SATURDAY, JANUARY 25, 1908.

IT is reported that "Uncle Bill" Jackson is "definitely and finally out of politics." This is sad news to Eastern Shore Republicans, as they are nowhere without the Jackson barrel.

Lewin W. Wickes, Esq., and wife attended the splendid reception given in Annapolis Thursday by Gov. Crothers to Senators Whyte and Smith and members of the Legislature. It was a brilliant affair.

THE Baltimore Sun suggests that the salary of the Governor of Maryland should be increased. It should have been done long ago. There can be no excuse for not doing it now as it is ridiculously small. The people will heartily endorse an increase to a decent sum for such a responsible position.

THE report this week that Congressman Jackson is out of politics created more excitement among the Chestertown Republicans than anything that has happened of late. It rivals the Post-office contest!

AN unfortunate incident occurred at Annapolis this week when Gen. Seth, president of the State Senate, made a personal attack upon ex-Governor Warfield. Gov. Crothers sizes up the situation well by commenting that he had troubles enough of his own without meddling with others. To say the least it was an unwise attack.

NEEDED LEGISLATION.

The fishermen of Kent county are unanimous in the desire for a stringent law to prevent the shipment of small fish. There was a law to this effect on the books several years ago but by some means this act was repealed. It is a vital necessity to the future of the fishing interests and no one should be more interested in its enforcement than the watermen. In shipping small fish they are killing the goose that lays the golden eggs. We are confident Kent's Legislaturemen will look after this matter.

DON'T OVERLOOK KENT.

We hope Governor Crothers will not overlook our county in making up his list of State appointees. There are no truer or more self-sacrificing Democrats in Maryland than are to be found here and none who worked harder for the nomination and election of our noble Executive. Among those who are applicants from this county for such positions the following are all we know of:

For the Land Office—Ex-Senator William T. Hepbron and John C. Jones.
Commissioner of Imigration—Dr. W. Frank Hines.
For Fish Commissioner—Capt. Geo. E. Noland.
For Superintendent of Public Buildings at Annapolis—William R. Pippin.
State Veterinarian for reappointment—Dr. G. Allen Jarman.

It is thought the Governor will take up the subject of State appointments next week

THE CIVIL APPOINTMENTS.

It is understood that the Governor will begin next week the consideration of what is termed the "civil lists" for various counties. W[illegible] quite a number of new [illegible] gested for appointment [illegible] the most important loc[illegible] the Election Supervisors [illegible] law the Governor will sel[illegible] from names submitted [illegible] Central Committee of the [illegible] parties—four from the Dem[illegible] four from the Republican. [illegible] stand that these committees [illegible] to recommend the following [illegible]

Democratic—Charles O. Cacy, Go[illegible] Jesse H. Cullton, Harry Casey.
Republican—Charles S. Smith, Mensmin, J. P. DeCorse, Wm. J. V[illegible]

The police justices have no[illegible] agreed upon, nor the civil m[illegible]

The Governor will be asked [illegible] choose one of two applicants f[illegible] Galena, namely Messrs. Henry Parr and Rodney Vansant.

In the Fifth district Messrs. Samuel Burgess, of Edesville, and John J. Scoone, of Rock Hall, have very strong backing.

Justice Townsend will likely be appointed in Millington, ex-Judge T. J. Shallcross at Betterton and Samuel Wallis in Worton.

We have heard of no candidates for Notary except Mr. Chas. Estes in Chestertown, who will likely be reappointed.

For County School Commissioner Dr. Hines, whose term expires, will decline a reappointment, and Mr. John P. Ahern, of Millington, will be strongly urged.

THE Sun will accept our thanks for the "Encyclopedia Brittanica" of Maryland, a handy little work, which it very aptly calls the Blue Book of Maryland. This is the thirty-third number of the almanac, which now contains 256 pages, about 50 of them being given to advertising. This is a standard book of reference, and on all Maryland matters can be regarded as a most reliable authority. Of especial value are its election figures, giving in detail the votes cast at the mayoralty and state elections of 1907. These are from the official returns and are accurate and trustworthy. There are many other valuable features of interest to all. A good index makes it easy to turn to any subject wanted. The almanac is sent out free with the compliments of A. S. Abell Company, publishers of the Sun.

CHARLES T. WESTCOTT, Esq., was reelected a director in the International Trust Co., Tuesday. A semi-annual dividend of 3½ per cent was declared evidencing the great prosperity of the Company.

