men on account of his political intolerance? How can the Judge stand excused for inviting to address a mixed assembly of friends and opponents of the administration, a man who, in conjunction with another member of Congress acting on a Committee, threatened to take the life of a citizen, who was before said Committee as a Witness!

What good could he expect to follow the publication of the letter of Mr. Wise, proclaiming that a number of the prominent members of the general government and of Congress are Drunkards—thus making a sweeping charge without naming individuals, and leaving the community room to suspect the whole administration, from the President down, to be sots? All men having one spark of patriotic pride will at once agree that a charge so serious should, if true, call forth one universal burst of indignation against an administration so corrupt—and if false, an equal share should be bestowed on the person convicted of the slander.

It will not be denied that the cause of Temperance has met with equal support from the two grand political divisions in the country. If the way to promote the benevolent designs of the Temperance Societies & to exetend their usefulness, be to drive out one half of their members, then a new discovery has been made in moral philosophy.

The publication of the invitation, and that alone, can place the character of the writer on that elevation, which as a Judge and a minister of the Gospel, he ought to occupy. Let the odium of an attempt to excite unfriendly feelings and to cast firebrands among a Society, which, though differing in political views has hitherto moved harmoniously on towards the grand object of its institution, rest where it should. Holding, as we do, Mr. Wise to be guilty of a slanderous imputation on the character of some of the highest officers of the Government, we should be justified in holding his correspondent responsible for all the mischief which the publication of the letter is calculated to produce. But we shall rejoice, for the honor of that cause which we respect as the hand maid of that Religion which we love, if, by the publication of the invitation, the Judge can prove himself guiltless of affording ground for the slander.

Communicated for the Whig.

Whenever I look at the many advantages that my native County has over any other on the Eastern Shore; and in fact, I may almost say over any other one in the State: When I view the natural fertility of the soil, its many beautiful and navigable rivers and creeks; the beautful country sites, the many sources of pleasure and amusement, I am spontaneously led to say, that nature has done her part, and all that is wanting to make this the garden spot of Maryland, is at the hand of man himself. Let him but do his part, and soon we will see Talbot arising to an enviable distinction from among her sister counties.

The questions very naturally arise, what is man's part? and how shall he perform it? The former question may be answered in a very few words, to circulate knowledge. All history testifies that wherever knowledge has been extensively circulated, prosperity has followed its footsteps. Nothing serves more to increase a nation's power and duration. In answer to the second I would say, let there be one or two good Academies instituted within its limits, and one or two primary schools in each district; let them all be placed under Trustees who are capable of judging whether the men they employ as Teachers are competent for their situations. Let them institute public examinations of the students at the close of each term. Let the parents or guardians of each and every student attend, and thereby manifest their interest. Let there be connected with each of the Academies a Library, consisting of the best miscellaneous and scientifical works; & also to each of the primary schools a library consisting of such works; an acquaintance with which is immediately connected with the common circumstances of life. By this means we would see our rising generation drinking deep at the fount of science, and our youth instead of drawing out their days in indolence and ignorance, would be entwining wreaths to hang up in the temple of Minerva; yes instead of drawing out their lives in obscurity, they might become men eminent for their talents and their virtues, and consequently men of influence; indeed they might become landmarks for many of their fellow beings tossed on the waves of this world's trouble; the consolation of the bereft; the haven of the oppressed. Here some may say that I speak extravagantly. But to such I would answer; why have we not as much reason to expect great men to arise among us, as any other part of our beloved country? It is generally believed that nature has gifted all parts of this country equally with talents, in proportion to its population. Moreover we have some advantages over almost any other part. Our situation is such that we are free from many of southern vices; our attention is not occupied with undue speculation, and such other things; and on the other hand, we have not, as the northerners, to spend the greater part of our time in laboring on our farms or in some other way for a support. Most of us have a few slaves, sufficient to do our labor, if we but pay attention to them for a few hours a day. We have but very few internal improvements at present to occupy our attention; we are remote from the attractions and allurements of large cities. All these circumstances give us a decided advantage over many other parts of our country.

Again, in further answer to the second question, I would suggest that some individual, who has money to invest, ought to institute a Public Library at Easton. For a comparative small amount a library of several thousand volumes of the best scientific, historical and poetical works, et cetera, might be purchased. Such a library might be quite a source of profit, and at the same time be one of the greatest blessings that a person could confer on the community at large. He would soon see us celebrated for our literature. He would no longer see our ladies justly celebrated for their beauty, devoting their time almost exclusively to dress and fashion. When he visits the social circle he would no longer be entertained for hours by idle comments upon what is neither entertaining nor instructing. But he would hear comments upon the beauties of Milton, Byron, or Shakespeare. He would hear comments upon the actions of men of former days; and see to a great degree the good copied, and the bad spurned. He would see our society which is now justly celebrated for its refinement in many respects, also celebrated for its intelligence. Our young gentlemen instead of training themselves up to foppery, and devoting themselves to the improvement of their personal appearance rather than their mental cultivation, would be training their minds to dive into the depths of learning and philosophy They would hang with rapture on poetical beauties, or soar aloft on imagination's wing. In the language of Shakespear they would see

"Tongues in trees, books in running brooks;
Lessons in stone, and good in every thing."

What can be more interesting than to see the laborer returning at eve "his toil and labor being o'er" and collecting around him his wife and a group of interesting children, spend an hour or two in gaining himself and impa ting to them useful information?

Although the subject of education has long been too much neglected, I do hope that some individual of enterprise urged on by the love of their fellows will yet come forth and take these or similar steps for the circulation of knowledge. And moreover I do look forward with hope, yea, with expectation that some day ere long I shall see this vast improvement that I have endeavored to depicture, realized.

