THE platform adopted by the Democratic State Convention, makes the Amendment the paramount issue, and declares for a public utilities commission. It does not declare for the absolute extension of the Crawford county system for primary elections, which we think is wise. The matter of increased representation for Baltimore City was the cause of considerable discussion and prolonged the session of the Convention several hours. It was finally determined to favor giving the City fifty-eight representatives in the House of Delegates and six Senators, which is an increase of thirty-six or more than double the present representation. A strong fight was made to keep the allowance down below these figures but it failed. This particular plank in the platform we cannot endorse as we believe that it is a dangerous policy to give Baltimore City such enormous power in the legislature, especially when the disposition of the City is to draw the line between it and the counties and absorb everything. With this exception the platform is a good one and should strengthen the party in the coming campaign.

DR. HERING'S ACTIVE LIFE.

Nominee For Comptroller Is Prominent In Many Lines.

Dr. Joshua W. Hering, who was renominated for Comptroller of the State Treasury, was probably the oldest man of prominence at the convention. He was born in Frederick county 76 years ago. Great as has been the demand upon his time as a physician, regardless of the hour of day or night, he has found time to take active part in religion, education, finance and politics. In every field he has gained distinction and honors.

After studying in the public schools of his native county, he, as a boy, started to work in a store, but decided that he would rather be a physician. He began the study of medicine under the private tutorship of Dr. William A. Mathins, at that time a prominent practitioner in Westminister. He then came to Baltimore and took the course at the Maryland University, getting his degree in medicine in 1855. Returning to Westminister he soon built up a lucrative practice and prospered in the business enterprises in which he became interested. In 1867 he was chosen cashier of the Union National Bank of Westminister. His prominence among the bankers of the State, aside from his other interests, was such that in 1899 he was elected president of the Maryland Banker's Association.

A devout churchman, he was given one honor after another by the Maryland and general conferences of the Methodist Protestant Church. In 1892 he was elected president of the general conference, the only layman who ever held that position. Dr Hering has always been intensely interested in the welfare of the Western Maryland College, at Westminister, which is connected with his church. He is the president of the board of trustees and the only living charter member of that board. He was given the degree of master of arts by Western Maryland College in 1885 and the degree of doctor of laws by St. John's College in 1900.

Although always a stanch Democrat and one of the most popular men in the party in the State, it was not until 1896 that he accepted office. In that year he was elected to the State Senate. He was elected Comptroller of the State Treasury in 1899. In 1901 he was reelected in 1907, and now he has been renominated to serve a fourth term in that office.

Brought Suit For Divorce.—Charles E. Warburton, general manager of the Elkton Electric Light Company, and who is also prominently connected with other business enterprises in Elkton, has applied to the Cecil county court for a divorce from his wife, Clara V. Warburton, of Philadelphia, on the ground of abandonment. Miss Thompson and Mr. Warburton were married in Philadelphia on February 15, 1904. The wedding attracted wide attention because of the prominence of the parties. The Thompsons originally hailed from Chestertown. After the marriage Mr. Warburton built a home in Elkton which cost in the neighborhood of $15,000. To the astonishment of Elkton's best set Mrs. Warburton, after a residence of not more than two weeks in the new home, suddenly departed for Philadelphia, where her husband's counsel says she still resides and she refuses to go to her husband. Under an order of the Cecil court, Mrs. Warburton will be required to appear in court in person or by solicitor, on or before September 22 next, to show cause, if any she has, why the divorce should not be granted.

FARM NEWS AND VIEWS.

To keep flies from horses take two or three small handfuls of green walnut leaves, upon which pour two or three quarts of soft, cold water; let it stand one night, and pour the whole next morning into a kettle, and let it boil for fifteen minutes. When cold, it will be fit for use. No more is required than to wet a sponge and before a horse goes out of the stable let those parts which are most irritated be smeared over with the liquid.

Some hog men are claiming that the reason underlying the fewer complaints as to diseases among swine during the year is the higher price of corn, which has caused feeders to use other feeds, consequently a ration of better balance. Where corn is cheap there is a constant temptation to feed it in excess of the real needs of the hog. From present indications of permanent high prices for this cereal, it may be reasoned that disease in hogs from this cause will not be so prevalent.

It is advisable not to pasture the second growth clover, but allow it to blossom and seed. Should it not be desired to cut it for seed, it may be pastured or turned under after the seed has formed, In this way the land will become reseeded at little or no expense. Clover seed turned under will remain vital down in the soil for several years and sprout and grow when again turned up to the surface.

