The Epworth League leader for Sunday is away, so there will be someone to take his place. Topic—"League Study Classes."

DEATHS.

This community was greatly shocked on Tuesday when the death of Mabel Gray, beloved wife of Rev. A. E. Owens, of Millington, was reported. She was taken quite sick Sunday and was carried to Easton Hospital in a machine by Mr. Merrick Clements that night. Rev. A. E. Owens is pastor of Chesterville and Millington M. E. Churches, South, and with his estimable wife were meeting with success. Funeral services were held Wednesday at Camp Chapel at 2 p. m.

On Sept. 17, 1913, at his late residence, 910 N. Stricker street, Baltimore, Benjamin Gardner, husband of Sarah C. Gardner, died in his eighty-first year. The funeral will take place from his late residence Saturday morning. Interment at Louden Park, Baltimore, Md. Mr. Gardner lived for many years in Chestertown and is well-known here. He was an expert brick layer and plasterer and helped to build a great number of houses in Kent.

LOCAL NOTES

EGGS 31 cts. per dozen at A. Cohen's, Sandy Bottom.

A COLORED man dropped dead while picking tomatoes in Morgnec on Wednesday last.

ELKTON is now the mecca for would-be brides and grooms. Seven couple were married there on Saturday.

HOG cholera has made its appearence in Kent and we urge our farmers to use every means to prevent its spread.

SAVE your old newspapers for the Ladies Improvement Association who will collect them next week.

THE tomato crop in Kent this year is not the success it was last year. Next week will finish up the crop.

JOHN F. USILTON is shipping some fine Solway peaches from Poole's Island this week. His crop was cut short by the cold.

THE Kent County Land Company has sold to Rudolph Wacher, of Baltimore, the Titter Wood place in Quaker Neck at a figure around $2,250. Mr. Wacker will occupy the property Jan. 1st.

ONE of the prettiest homes in Worton is that of Mr. Dave Cannon's, near St. James Church. He bought 154 acres from the Edwards farm on which Chas. Atkinson, of Sandy Bottom, built this home for him.

MR MOODY'S tailoring to the trade business has started up in earnest this cool spell, and with the large International line of well selected fabrics, and the fine service they render, we predict an imprecedented amount of business for him this season. All he requests is a comparison, for same service.

THE Experimental Station at College Park, Md., furnished Saulsbury Bros. with about 30 varieties of the soy beans last spring, in order to determine the best varieties of seed in this section. These beans will be harvested next week, and any one interested can get a list of the varieties at Saulsbury Bros.

NEW YORK is making preparations for another Philadelphia World Series invasion. The preparations so far embrace two main details. The first consists in the arrangement of a portable rightfield fence that can be shifted back 300 feet when J. Franklin Baker arrives at the plate in a moment of stress. The second move consists in a course of aeroplane lessons for right fielder Jack Murray in case the 300 inches shy of the Bakerian Limit.—Collier's Weekly.

IGNATIUS COOPER and Col. Terry, owners of the big peach orchard near Dover from which over $8,000 worth of highly colored fruit was just harvested, have decided to guard against frost in their peaches next spring by the use of smudge fires, burning crude oil. They already have 1,050 fire boxes, but this month will send in an order for 1000 more. Experts have ascertained that the dry smoke is not only good for the trees, but the heat will actually lower temperature from three to five degrees.

THE growing of celery is being urged in this community. Messrs. C. L. Dodd, E. R. Anthony, W. F. Wink, Leonard Needles and others have proven what can be done on a small scale. Mr. Parvin, manager of the Armour refirgerator car service, says:

"This is a crop which has never been grown here to any extent, and yet it is one which could be grown to advantage and could be made a paying crop. It takes about ninety days to mature the crop and it could be planted and cultivated so as to follow the strawberry crop and there is no trucking crop which will pay better than growing celery."

It is generally conceded that there are several sections of this county which could grow the crop to perfection. It takes a dark, loamy soil, with considerable moisture, and the work is no more laborious than growing strawberries or any other crop. It is one of the best paying crops which is grown in Michigan and Florida.

ADVENTISTS UNDER CANVAS

The Willis apple Grove is the scene of great activity and has been transformed into a veritable city of tents. The Seventh Day Adventists of the Chesapeake Conference are again in camp-meeting conference session from Sept. 18 to 28. The main pavilion is 60x80 feet and will seat 700. The large dining tent has been fitted up and meals are served on the cafeteria plan. Nearly 50 tents have been erected to provide ample accommodation for the campers.

The camp was pitched under the direction of Evangelist F. W. Paap, of Baltimore. The opening address was delivered Thursday evening by Evangelist R. T. Baer, President of the Chesapeake Conference of S. D. A.

The evening addresses are on subjects of vital interest to every one. Prominent among the speakers are Pastor W. A. Spicer, secretary of the General Conference of S. D. A.; Pastor G. B. Thompson, secretary of the North American Division; Prof. G. B. Wilkinson, president of the Columbia Union Conference, and the evangelists of the Chesapeake Conference.

The bright singing adds to the interest. The choir, under the direction of Evangelist L. E. Troom, of Baltimore, assists in the song service. Special music by the choir, soloists, violin and oboe make this feature one to be enjoyed.

The camp-meeting is part of a world movement that is being carried on, not only in this country but in 87 foreign mission fields.

Bible studies are conducted daily at 9.30 a. m. and 2.30 p. m. The big service is in the evening at 7.45, preceded by a 15-minute song service.
