ALFALFA AFTER-TREATMENT

BY JAMES T. ANTHONY

(In Centreville Record.)

If conditions so far were perfect there would be little occasion of saving anything under this heading. But as perfection does not belong to man or his works, it may be well to say should freezing weather catch the crop with small growth and nothing to protect it from hard freezing and high winds, it should have a top dressing of barnyard manure, free from live weeds. Seed from five to ten loads per acre, using spreader when ground is frozen to avoid injury to young plants from horses feet or machine wheels. The addition of 100 pounds Basic slag to the load spread evenly over top of manure is worth far more than its cost in the extra growth and vigor that result from it

As a manurial treatment, where the mulch effect is not important, there is nothing quite so good for our plant as wood ashes. One hundred bushels to the acre spread on plat evenly during its winter dormancy may be depended on to more than pay for itself the first year after application, and to continue its helpful influence for many years to come.

Should plants from any cause show too thin on ground, we have found the best treatment to be as follows: After the third annual cutting of hay, say last of July or first of August, put on a good sharp disc harrow that does not leave land in ridges, preferably the Clark double action cut-a-way, weighing it down so as to cut deep without turning a big furrow, casting aside all fear of killing the alfalfa plants, as workings in this manner can but split the crowns and cause increased stooling. Land being now pretty thoroughly cultivated, about middle of August sow more seed, heavy in thinner portions and not to heavy in thicker sections. Cover seed with weeder or light harrow if it does not rake litter into bunches. Should the latter occur, use disc harrow, running same shallow and at right angles with former working. This should insure a good stand and show an increased crop the following season.

Perhaps enough has been said on this subject, but before closing this article permit me to add. Now that dairying is being revived, and with it logically the material out of which milk is made, for this product while 87 per cent. water cannot be made from air and water only.

To get satisfactory results we must have cows of good dairy type, comfortable quarters, and an abundance of good food. And as the price of bran and middlings are almost prohibitive, it surely behooves us to grow bran or its equivalent in the alfalfa plant. Chemists show us by analysis that in food value the two are nearly alike.

The correctness of this has been proven by actual test in the herds of practical dairymen.

This last statement explains the importance the writer attaches to the subject of these articles and his effort in trying to show others what has proven a bonanza to him.

The next and perhaps last phase of this subject will be The Time to Cut and Way to Cure Alfalfa Hay.

Anty Drudge's Advice to Mrs. Careworn.

Mrs. Easywork—"Jack and I went to the theatre last night. It was fine."

Mrs. Careworn—"And I suppose your wash got a lick and a promise. Any woman who does her work right is too tired to go out Monday night."

Anty Drudge—"No, she didn't let her work go! I'll tell you what she did. She used Fels-Naptha soap which does the work in half the time and doesn't give you a backache in doing it."

Here are two ways of washing. Choose for yourself:

The Old Way. Get up at 5 o'clock. Make hot fire, fill the washboiler and get it boiling. Wet your white clothes, soap them and put them into the boiler. When they're boiled good and tender, rub them hard on the washboard, meanwhile putting others in to boil. Keep the fire good and hot. It will fill the house with nauseous steam but that's necessary in this kind of washing. When noon comes, if the smell of boiling clothes hasn't taken your appetite, snatch a bite of cold lunch. When you have the clothes boiled and rubbed sufficiently, wring them out, go from the steaming hot room into the cool air outside and hang them on the line. You'll likely catch cold, but it must be done.

The New Way. Get up at 7 o'clock summer and winter. Wet all your clothes, soap well with Fels-Naptha and let them soak in cool or lukewarm water for 30 minutes. Then rub lightly, rinse well and hang out to dry. That's all. And your clothes will be cleaner, whiter and purer than you could get them in any other way. The whole washing takes only a few hours.

Which way sounds best to you?

In using Fels-Naptha, follow simple directions printed on the red and green wrapper.
