[Correspondence of the Baltimore Republican.]

ANNAPOLIS, January 3, 1838.

Both Houses went into the election of Senator to-day at 12 o'clock. William D. Merrick received 61 votes. There were 33 blanks and 1 scattering. Mr. Merrick was then declared duly elected a Senator to Congress until the 4th of March 1839. Before that period arrives, I hope to see Old Maryland regenerated, and the Democracy enabled to elect a senator of orthodox principles. Mr. Merrick is an uncompromising whig and a bitter reviler of the Sage of the Hermitage and our virtuous and able President.

There was considerable contention at the caucus last night. Reverdy Johnson, William Schley and Merrick were put in nomination, and the claims of each were most strenuously supported by their friends. Johnson received on ballot 19 votes—Schley, 21—and Merrick, 23. After the 3d ballot, Johnson was withdrawn, and on the next, Merrick received 37 votes; and Schley, 27.

What will the Chronicle man say now, after having labored so hard to induce the Legislature to send a first rate man to the Senate—one that would compete with Webster, Calhoun, Clay and Preston? Merrick is but a fourth rate man, and Dr. Spence but little better than a cypher.

The Reformers are determined to press the Reform Bill, I understand, at an early day, and report says, that it will pass both Houses by a large majority. We shall see.

LAS CASAS.

☞ ANDREW BRUCE Esq., of Allegany, was elected state Senator on Thursday last to supply the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Mr. Hillary.

From the St. Louis Bulletin, Dec. 20.

RICHARD CRAWFORD, THE FORGER.

It is not, perhaps, generally known, that this individual, who has recently been sentenced at Louisville for a forgery, under the assumed name of A. C. Woods, upon FORSYTH & Co., was for some months, last spring a resident of our city. The following facts respecting Crawford, we learn from a gentleman who had, with him a personal acquaintance.—He is the son of respectable parents, in the State of New-York. His education has been good, and his manners are accomplished; and those of a man accustomed to refined society. In person he is finely formed, dark complexion dark eyes, black hair, and his age cannot be far from thirty. His first debut upon the stage of the world was at New Orleans, where for some time he transacted an extensive business; and finally wound up his concerns, by swindling a New York gentleman, who had furnished him with capital, out of the sum of $80,000 He then left New Orleans, with the intention of returning to his native State. On his way up the Mississippi on the steamer Chief Justice Marshall, he met with Miss S a very beautiful and accomplished girl, daughter of one of the first families in the State of Virginia.—A mutual attachment ensued between them, and on reaching Wheeling they became husband and wife, much against the will of her father. The next thing we hear of Crawford, he defrauded a gentleman in Richmond, Va., by the name of Swan, of $4,000 by means of a forged bill of lading. The interval between the forgery of the bill, and its period of payment and the consequent detection, was passed by Crawford with his wife in the city of New York, in a wild and extravagant course of life. He was arrested at length, at Wheeling, for the forgery: but the matter was compromised by a note to Swan from Crawford, for the amount, backed with a responsible endorser. At the instance of his father-in-law, however, he was immediately arrested on behalf of the State, and lodged in prison to await his trial. By the assistance of the friend, who had endorsed for him, he released himself, and escaped to this city. Here by a tissue of deceptions, he contrived to establish himself in the office of Dr.——, as a clerk, or which capacity he is pre eminently qualified.—He boarded at the City Hotel, and was well known to many of our most respectable citizens. While here, a reward of $100 was offered for his detection by the civil authorities at Wheeling, and his wife's father; and the police officers came on to St. Louis to apprehend him. He became aware of the facts and went from the city for a few days till the police had returned to Wheeling, leaving behind him a note that it would be impossible to find him. He was for some weeks after this employed on business in the country for Dr.——, but finally decamped, taking with him a quantity of stolen jewelry and money.—On arriving at Louisville, he perpetrated the forgery on Forsyth and Co, and with the money purchased a carriage and horses, and went on to Wheeling, to visit his wife, who was residing with her father. A reward of $500 was offered for his detection, and he had been at Wheeling but a short time when he was arrested. His young wife, notwithstanding his crimes, his deception and neglect of herself, and the bitter hatred of her father, was devotedly attached to her husband, and, at the period of his arrest, was in a situation peculiarly delicate and interesting.—Her feelings on the occasion may be conceived.

Crawford was carried to Louisville, and his trial came before the Circuit Court on the 4th instant.—The evidence is said to have been conclusive, as to his guilt, and his own confessions tended to the same result. The forged check and bill were produced at the bar. The case seemed a hopeless one, yet his counsel, Robertson and Thurston, wrought up for him a defence so ingenious, and appealed so powerfull andy successfully to the natural feelings of the jury, that though they could not but declare the prisoner guilty, they sentenced him to only five years imprisonment instead of ten, as his crime demanded; and as every one who listened to the testimony anticipated. It is said the counsel for the prisoner have obtained time to file a plea for a new trial, and a bill of errors in arrest of judgment.

OBITUARY.

It becomes our painful duty to record the death of one of the most amiable, interesting and accomplished of women. Miss MARGARET MARIA WILLIS, the object of the following melancholly remarks, was the youngest daughter of the late lamented Peter Willis, Esq. of Caroline county, Maryland. The deceased left her home about ten days previous to her death, in good health and high spirits, on a visit to this city, to spend the Christmas holliday. She had scarcely arrived, when she was attacked with a severe spell of the bilious Pleurisy, which terminated her mortal existence in the short space of seven days. The deceased was a young lady who possessed those many rare qualifications that exalt the female character above the ordinary grade.—She was candid, frank and open in her disposition, sincere in her regard, and zealously devoted in her friendship. In the death of this highly accomplished lady, society has lost one of its brightest ornaments, her mother has lost a dutiful and affectionate daughter, 'but thy loss is her gain.' Mourn not then gentle mother, that thy daughter has fallen asleep,

'It is not death to fall asleep,
And waken under brighter skies,—
Pure spotless girl, why do we weep,
When such a slumber seal's thine eyes.'

But she mourns not as one without hope, for her last moments were employed by that true and penitent devotion, which seldom fails to meet a generous and immediate response from the Eternal throne. 'Above her sinless heart—her lips did move, yet not a word was heard to escape, her soul was in communion with her GOD.—Balt. paper.

Departed this life on Tuesday morning last 2nd inst. Mrs. Sarah McNeal, in the 63d year of her age.

On Wednesday 3rd inst. Susan Ellen Hale, daughter of Thomas Hale, of this town.

Health, Comfort and Economy.

IT is well known by many that Feather absorb the dampness from the surrounding atmosphere, also matters exuding from bodies occupying the beds, therefore rendering them unpleasant and liable to engender disease.—The above mentioned process is found by experience to purify feathers under all circumstances and add much to the preservation and wear of feathers.

The subscriber has taken a room in the house immediately adjoining the Store of Mr C. Robinson, on Washington Street, where the public are respectfully invited to call and see his machine in operation. A bed sent to the machine in the morning can be returned in the evening in perfect order for use. Those wishing work done must apply immediately.

L. PECK.

Easton, January 9, 1838.

We the undersigned, having had beds dressed, from experience do cheerfully recommend it to all housekeepers, who would consult their health and interest fully believing it an operation not only purifying new Feathers and preparing them for use—while it restores old and much worn beds to an elasticity nearly to new, cleansing them from dust and bad odours and all exposures.
