful of wheat flour, one cupful and a quarter of milk, one egg, a level tablespoonful of sugar, one teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of soda, two teaspoonfuls of cream of tartar, a piece of butter the size of an egg and one cupful of previously cooked rice—either hot or cold. The butter must be melted and added while still hot at the last moment, and the mixture should be baked on a granite pie plate. Serve very hot, with butter, cream or maple syrup. The addition of the rice makes the bread very light.

THE SUEDE COLLAR SET.

In every color, but particularly in gray and in vivid scarlet, collar, cuff and belt sets are being produced. The material used is suede and the collar and cuffs are of the old-world round-head pattern. The collar turns down and the cuffs turn up, while the belt is traight and excessively neat. To be worn with the country tweed or serge suit the new sets are admirably adapted.

WEATHER SIGNS.

There are a great many signs which are well known to the so-called weather prophets, and if you live in the country you may amuse yourself in verifying some of them. Here are a few of the old reliables for signs of rain:

Ants become very lively and seem to be in a hurry about something.

Roosters are always flapping their wings and hens seem restless.

Dogs and cats do not look as lively as usual, and prefer to lie around the house, keeping near the fire.

Flies come indoors and seem to be unusually sticky and troublesome.

The cattle like to get into corners and usually stand with their tails toward the wind.

The Welsbach mantles on the gas jets are not as bright as usual.

Swallows and other birds that feed on the wing fly very low.

FOR HAIR BRUSHES.

When the bristles of hair brushes become soft they may be greatly improved by dipping them in a strong solution of alum and hot water.

LOST BEAUTY OF WOMEN

Can Be Remedied, in Many Instances, According to Statement of Mrs. Lucile McElroy.

Laurel, Miss:—In a letter from this place, Mrs. Lucile McElroy says: "I was sick for three years, with backache, headache, pains in my stomach and back, low down. At times, I could not do a thing, I was so weak.

After I was married, I thought I would try Cardui, the woman's tonic, and after using two or three bottles, I couldn't tell one day from another—felt good all the time.

I not only still use Cardui, but advise every lady I think needs it, to give it a trial, and several whom I have persuaded, say they have obtained great relief.

Another good thing I have noticed about Cardui, is that it fills out hollows under the eyes, which are sunken as if from a bad spell of sickness. It fleshens up a woman's eyes, and makes them look bright and plump. Many a woman would be pretty if it were not for her sunken-in eyes.

I believe that Cardui, the woman's tonic, is the only treatment for women."

Do you suffer from womanly trouble? If so, give Cardui, the woman's tonic, a trial.

Judging from the experience of a million other women who have been benefited by this remedy, it should surely do you good.
