Often The Kidneys Are Weakened by Over-Work.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

Weak and unhealthy kidneys are responsible for much sickness and suffering, therefore, if kidney trouble is permitted to continue, serious results are most likely to follow. Your other organs may need attention, but your kidneys most, because they do most and should have attention first. Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. A trial will convince you of its great merit.

The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root, the great kidney and bladder remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest because its remarkable health restoring properties have been proven in thousands of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best.

Home of Swamp-Root.

Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, and don't let a dealer sell you something in place of Swamp-Root—if you do you will be disappointed.

SPRING FASHIONS IN NEW YORK

No Great Change In General Styles—The Hipless Coat Once More—Satin-Faced Dress Materials—Challies—Colors—Millinery—Large Turbans.

The similarity of early Spring styles to the present season, is welcome news to the economically-inclined. The same narrow gored skirts and long "hipless effect" coats, re-appear in the few models now on view. Stitched satin bands on the coats and satin revers on a shawl collar front, or a coat without trimming, save a silk or satin facing on collar and cuffs, are both shown by authoritative houses. Lines of cloth-covered buttons on the seams at the back of the coat, also come in new models, whether two or three piece suits. Many novelties however, may be in store for us at a later date.

NEW DRESS MATERIALS.

The satin-faced fabric leads for Spring tailor suits, such as brunella, Henriettas, silk-warp cashmere, or mohair, and of course a sprinkling of broadcloth and serge. Black and white checks will also come in for a goodly share of patronage, ranging from a very fine check to those of considerable size, but are only suitable for morning street wear. The demand for soft, clinging goods has brought about the revival of chally, one of the most serviceable as well as beautiful of materials. It comes in wide or narrow borders of foliage, flowers, or stripes of varied width, with pin-head dots, stripes or smaller floral designs, scattered over a cream-white or colored surface above the border.

COLORS.

It may be said that almost every color is fashionable—blue in several shades, all the heliotrope tints, green in many hues, a diversity of pink, old-rose, Champagne color, gray, taupe, dark crimson and much black and white, "London smoke," although related to taupe possesses its own distinctive charm.

DAINTY LINGERIE.

The above design is by The McCall Company, New York. Patterns may be obtained at any McCall Agency.

Never was there a more insistent demand among intelligent women for ready-to-wear underwear daintly finished and cut to fit the figure and retain its shape after being laundered. With present clinging styles especially women know that the fit of their lingerie makes or mars the set of the dress.

One manufacturer, at least, has the wit to recognize this demand, and every garment that is marked "Defender" is cut after perfect patterns modelled on the living figure, and finished daintily whether the price be small or great. The difference in cost being due only to fineness of material and elaboration of trimming.

SPRING MILLINERY.

The fortunate possessor of a large white chip hat, has only to cover the crown and part of the brim, with lilacs and wistaria, or else with pink roses and white lilacs around the crown, she will have apparently, a fresh importation from Paris. As may be judged, large hats are again shown and also small ones, many of which are on the turn down order, and in colors. Flowers are used in profusion, and roses are again the leader. Large ones are placed in a row around a crown, with an ostrich feather or aggrette at one side, or roses may be clustered according to taste. Especial use is made of foliage this season.

LARGE TURBANS.

These are the sole novelty in millinery, and the majority are of imitation jot throughout, which is anything but attractive. They look heavy and coarse, whereas a turban of black net, with fine jet ornaments is very smart. Small bowl-shapes are also of jet, and a small white ostrich feather at one side, mitigates the tawdry look of an all-jet hat. Turbans will be made of flowers, tulle, or fish-net, and toques also, and judiciously trimmed they will prove attractive. Ready-to-wear hats are of all sizes and shapes, some with broad brims and almost flat crowns, others with high, bulky crowns and narrow brims. Ribbon, silk drapings and long quills curling around the crowns are the preferred trimmings.

FURS FOR LADIES.

What Kent's "Fur King" Has To Say About Styles And Quality Of Furs—$1,000 Hides.

