"An Outgrown Constitution."

Perhaps there were a thousand people who heard the remarkable lecture of Dr. Frank Dixon, of Washington, at the Chautauqua tent on Tuesday evening last. It was a very instructive address, well worth careful attention and reflection. The present Constitution, he said, should be strengthened, improved all along the line, and to this end an amendment should be passed which would make such amendments of much more easy accomplishment. He referred to the fact that so obvious a public need as the election of United States Senators by the people had to be fought for twenty years before the victory which such a vast majority of the people had demanded was achieved.

No institution is sacred that does not serve an end, he said. Again, he declared, he had no respect for precedents and that everything has been made by smashing precedents. Even the Constitution was framed in this manner. Precedents were smashed right and left when it was made. Our Constitution was modeled after the British, the one on which we built our nation is like that which gave power to the King, the House of Lords, the House of Commons each having the veto power. It was framed in Philadelphia in 1787 by great men, leaders of their times, philosophers, men who afterward, served as Presidents, vice-Presidents; serious-minded men, men who represented the highest ideals. The Declaration of Independence was twelve years before, and through that great document the modern spirit of democracy was born.

Most of the framers of the Declaration were living, why were they not in the Constitutional Convention? The lecturer asked, and the reason was apparent from his argument.

The Constitution has dammed up the stream of democratic sentiment for 125 years, so that we are today not very democratic in the true sense. In giving a brief sketch of several of the framers in the Constitutional Convention, Dr. Dixon declared Alexander Hamilton, whose great work in founding the Treasury system of the nation he praised, a typical conservative. Jefferson, a thorough-going believer in democratic government—rule by popular majorities—was not at Philadelphia. Only 6 of the 56 signers of the Declaration were there. It was a period of reaction, when the political idea that the owners of property, and not the will of the people, should control American government, was ascendant. This idea was imbedded in the Constitution, which was elaborately designed to hinder and nullify growth or expression of real democracy.

Dr. Dixon dwelt upon the three divisions of government prescribed by the Constitution. He dwelt upon the Senate and House of Represenatives, and what part they take in the national government, and on the Judicial branch, likewise, and said: "You people think you elect a President. You deceive youself not been elected by the people you have but now they will be.

"It was not intended by the framers of our Constitution that the people should elect a President, and it was put into the hands of electors. The moment you begin to govern by trickery and subterfuge, you have undermined the principles upon which your government is built."

He spoke with deference of the judicial department of State, the Supreme Court, but said it had taken the right to make void a law, and such a right is superior to power to enact. When judges begin to extend their authority, they extend their sovereignty. The Supreme Court can nullify an Act of Congress and set at naught the will of the people. It not only interprets statutes, but has assumed the power to pass on their policy, as in putting the word "reasonable" in the Sherman anti-trust law, and denying the American people the right to impose an income tax—which it took years of effort to write into the Constitution.

Dr. Dixon said he believes in the majority of the people enacting their own laws.

Expressing his optimism, Dr. Dixon said: "Someday we will have enough independence to elect a Congress that will forbid the Supreme Court ruling the people." He said our governing powers are set over one against the other with check and balances. Any written constitution is an anomaly. Our party system defeats the popular will. Our party selects for us the man it thinks we ought to vote for and we vote for him. Do you imagine that is "self-government?" Dr. Dixon asked.

All your life you have boasted of "self government," yet you have not had a single thing to do with it. The party selects the man. For 84 years out of 125 our three Departments have been at logger heads. What sort of a system of democracy is that? We are the most backward nation. We have stayed where our fathers placed us. England has gone on. England is the model government of the world.

Dr. Nixon believes in the Initiative, Referendum and Recall—"the three great instruments of democracy."

We need a tide of democracy which flows for self government. We are beginning now where we ought to have begun 100 years ago. We must build upon foundations that will take into consideration the humblest man, woman and child. We would be false to our fathers if we accepted what they themselves achieved 125 years ago. A new Constitution should be like so much of the old that is good. A day is coming when our ideals shall not be a dream, but principles upon which we shall stand. Dr. Dixon's lecture extended an hour and a half and was listened to with marked attention.

Retired Georgia Planter's Advice to Kidney Sufferers

Regarding the wonderful curative merits of your Swamp-Root, I cannot say too much. After suffering severely for three years or more with severe pains caused by weak kidneys, I was finally induced to try Swamp Root through a testimonial I read in one of the newspapers. I was in such a condition that I was obliged to arise from my bed six or eight times every night. I purchased a fifty-cent bottle and before it was used I felt so much relief that I purchased a one-dollar bottle and by the time this was taken the old pains had left my back and I could sleep the whole night through. I am a retired planter, 70 years of age, and owing to Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, I am in the best of health and feel like a boy. I am always glad to recommend Swamp-Root to those who are in need of it.

Sincerely yours,
C. E. USSERY,
Bowersville, Ga.

Personally appeared before me, this 8th of September, 1909, C. E. Ussery, who subscribed the above statement and made oath that the same is true in substance and in fact.