Buttermilk is a nutritious and wholesome food, or drink, and it is relished by a great many people. There is a good sale for it in all towns and cities of any size. The quality of buttermilk, like all other foods, is determined by the way it is prepared. To secure the most wholesome product, keep the milk as pure and clean as possible, use the most pure water obtainable and practice absolutely clean methods in churning. It must be held at a low temperature in order to have it fresh for any great length of time.

Hard soap rubbed into the wounds made on trees by borers or otherwise is said to be an effectual remedy.

Some of the best work on the farm is done in leisure time. Some of the poorest work is done by trying to work too much.

Don't get too busy to empty and refill drinking vessels with fresh water. A drink out of the northeast corner of the well on a hot day tastes as good to the hens as it does to the human family.

Cultivation of the soil is not merely done to kill weeds, but it is a moisture conservator; it makes the soil more porous, so that the plant roots more easily penetrate in search of plant food.

Set a good solid stake at the end of every row of strawberries, giving in plain letters the name of the kind in that row. But don't have the stakes so high that that they will be knocked over by the whiffletree when you are cultivating.

The proper feeding of poultry is a science, and one that not only affords pleasure in its investigation, but profit in its mastery.

Ash is the mineral portion of most feeling stuffs, and is used largely in making bones, egg shells, etc.

In seasoning mashes a teaspoonful of salt added to a quart of mash is about the right proportion. On very cold days a little pepper acts as a tonic, but it should not be given every day.

When an egg is broken on the nest it is usually believed that it will not hatch, but we find the cracked shell can be patched up taking a piece of shell from another egg and pressing it firmly over the cracked part of the broken egg. In this way it sometimes happens that very valuable eggs may be saved and hatched as if nothing had happened.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving remembrance of our dear daughter and sister, MARTHA EMMA BRYAN, who departed this life one year ago to-day, August 16th, 1909. Gone but not forgotten.

A precious one from us has gone,
A voice we loved is stilled;
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled. PAPA.

Sleep on, dear child, God knew best,
Asleep in Jesus you are at rest;
A sadder heart no one can know
Than mother's you left one year ago.
MOTHER.

Lovingly and tenderly we laid her at rest,
Away from every sorrow and care;
We trust she is waiting to welcome us home,
And the blessings of heaven to share.
SISTER CARRIE AND BROTHER WILL.

How sad this day one year ago,
When sister dear she died;
How sad our lives without her
Words can never describe.
SISTER RACHEL.

Farewell, dear neice, is a solemn word,
Which thrills through every heart,
But oh, it is the will of God
That dearest ones must part.
AUNT EMMA AND UNCLE ED.

She left a memory pure and sweet,
Its fragrance can never die;
Her life was brief but still complete
When she was called on high.
COUSINS EDDIE, WILLIE AND KATIE.

In fond remembrance of our mother, MRS. AMANDA COLEMAN, who left us one year ago the 4th of August.

She was a tender and loving mother,
A wife kind and true,
A sister and friend who never would shirk
What ever the kind act she could do.

When we sit at home sad and lonely
We think oh can it be true,
That she was torn from the hearts that loved
her so well
To sleep in the silent tomb

Miss her! Yes we miss her,
Just twelve months have passed away,
Time cannot heal our broken hearts
Or fill the vacant chair.

Never on earth again she'll cheer us
With her loving ways sincere,
But sanctified with hallowed prayer
Her memory lives—a dream more fair.

One long year has passed
Since we were forced to part;
But time nor space can never erase
Her memory from our hearts

In the graveyard sweetly sleeping,
Where the flowers gently wave,
Lies the one we loved so dearly,
In her lone and silent grave.
BY HER DAUGHTERS, ZELDA, JENNIE, PEARL.

WE ARE IN RECEIPT of the new book "Fairfield's Advice About Stock," just issued by the Fairfield Mfg. Co., whose advertisements of their separate preparations for farm animals appear regularly in this paper. It is claimed that this book is the most modern, scientific and common-sense treatise on the care of stock and poultry ever issued. Readers of the NEWS may prove this assertion for themselves by obtaining a copy of the book free of charge from the merchant who handles the Fairfield Blood Tonics in this town. Read Fairfield's advertisements on other pages for the merchants name."
