Enter the proper record of communicants immediately after each administration.

In the first copying of names into this record, carefully use the same register number that each one had in "Roll of Members." Enter names of new members in order of reception. Do not attempt to keep this roll in alphabetical order. It wastes too much space. Experience has taught the best method of marking: P for communing; E for excused; A for out-of-town; S for sickness; all other absentees leave blank. In the first copying of names into this record, arrange them alphabetically. As new members are received, record them in chronological order. Do not attempt to reserve space for alphabetical arrangement for the new members received, which would waste too much space for a permanent record.
