DROWNED AT BETTERTON.

Mr. John A. Thalheimer Falls From Boat While Rowing—Young Man Who Lived at 1714 North Wolfe Street, Went With Mr. S. J. Purzer For Outing.

In an effort to recover an oar which he had lost while rowing at Betterton at 2.30 o'clock Sunday afternoon, Mr. John H. Thalheimer, 23 years old, 1714 North Wolfe street, Baltimore, fell from the boat and was drowned before aid could reach him. He was accompanied by Mr. Stephen J. Purzer, cigar dealer, southwest corner of Calvert and Centre street.

The accident occured about 500 yards from shore, and at the time no boats were near the little craft which Mr. Thalheimer had been rowing. The hundreds of pleasure seekers on the shore were unaware of the tragedy within their view, and the drowning was not generally known until boats with grappling irons went out to seek the body.

With Mr. Purzer, who is one of his closest friends, Mr. Thalheimer who is employed by the Maryland Meter Company, left at 9 o'clock on the steamer Susquehanna for Betterton. They went bathing shortly after the arrival of the vessell at the resort. Neither could swim, and after wading for a short time young Thalheimer noticed a natty yacht about 1,000 yards from shore and said:

"Let's get a rowboat and go out as far as the yacht, Stephen? I would rather that than stay in the water, because the bottom is stony."

Acquiescing, Mr. Purzer and his friend, still in their bathing suits, secured a rowboat and entered the small craft. Thalheimer took the oars, and according to Mr. Purzer, headed the boat for the launch.

"I can't swim, but I'll show you how to row," he smiled as he pulled at the oars and the little boat shot out toward the yacht.

The oarsman pulled a swift, steady stroke and rapidly neared the yacht he had wanted to see at close range, when suddenly one oar slipped from his grasp and fell in the water. The oars slipped from his grasp and fell in the water. The oar floated rapidly away. Grasping the other oar, Thalheimer stood up in the boat, using the remaining oar as a paddle and turned the bow of the craft toward the floating oar.

Standing up in the boat, which slowly approached the lost oar, Thalheimer made a misstep and fell in the water backwards, sinking at once. His companion shouted for help. Thalheimer did not come to the surface again and, although five rowboats and a launch were on the scene a few minutes after the accident, no traces of the body were found.

Grappling irons were secured and several persons began to search for the body. From 2.45 o'clock until the Susquehanna left for the city at 5.30 o'clock the searchers were unsuccessful, and Mr. Purzer, who had in the meantime been towed ashore, telephoned his brother, J. F. Purzer, asking him to inform the family of the victim of the accident. The brother went to the home of Mr. Talheimer, where he broke the news.

Mr. Purzer went ashore, collected his friend's effects and returned to the city on the Susquehanna. He arrived at Pier 6 about 9 o'clock in the evening and was met by Mr. Lawrence Thalheimer, a brother of the drowned man. Together they went to the Thalneimer home, where Mr. Purzer related the details of the accident and delivered the victim's clothing to the family.

Accompanied by Mr. John A. Thalheimer, father of the victim, Mr. Purzer went to Betterton to recover the body.

Mr. Thalheimer is survived by his mother and father, Mr and Mrs. John A. Thalheimer; four sisters, Mrs. Mary Z. Gonzales, New York; Mrs. Gertrude R. Maisch, Rock Castle, Va., and Misses Lillie and Anna Thalheimer, and four brothers, Messrs. Lawrence, Philip, Edwin and Ignatius Thalheimer.

Revision Upward, Says Congressman Covington of The New Tariff Bill

Congressman J. Harry Covington, when asked what he thought of the new tariff law, said:

"The bill will prove a great disappointment to the people. It is in no sense a real downward revision of the tariff. The experts who have figured on its rates, for the Republican leaders only, claim its average duties to be a fractional part of 1 per cent. less than the Dingley law, while the ablest impartial experts claim its average rates to be slightly in excess of that measure. The greatest vice in the present law, however, is its failure to make any reduction in those schedules affecting the price of the necessities of life.

"The consumer was apparently never considered in the framing of the bill, and President Taft's efforts in behalf of certain reduced schedules benefits practically nobody except a few New England manufacturers."

In talking of alleged differences on the tariff question among Democrats in Congress, Mr. Covington said they had been much magnified.
