WINTER EGGS.

The average number of eggs laid by hens of all breeds was 134 so that the Orpingtons and Reds not only laid well above the average all the year round, but also laid better during the winter months than the average hen all the year round.

Of course no hen will lay in winter if not properly attended to. They should not be allowed out when there is snow on the ground under any circumstances and are better kept shut up if it is very cold and windy. Did you ever feed boiled potato peelings, etc. If so you will have noticed that while hens will eat them almost boiling hot they cannot put their feet into them. The most sensitive part of a fowl is the comb and after that the feet. Housing is very important and crowding fowls into a dark ill ventilated house is not conducive to a large egg yield It does not matter how open the house is in front (the South) as long as the back and ends are tight and will not admit drafts. Housing and also feeding require separate treatment and they will be dealt with at a later date.

Hens will not lay on a ration of corn and corn and corn, they need mixed grain. Equal parts of corn, wheat and oats make a good combination for the grain part of their ration, but they must have green stuff of some kind and animal food in some form or other. You cannot expect a hen whose natural laying period is when it gets bugs, worms, etc., green food of every kind and a variety of seeds to keep on laying when eating nothing but corn With a little care in feeding and housing hens—if you choose the right breed and hatch at the right time of year—will lay about as well in the winter as in the summer. It will be noticed that the Orpington's laid better in the winter than in the summer.

One of the most important features and one that cannot be emphasized too much is hatching your chicks at the right time. If hatched too early they will lay a few eggs then go into the molt and be sleeping partners all the winter when their assistance is most needed. If hatched too late they will not lay until late winter or early spring and thereby miss the best of the high-priced egg market.

Too early hatching is a sure loss and too late necessitates additional work in forcing your pullets, though this can be done without harm.

The Orpington takes from 26 to 29 weeks to mature, and Orpington eggs should be set in March the latter part of the month being best, they can be set with advantage the first two weeks in April, but for the best results not later than this.

The Red and Rocks mature in from 24 to 27 weeks, and the eggs of these breeds should be set the last two weeks in March and the first three in April.

The Wyandotte is possibly a week earlier than the Red or Rock in coming to laying maturity and their eggs may be set a week later.

These winter layers do not make the best breeders the following year, and for your breeding pens, set your eggs about four weeks later than the times given. The pullets from these settings will start to lay in the early spring, will lay well all the year, and if mated to a good vigorous cock bird will make the very best breeders it is possible to raise, and their eggs set in season will produce a flock of winter layers that will surprise you. The writer had a pen of such birds in 1911-12 and from 84 pullets got in November 1165 eggs, December 1349 eggs, and January 1420 eggs. With smaller pens the results of the past winter were even better than this. For example, from one pen of 15 Buff Orpingtons the record was: November, 220; December 236 and January 304.

In order that you get the best results it is very essential that all the chicks make a uniform growth and get no setbacks. They should be very carefully culled when about 5 or 6 weeks old, the best kept in a separate flock and again culled at 10 to 12 weeks. These selected birds should be put into their winter quarters early in October and from that time on carefully housed and fed, they will pay you for all the attention they received many times over. Now is the time to make preparations for a full egg basket next winter. Start right, select your breed and make up your mind to cut out those mongrels that at present wander round your farm.

Notes of the Flood.

Mr. Chas. B. Dodd who is employed in Cincinnati writes to his mother in Chestertown that the conditions in the west are awful. On last Thursday the water had arisen 69 feet in his city and was within two blocks of his place of business.

Mr. Hope Hudson, who is in Pittsburg writes to his parents here, that his firm were compelled to quit business, the water having extiquished the fires!

Mrs. Fred. Hirons has two sisters and a br ther living in Lakeside on the banks of the St. Joe river, near Fort Wayne. A letter from her home folks says they had to abandon their home and live with friends for several days.

Rich men were seen in the bread line, begging for bread and water, one wealthy citizen offered $100 for a little alcohol with which te start a fire to heat his baby's milk!

Ten men were kept on top of a mill two days expecting each moment to be cut down into the stream by the swift stream.

Eight persons suffering from diphtheria are at the Miami Valley Hospital. Seven of them were caught in a house with a person who had recently become ill with the disease. Four persons hemmed in with one who had measles are suffering with that disease.

There are two hospitals there and St. Elizabeth's was flooded on the first floor, so that all sick and injured were taken either to the Great Miami Hospital or to the State Insane Asylum. Eight persons whose minds have temporarily become affected because of hardships suffered in the flood are being cared for at the latter place.

With warmer weather the greatest problem was the removal of the carcasses of horses. Every available automobile truck and all the horse-drawn drays were impressed by the sanitary officials and hundreds of men were engaged all day removing the carcasses to the different incinerating plants and to vacant plots on the outskirts of the city, where they are burned.

Hundreds of sightseers arrived for a holiday in the city, only to be impressed into the service of the Sanitary Department and were forced in some instances at the points of bayonets in the hands of National Guardsmen, to assist in the removal of carcasses.

But it will be a long time before all Daytonians again live in their own homes. There are 1500 residences which it will be necessary to plaster and paper before they can be occupied. There are 4,500 houses which it will be necessary to build foundations under, to straighten, reroof, put in doors and windows, rebuild chimneys and make other repairs before their owners can move in again. There are 2,000 houses which it will be necessary to raze and new structures built. The citizens' relief committee, on advice from engineers, had decided that this reconstruction work will require four months, even if building material can be obtained promptly.

The M. E. Church South Conference adjourned Monday and among the appointments were these: Millington and Chesterville, Rev. A. E. Owen; Church Hill, W. C. Smith; Trappe, J. A. Rood; Sterling, Va., J. H. Kuhlman.

Our friend, Mr. D. Russell Downey, of Rock Hall, has certainly got the fowls that lay. On March 19th he mated up a pen of six yearling Buff Orpintons in order to get eggs from which to raise his 1914 breeders, and this six yearlings have laid as follows: Marth 19th, 6 eggs; 11th, 6 eggs; 12th, 6 eggs; 13th, 4 eggs, 14th, 5 eggs; 15th, 6 eggs; 16th, 5 eggs; 17th, 5 eggs; 18th, 5 eggs; 19th, 6 eggs; 20th, 3 eggs; 21st, 6 eggs; 22nd, 5 eggs; 23rd, 4 eggs; 24th, 4 eggs; 25th, 6 eggs; 26th, 6 eggs; 27th, 4 eggs; 28th, 5 eggs; 29th, 6 eggs; 30th, 6 eggs; 31st, 6 eggs. A total of 115 eggs in 22 days, or an average of 318 eggs a year for each hen. With a production like this Mr. D.'s egg yield in 1914 should be interesting.
