"Louisiana" in honor of the famous Louisiana purchase.

She is the daughter of Col. Tobias Gibson and niece of Col. Hart Gibson, both confederate officers and influential Kentuckians. She is also a niece of Gen. Randall Gibson, late United States senator from Louisiana.

The Gibsons, the McKinleys, the Prestons, the Breckenridges, Harts and Shelbys are closely related American families, members of which have been conspicuous not only on the battlefield but in public life, from colonial and revolutionary times to the present day, and as statesmen, governors and brilliant jurists.

MISS LOUISIANA GIBSON.

After the Louisiana purchase in 1803 brought about by Mr. Livingston, in Paris, John C. Breckinridge, attorney general, and Thomas Jefferson, president of the United States, John Breckinridge went to make a visit to Spring Hill, the home of his relatives, the Harts, in Woodford county, Ky.

While he was there a child was born to Susanna Preston Hart, and to Mr. Breckinridge was given the honor of naming the little girl. "I will call her Louisiana, in commemoration of my greatest achievement," said he. Mrs. Hart replied: "I will add Breckinridge in honor of my favorite cousin."

Afterward little Louisiana Breckinridge Hart became the wife of Tobias Gibson, Sr., of Louisiana, and the mother of Col. Tobias Gibson, Jr., of Lexington, who gave his daughter the pretty and significant name of her grandmother.

Camphor in the Sickroom.

Camphor is most useful as a deodorizer for the sickroom. Place a lump of it in an old saucer and when required apply to it the tip of a red-hot poker. The fumes which arise will impart to the room a pleasing freshness.
