"BUM," THE TRAVELER

A Mascot Upon The Steamer Love Point On Her Daily Trips.

The Steamer Love Point, which plies between Baltimore and Love Point, carries on her daily trips as a part of her complement a dog which fills the honored station of mascot. He is known to the many persons who travel that route as "Bum, the traveler," which cognomen was derived from his propensity to travel wherever his fancy leads him. "Bum," in appearance, is a very unpretentious looking cur, but he seems gifted with more intelligence than the average canine. A short while ago he boarded the train in Baltimore for a trip to Philadelphia. After a stay of about ten days he boarded the Southbound train, changed cars at Greenwood and stopped off at Denton for a few days. He then went by train to his home aboard the steamer. During the summer "Bum," took several trips to Lewes, Rehoboth and other stations along the line, and invaribly turned up at his old haunts at the expiration of his visits. He seems to make friends wherever he goes, and is always recognized and welcomed at any point he may stop. He is as carefully looked after as a person, and mistreatment of "Bum" will attract ill feeling from the steamers' crew.

When traveling upon the Love Point, should you chance to notice a grayish, Wooley cur of very ordinary appearance, treat him kindly, for that is "Bum the traveler."

"Bum's" last visit to Denton was about two weeks ago on which occasion he spent the night. The morning following, one of the crew of the east-bound freight train, recognizing him at the station, called him aboard. Bum, however evidenced his distaste for freight train by leaving the car when the freight had been discharged. On the arrival of the next passenger train he went to Greenwood and returning on the same train went back to Baltimore. During his stay here he was the welcome guest of Station Agent Hitchens.

BANKERS AND ADVERTISING.

Year by year the theory of advertising gains new adherents from those who previously had been skeptical of the advantages derived. Financial institutions, in particular, have been ultraconservative in publicly pressing their claims for the patronage of the people through the advertising columns, one of their arguments being that it is undignified to do so. Gradually, however, bankers are coming to realize that their business relations with the public may be made more profitable and more satisfactory to all concerned by means of official chats through advertisements. Greater attention than ever is being paid this subject, as evidenced by the fact that the American Bankers' Association, in convention at Atlantic City, set aside on its program a place for the consideration of the topic. The secretary of one of New York's largest trust companies in a paper boldly championed the cause of banking publicity. "In these days," he said, "advertising of some kind is as much of a necessity to your business enterprise as your electric light and your typewriter; you can do without them, but how much better can you do with them."

In his discussion of methods he paid a high compliment to the newspaper as a profitable medium. The best results are to be obtained, he has found by experience, by a judicious combination of personal representation and newspaper advertising. He insisted that advertising is not a game of chance, but is productive of sure and profitable results. It is certain that certain bankers will leave the convention with entirely new views on the dignity of advertising, in the light of the experience of this eminent authority. Those banks which made a practice of advertising are gradually fixing themselves in the minds of the people and a growing clientele is being built up. The public goes to the store that advertises and their confidence goes out to the bank which is able to impress them with its resources, its reliability and its willingness to extend courteous accommodation. Every day proves that it pays for a man to advertise, whether he be banker, broker or merchant.

HUBBARD'S Fertilizers

Stand the Test

TRADE MARK

Hear what some of our farmers have to says of Hubbard's Fertilizers as compared with other goods:

Mr. Jodn H. Jackson, of Kent Island, says in fall of 1905 he used 7 tons of our Victor alongside of 7 tons of another brand, and ours gave him 1100 bushels of wheat, and the other 7 tons gave him 600 bushels, and in fall 1906 he used 7 tons again of our goods alongside of 7 tons of same as other goods, and made another trial to test matters a second time, and this year he threshed from our 7 tons 1400 bushels of wheat and from the other 7 tons 800 bushels, and says he had better paid the other man for his goods and not used it and then bought ours for he certainly believes Victor to be an excellent goods for wheat and grass.

Mr. G. Thos. Dewberry says he has made a test of our wheat goods now for two years, and this years ours alongside of two other brands he threshed 6 to 8 bushels more wheat per acre from the others and that he expects to use it again this fall.