[Written for the KENT NEWS]

As the fur season is in its glory I deem it proper to inform your readers about the styles and qualities—as every woman loves handsome furs and the styles this season are so rich and effective, even the most critical cannot fail to be pleased. The Black Fox, which is very scarce and costly, is imitated by the White Fox that is caught in Alaska and dyed, cost about $10—the Silver Fox, which is caught in Eastern Canada and Siberia at a cost of $500 to $1,000, being out of reach of the majority of fur-lovers, is imitated by the Grey Fox and Cross Fox at a much lower price and presents nearly the same appearance. The Black Skunk, which is very much in demand this season, is imitated by the Raccoon and Oppossum and can hardly be distinguished from the real Skunk, after dyeing, because the furs of these animals are nearly of the same depth and very stylish.

Black Lynx are also desirable, but very costly and hard to imitate. Brown Muskrats are generally dyed and made up in the natural styles, retaining so far as possible, the appearance of the natural skin. The Black Muskrats are seldom dyed, because their natural color is far superior to the more costly furs that are dyed. The Mink, the Otter, the Red Fox, the Beaver and the Wild Cat are seldom dyed, they sell on their own merits and are principally used in cloaks, muffs, scarfs, boas. Furs, in natural effects, are extremely popular this season, the most of them are adorned with heads and tails in groups to please the wearer.

Of all the fur-bearing animals the Muskrat is a favorite for fine dish, next comes the Oppossum and Coon which are relished by some of our neighbors. The Bear is eaten by the great hunters, but seldom used in fur coats or caps, mostly converted into robes. The groundhog, squirrel or weasel are of no value to the furier, as they are hairy animals, except the Siberian squirrel; its fine glossy furs make it costly and popular among the ladies; it has no imitation.

The most expensive furs come from Russia, such as the Russian Sable, Silver Fox and Stone Martin, all rich in color and quality, being caught in an extremely cold climate. We have the Alaska Seal which is equally as fine as the Russian furs, but have to be dyed to present a rich appearance, so as to sell from $200 to $600 for a cloak. The muffs are also costly and made in bag style or round, whichever the purchaser prefers. As a novelty feature, skunk skins are being pointed with the white Badger furs in the same style as some fox or lynx, something new this season.

We notice people buying costly furs—avoid as much as possible purchasing dyed goods, as these furs are not very durable, though quite fashionable this season. The natural colors very seldom run out of style, and with careful preserving will last for several years.

I am ever ready to assist my friends or neighbors that desire to invest in this line.

TURNER APPOINTED STATE'S ATTORNEY.

Judge Adkins Names Him To Succeed James H. Covington As Prosecutor In Talbot.

J. Frank Turner has been appointed State's Attorney of Talbot county in the place of James H. Covington, who gives up the duties of the office on March 1 in order to serve the First district in Congress. His term begins on March 4. The appointment was made by Judge Adkins.

Mr. Turner was vigorously opposed by Preston B. Spring and other Talbot county voters, who declared that Mr. Turner's selection for the place would give the corrupt practices act a black eye. As State's Attorney, it falls to the lot of Mr. Turner to prosecute alleged offenders under this act, and his identification with practical politics would, it was claimed, make it impossible for him to do this.

Judge Adkins has, it is said, come to an understanding with Mr. Turner whereby he is to retire as chairman of the State Central Committee for Talbot county at the next meeting of the State Convention. In the meantime he will not prosecute any case under the corrupt practices act.

When Judge Adkins was talked of as the successor to Judge Martin, who died, the Democratic politicians of the Eastern Shore opposed his selection because of his independent course in politics. Mr. Turner was an exception to the general rule. He went to Governor Warfield in the interest of Mr. Adkins, who was appointed. Judge Adkins is said to feel that he was placed under great obligation to Mr. Turner.

Mr. Turner is one of the most prominent members of the Easton Bar, as well as a well-known real-estate broker. He was for ten years clerk of the Circuit court for Talbot county; was Comptroller of the State for two years and served seven months as clerk of the Court of Appeals, being appointed to fill out the unexpired term of the late J. Frank Ford. He is now a member of the Democratic State Central Committee for Talbot county, but will resign at the next meeting of the State Convention.