THE PROCESSION.

The procession, on Monday evening last, in honor of the victory obtained in this State at the late election, of the friends of a gold and silver currency for ordinary purposes, and a sound paper circulation for more extended transactions, over the advocates of an expanded paper circulation, was the most brilliant display of the Democracy of our city that has ever been exhibited. It was preceded by a boat, rigged schooner fashion, with a broad pendant at the foretop gallantmast head, bearing the names of the members of Congress elect, Howard and McKim, at the top of the mainmast another bearing the words, America Commerce and Freedom, and the American ensign at the peak. It was manned with a jolly set of tars, and drawn by four horses. In it were seated Messrs Howard and McKim, and as it proceeded, the air resounded with the sound of the boatswain's pipe and the loud huzza of the men on board, whenever they turned a corner or passed a house which was illuminated, of which there were very many. Next followed the first six wards in their regular order with their various banners, bearing appropriate mottos, brilliantly illuminated. In the centre moved the naturalized Germans with their banners, bearing appropriate mottos, which were executed in a very superior and beautiful style, and presented a most brilliant and beautiful spectacle. After them followed the six upper wards with their banners and mottos; and in the whole there could not have been less, we presume, than three thousand persons in the procession. There were several bands of music and numerous drums and fifes interspersed along the line, playing marshal airs during the march. Major Solomon Hillen acted as Chief Marshal on the occasion, aided by four assistants, on horse back, and the different wards and the German citizens each had their separate marshals.

A short but enthusiastic address was delivered by Mr. PRESTON, in his most happy strain, followed by Mr. MOORE, both which addresses were greeted with loud plaudits; after which the company dispersed without a single incident having occurred to mar the pleasure of the occasion, and all highly gratified with the performance. The most perfect order was observed during the whole evening, and even our opponents could have seen nothing in the whole performance to which they could take any exception, except that they must have felt some mortification resulting from the cause which had produced the celebration.

Loud acclamations resounded from the citizens in the streets, and the ladies waved their handkerchiefs as the procession passed. At the corner of High and Hillen streets a transparency hung high above the line of march, bearing the words, "THE PEOPLE HAVE PREVAILED, AND THE MONEYED DESPOTISM IS FOILED."

SEVENTH DISTRICT.

From the Baltimore Republican.

No returns, but as there was no candidate in that district but Mr. Jenifer, he is undoubtedly elected. Mr. Stonestreet, a friend to the administration, received some votes, but had not been announced as a candidate, and was not voted for with any expectation of his being elected.

The result of the whole is that the friends of the administration have elected four of their nominated candidates out of the eight members which were to be elected, and have lost but one of the districts in which they had a candidate. Our opponents, with all their boasting and blustering, have elected but two of their nominated candidates out of eight.

THE CALLED SESSION.—The day appointed by the President for the commencement of the called session of Congress, is the First Monday in September—being the 4th day of the month. PRICE CURRENT.

Baltimore. August. 5.

GRAIN.—

Wheat.—We have to report a decline of about 20 cents per bushel in the prices of new wheat since Monday morning last. On that day the market for best new reds opened at $1,70 a $1,75, but these prices were maintained for a short time only, and later in the day sales of the same description were made at $1,65 a $1,68. The supplies of the new crop have continued to come forward pretty freely throughout the week, and prices have been gradually receding. Yesterday sales of fair good to very prime reds, free of garlic, were made at $1,50 to $1,60, but to-day we cannot quote best reds, free of garlic, higher than $1,50 a $1,53, and other sorts lower as in quality. Parcels of wheat must be free of garlic to receive the attention of purshasers; where garlic is present sales are made with great difficulty and at lower prices. Early in the week sales of fair good to very prime white wheats were made at $1,65 a $1,80; yest rday sales of very good white were made at $1,60 a $1,65. To-day we quote prime whites at $1,60 a 1,65.

Corn.—Sales of white early in the week at $1, and of yellow at $1,01 a $1,03. Prices have since improved, and we now quote white at $1,02, and yellow at $1,04 a $1,06.

Rye.—Parcels of the new crop are selling at 60 cts.

Oats.—Sales of new, early in the week, at 42 a 43 cents; to-day sales are making at 35 a 36 cents.

To be Rented

For one or more years, that large and commodious

BRICK TAVERN

and its appurtenances, well known by the name of the situate in the town of Easton, on the Eastern Shore of Maryland, at present, and for some years past, occupied by Mr. Solomon Lowe. This establishment is universally admitted to be the largest and most convenient for a Public House, of any on the Peninsula, and to a man well calculated to conduct it, an opportunity will be offered for doing a very extensive and profitable business, more especially if he has a sufficient capital to carry it on advantageously.

Easton is known as a town of considerable trade, and the Steam Boat Maryland, which plies twice a week between Baltimore, Annapolis and this place, considerably increases the business, and of course adds very much to the value of this establishment, by the constant intercourse of travellers from the different counties on the Western and Eastern shores, and elsewhere with these places.

Possession will be given on the first day of January next. Persons wishing to rent are invited to come and view the premises. The terms, which will be moderate, will be made known by application to the subscriber.

NOTICE.

THE subscriber does not consider himself bound to purchase property for the accommodations of the Public. He therefore solicits his friends and the public generally, who intend, or are in the habit of crossing Dover Bridge, to come as nearly prepared with silver as the state of the times will justify, and not to leave Easton with their pockets full of rag corruption, under the expectation of filling them with specie, as he is determined not to be imposed upon longer, by their going over without paying, under the pretence of not being able to make the change. It would take more trouble to collect these sums than three times the amount would be worth.
