"THE RAY, AND LITERARY OFFERING," is the title of a new paper, just published in the city of Baltimore, by H. VANDERFORD, Jr.

PROSPECTUS.

"THE RAY" will be published weekly, on a fine, super-royal paper, with good type, at the low price of ONE DOLLAR per annum, payable in advance. It is the design of the publisher, to make it a devoted to every subject which properly comes within the scope of the press, but more particularly to Literature, Education, Science, the Arts, Morality, and General News.

Popular Family Newspaper,

LITERATURE.—In this department the publisher will endeavor to procure the valuable aid of the best native talent, and will spare no effort to make his paper attractive, and worthy the favouritism of the literary circles.

SCIENCE AND THE ARTS—Will receive proper attention.—All new discoveries in the one, or improvements in the other, will be duly noted.

MORALITY.—A pure and unpretending morality is essential to every well-conducted journal. Popular family newspapers sustain no mean relation to society. They contribute, in some degree, to form the character of youth; and imbue the mind, and impress the heart, with the prevailing sentiments of their pages. It is proper, therefore, that due attention should be paid to this subject. TEMPERANCE, as a branch of morals, will find a place in this department; and, while we enforce the evils of an indulgence in intoxicating drinks, we shall endeavour to persuade men to be "temperate in all things."

NEWS.—Of news, a faithful compendium will be given, as the paper is designed to be "an abstract and brief chronicle of the times." Every matter of note or importance, therefore, to be found in the current news of the day, will be published in its columns, in a condensed form; and as variety is one of the most attractive features of a public journal, its contents will be as varied as possible.

☞It will be published every Saturday morning, at No. 239, Baltimore street, six doors above Charles street, where all communications, intended for publication may be left.