Gov. CROTHERS astonished Annapolis by appearing on the streets shortly after six o'clock, taking his morning constitutional. When he was approached by one of the citizens and exchanged the morning greetings he said he was simply walking around in order to become thoroughly acquainted with the town, which he desires to do.

THE importance of good roads in increasing the value of farm lands is well illustrated in the following dispatch from Cambridge last Saturqay:

W. Lake Robinson has bought of Mr. Samuel P. Thomas the latter's two farms on the Shell road, about three miles from Cambridge, for $9,000. Mr. Thomas paid $2,000 for the property thirteen years ago. The improvement in the road leading past the property, together with Mr. Thomas' excellent management and the rise in the price of Dorchester farm lands, brought about the result.

AN IMPORTANT MATTER.

No one can view the ruins of the late fire in the upper part of Chestertown last Monday night, without wondering at the miraculous escape of other buildings and the great piles of lumber in the factory yard in such close proximity. The prime cause of our escape from a much more extensive conflagration was the favorable wind. The tinder box structures so near to the fire would certainly have burned had the wind been from another quarter. The usual criticisms may be expected with reference to responsibilities for anything that went wrong on this occasion. We were present at this fire soon after it broke out and we have no hesitation in saying that the citizens did grand work considering the fact that there was no fire engine and no fire company. But if the whole Baltimore fire service had been present it could not have saved the burned buildings after the fire was discovered. The town commissioners would have a new engine if they had the means to purchase one, but they have not been thus able, so that they cannot be blamed for not having modern fire apparatus present. One thing no one can truthfully say—that the water company was in any respect derelict. Water was ready at hand and plentiful at every fire plug and wherever the plug was in order and the hose serviceable the work was effective and prompt. The water company had a good supply of water on hand at the reservior and the engineer at the pump-house had his boilers and engine in fine order with a water pressure of thirty-five pounds.

Chestertown with all her splendid advantages, with a model water system and an enterprising board of town commissioners, is yet badly off for fighting fire. Two essentials are lacking: fire apparatus and a directing head. Without these all the means at hand are used at great disadvantage.

A fire engine should be purchased as soon as possible, and to help remedy the other difficulty we advise that the Legislature at its present session be asked to empower the town commissioners to appoint a fire marshal and an assistant with authority to act in all cases of fire. We feel sure that persons could be found willing to serve the town in this way, and that the results would be decidely advantageous.

ORGANIZE!

A meeting is called for next Monday evening to organize a Volunteer Fire Company in Chestertown. Can our citizens understand the importance of this? [illegible] the experience of the past in [illegible] the destructive fires in [illegible] to vigorous action? [illegible] What would have [illegible] had the wind been in a [illegible] last Monday night at [illegible] fire? With no direct[illegible] engine, insufficient hose [illegible] too far apart, and all the [illegible] fear by of very inflamible ma[illegible] hard to tell where the fire [illegible] have stayed. It would surely [illegible] swept "Lynchburg" from the face [illegible] earth! Not only so, but it might [illegible] leaped over College avenue and [illegible] gone to the wharf! Such a fire is too [illegible] terrible to contemplate much less experience. Let us guard against it as far as possible by taking common sense methods against it.

FIREMEN ARRIVE TOO LATE.

Seven Buildings Burned at Brooklyn Before Engine Came.

There is much talk at this time of organizing a fire company in Chestertown. The following item on the subject from the Sun of Tuesday will be interesting:

The Brooklyn (Anne Arundel county) Volunteer Fire Department, which was organized six months ago and given an engine with which to help extinguish blazes in the vicinity, failed to be of service to that village early Sunday morning when a fire destroyed seven houses belonging to Mr. John Boelhaus, of Brooklyn, causing a loss of about $4,000.

It was the first fire of any consequence since the company was organized, and the property had been destroyed before the department arrived.

The reason given by some of the residents was that there is no fire bell in Brooklyn, and there was no way of notifying the firemen except by messenger boys, who went from door to door telling people of the fire. The dwellings, which were all frame, caught about 1 A. M., and by the time enough firemen had been aroused to pull the engine the whole row had burned to the ground.

Dr. C. H. Brooke, of Brooklyn, said that the fire department was all right, but there should be some way of notifying the men when they were needed. He said a fire bell was needed and thought a movement would be started to have one placed in the engine house.
