CHURCH NOTES.

Sunday was another great day in Christ Methodist Prot. Church. At the morning service there were 24 persons united with the church and at night there were four more besides four or five at the altar. It was missionary day in the Sabbath school and the banner was won by Mrs. C. N. Satterfield's class of little girls with $5 14. Mr. Joseph N. Wheatley made the excellent presentation address. The total collection was over $30. Last Friday night there were 13 persons at the altar and an "old-time shout" was enjoyed. Monday night there were three persons converted including a sweet little 10-year-old girl. It was her birthday. This little girl has been begging her mother to let her go to the altar for several nights until finally the mother yielded and Harriett is now happily singing God's praises. They are His jewels, precious jewels. There have been 202 conversions at the altar of Christ Church up to last night, of whom 106 have united with the Methodist Protestant Church and over 50 at the Methodist Episcopal church. Others have joined elsewhere or are still undecided about the matter.

JOHN WALTER SMITH.

An Honest Man, A Loyal Democrat, and a Faithful Servant of the People.

In a statement addressed to the Democratic voters of Maryland that appears in full on the second page of NEWS this issue, Senator John Walter Smith makes his first Public announcement of his candidacy to succeed himself in the United States Senate.

At the same time he replies in detail to the attacks which have been made upon him concerning his vote on the lumber schedule of the Payne-Aldrich Tariff bill and his vote in favor of Senator Lorimer.

Senator Smith declares that he is in the fight to win and that he will take his case directly to the people, but he emphatically asserts that if in order to be re-elected it is necessary to play the demagogue and hypocrite, to lie and to bear false witness, then he prefers to lose. The loss of his self-respect, he states, is too high a price to pay, even to return to the United States Senate.

Concerning any possible alliances between candidates for the long and short terms, the Senator declares:

"I desire to keep out of any combination with any candidate, and I shall not attempt to dictate who shall or shall not be chosen for the short term."

The Senator goes into detail in explanation of his lumber vote and declares that he cast his vote in accord with his conscience and his convictions and has no regrets concerning it. He states that he voted in the interest of the South and tried in some measure to correct the cruel unfairness of the bill toward that section. In this view and on this vote, he declares, he stood with the leading Democratic Senators of the South.

Senator Smith asserts that the charges that have been made against him are lies, that those who know the facts or take the trouble to investigate know they are lies, and that anyone who chooses to believe that he voted in the interest of his own pocketbook is welcome to that belief.

As a matter of fact, he states, his business partners were strongly in favor of free lumber and urged him to vote that way. His company would not be affected in the least by the tariff on lumber, as it sells practically all its product in the neutral markets and in Europe.

At the time the lumber schedule was up, Senator Smith states he could have voted for the Davis free lumber amendment, which meant nothing and the Johnston free lumber amendment, which was a joke, and then have under a lot of political capital by blowing his own trumpet and claiming to be a "pure souled patriot" who had voted to strike at his own profits. But he felt that to play the game this way would be to play the coward and hypocrite and that he would be unworthy of the affection and regard with which his friends honor him.

Senator Smith charges that his opponents in attacking him have suppressed the truth in part and have skillfully distorted the facts concerning his record. He declares that they charge him with having voted once against free lumber, which is false, but that they do not state that he has twice voted for free lumber, once in the Canadian Reciprocity bill and once again in the Farmers' Free List bill. He further asserts that he has voted for and supported every single tariff reform bill that has been sent to the Senate by the Democratic House and that every measure that has been framed by Chairman Underwood in the House has received his support in the Senate.

He declares that he supported the bill amending the Constitution so as to provide for the direct election of United States Senators and has stood with his party leaders in favor of every progressive measure that has come to a vote in the Senate. None of these facts concerning his record is ever mentioned by his opponents. Nor do they mention that on his tariff votes he followed the lead in many instances of Senator Money, the Democratic leader, and was joined by Bacon, of Georgia; Senator Daniel, of Virginia; and others of the big Southern Democrats.

Senator Smith declares his belief that the Democratic voters of the State will be quick to see the motive back of the charges that have been made against him and that his re[illegible]ion in Maryland as a man and a [illegible]at for more than 40 years is su[illegible]e can afford to be indifferent to [illegible] charges and not get angry about [illegible]

Concerning his Lorime[illegible] Smith declares that Lorim[illegible] and not tried in the Senate a[illegible] had no apologies to offer for his vote[illegible] his favor. He is, he says, proud of them. He states that he never held 5 minutes' conversation with Lorimer in hi[illegible] that he had no relations wi[illegible] litically, socially or financial[illegible] however, listen to all the spe[illegible] and against Mr. Lorimer, and he [illegible] read all the evidence. He believed him to be an innocent man and had voted for him twice because of that belief, even though he had been told by his friends that to do so would sign his political death warrant in Maryland.

Senator Smith says that he was begged by his friends not to vote for Lorime[illegible] and was asked to dodge the vote, take a trip or "get" sick, and that the pressure brought to bear upon h[illegible] in this case was brought to make h[illegible] vote against Lorimer. Not a hun[illegible] being, he said, ever asked him to v[illegible] for him.

The Senator takes up the charge t[illegible] he is a "reactionary" and declares [illegible] view to be that under certain circ[illegible]stances a "Progressive" is [illegible] call yourself when you are [illegible] and a "reactionary" is [illegible] the man who has the ju[illegible] He said he had not been a[illegible] calling himself either a rea[illegible] progressive, but liked to r[illegible] as a Democrat. He asserts [illegible] tariff-for-revenue-only Demo[illegible] always been one.
