MARYLAND FARMS IN DEMAND.

Dr. W. Frank Hines, superintendent of the State Bureau of Immigration, submitted a report at the monthly meeting held Thursday, in which he stated that the farmers are no longer affected by the financial stringency, and that the prospective buyers are coming into Maryland. Quite a number have already settled in Southern Maryland and the Eastern Shore counties. Other members of the commission reported that the drough had not wrought serious damage to the crops, the wheat crop being about the average and there being a fine prospect of a good harvest in corn. A large number of applications for domestic help were referred to the secretary, who stated that there had been a decided decrease in immigration.

TO FIGHT FOR $90,000,000

Springers East and West Claim Vast Estate in Wilmington.

A special from Ukiah, California, says: B. N. Springer, formerly a candidate for county surveyor and a resident of Ukiah, California, now in business in Potter Valley, claims, to be heir to an estate in Wilmington, Del., alleged to be worth $90,000,000. He will at once take legal steps to establish his descent.

Christopher Springer died in Wilmington in the year 1789, leaving land that now comprises a large part of that city and extensive farming lands in Pennsylvania to the Swedish Church there under lease for 99 years. The lease expired in 1888, a fact that has only recently become known, and now every Springer from the Atlantic to the Pacific is trying to connect himself with the vast estate.

All the heirs are now taking steps to organize a corporation to provide money to take up the case.

LIGHTBOURNE CASE.

Rev. S. M. Morgan Explains His Position.

At the first quarterly conference of Wesley M. E. Church held Thursday evening last in the lecture room of the church, at which nearly all the officiary were present, including presiding elder, Rev. S. M. Morgan, the statement was made by the presiding elder that from the best information secured by him from those who had contemplated pressing charges against Rev. A. W. Lightbourne, pastor of Wesley M. E. Church, that such charges would not be pressed at the present time and while no time was set as to when they would be presented it was generally understood that they would at least be deferred until the next meeting of the annual conference in March next.

Rev. Morgan, in explaining his position in the matter stated that he had used all power in his means to have the charges against Dr. Lightbourne withdrawn and that it was through his influence, as well as the influence of some of the prominent officials of Wesley Church, with the ministers in charge of the affair, that the charges were not pressed at this time.

A general discussion of the affair was had in which members of the Dover quarterly conference engaged in, questions being asked the elder on certain phases of the case and as to the part he had in any of the transactions.

According to the statement and understanding from Rev. Morgan, Dr. Lightbourne will not be disturbed with charges during the intermin of conferene—much to the gratification of the members of Wesley M. E. Church and officiary all of whom have determined to stand by Dr. Lightbourne at all odds.

YOUNG JACKSON'S AIM IN POLITICS.

TO ATTEND TO HIS DUTIES IN HIS NEW PLACE.

Maryland Member of the Republican National Committee Says He Has Ambition to Hold a Political Office—He Likes His Party, but Not Politics—How He Came to Be Chosen at Chicago.

Mr. William P. Jackson, the new Maryland member of the Republican National Committee, was rocking himself leisurely in a wicker chair and trying to keep cool on the wide porch of his beautiful home, in Salisbury, one evening last week when visited by a correspondent of The American. His is an interesting face, hardly oval, but it is symmetrical. His eyes are bright and quick. His hair is brown, without a streak of gray. No woman would say he is a handsome man. An intelligent woman would say that he is an interesting man.

Those who know him best agree that he is more than the son of his father, Congressman William H. Jackson. This young Jackson was said to dislike politics, and yet so enamored is he of his party that he has laid aside dislikes and is willing at a personal sacrifice to come to the front.

A man who owns a fast yacht, who likes to have his hair made pompadour by the speed of an automabile, a man who likes to make money because the money-making game requires skill, ability and genius, is pretty apt to like politics. Young Jackson has got a yacht. That yacht was once the pride of the late William M. Singerly, of Philadelphia. That yacht now plies on the waters of Wicomico River and of the Chesapeake Bay instead of on the Delaware River and the Delaware Bay. It carries its owner to all points on the Chesapeake Bay. It also carries him and his family to Newport, to Narragansett Pier, to Atlantic City, to Greenwich, Ct., to Tuxedo, where he has a fine summer home.

If the yacht is not in service, and if its owner prefers to go northward over the land route, there is the costly French automobile to whisk himself and his family northward.

He Is A Rich Man.

To state a fact plainly, and with a touch of envy, Mr. Jackson is a rich man. He is the son of a rich man, for Mr. William H. Jackson, the Eastern Shore congressman is rich. The Congressman may be worth a million or two millions of dollars. He won't tell anybody how much he is worth, for his wealth is his private business. It is a characteristic of the Jackson brothers, the late Elihu E. Jackson, a former governor of Maryland, of William H. Jackson, the Eastern Shore congressman; the late Wilbur E., the late Isaac, and of other Jackson brothers, that they would never discuss their wealth. That was their private affair. No man today knows the value of the estate of the late E. E. Jackson. The Jackson brothers—there were five of them—made their fortunes in the lumber business. They were all the products of a small farm in the upper section of Wicomico county, near the Delaware line. Of these five brothers, William M. Jackson is the only survivor. His brother, the late governor, and the Democrat of the family, is survived by three sons, but none of them has displayed any political aptitude, though their father nourished political ambitions for his oldest son, Mr. Hugh Jackson, who maintained a voting residence in Wicomico and who may yet blossom forth as a political light in the county, thus following the wishes of his father.

Does Not Talk Much.

Up to date, however, Mr. William P. Jackson, the Republican son of the Republican congressman, is the only offspring of the five Jackson brothers who has come to the front in politics.

Mr. W. P. Jackson, like his father, the congressman, uses the English language sparingly. His replies to questions are yea and nay.

"Are you permanently in politics?" he was asked.

"Only so far as my duties as Maryland member of the national committee will permit me. I have no special liking for politics and I do not believe that politics has any special liking for me."

"If your father is not a candidate for the Republican nomination for Congress in the First district——"

"My father has never said that he will or will not be a candidate. He has never discussed the question with me.

"But assuming that he will not be a candidate will you go after the nomination?"

"Most assuredly I shall not. Do you not think that this congressional membership has been in one family long enough?"

"Then what is your aim in politics?"

"To look after duties entrusted to me as Maryland member of the committee. I have been elected, however, and there are no conditions attached to my election. If there were any conditions attached I should have never accepted."

"Did you bring your son forward as a candidate for national committeeman?" Congressman Jackson was asked.

"I did not. Offers of support for the position were tendered to him three or four days before the Maryland delegates started for Chicago. I induced him to accept the position if tendered to him His acceptance in no way involved me or my friends. He is abundantly able to take care of himself."

"Will you be a candidate for Republican nomination by the Republicans of the First district?"

"I do not know positively as yet."—Baltimore American.

A Square Deal

Is assured you when you buy Dr. Pierce's family medicines—for all the ingredients entering into them are printed on the bottle-wrappers and their formulas are attested under oath as being complete and correct. You know just what you are paying for and that the ingredients are gathered from Nature's laboratory, being selected from the most valuable native medicinal roots found growing in our American forests and while potent to cure are perfectly harmless even to the most delicate women and children. Not a drop of alcohol enters into their composition. A much better agent is used both for extracting and preserving the medicinal principles used in them, viz.—pure triple-refined glycerine. This agent possesses intrinsic medicinal properties of its own, being a most valuable antiseptic and antiferment, nutritive and soothing demulcent.

Glycerine plays an important part in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in the cure of indigestion, dyspepsia and weak stomach, attended by sour risings, heart-burn, foul breath, coated tongue, poor appetite, gnawing feeling in stomach, biliousness and kindred derangements of the stomach, liver and bowels.

Besides curing all the above distressing ailments, the "Golden Medical Discovery" is a specific for all diseases of the mucous membranes, as catarrh, whether of the nasal passages or of the stomach, bowels or pelvic organs. Even in its ulcerative stages it will yield to this sovereign remedy if its use be persevered in. In Chronic Catarrh of the Nasal passages, it is well, while taking the "Golden Medical Discovery" for the necessary constitutional treatment, to cleanse the passages freely two or three times a day with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. This thorough course of treatment generally cures the worst cases.

In coughs and hoarseness caused by bronchial, throat and lung affections, except consumption in its advanced stages, the "Golden Medical Discovery" is a most efficient remedy, especially in those obstinate, hang-on coughs caused by irritation and congestion of the bronchial mucous membranes. The "Discovery" is not so good for acute coughs arising from sudden colds, nor must it be expected to cure consumption in its advanced stages—no medicine will do that—but for all the obstinate, chronic coughs, which, if neglected, or badly treated, lead up to consumption, it is the best medicine that can be taken.
