THANKSGIVING THE YEAR ROUND

A WOMAN who has an almost old fashioned faith in Providence keeps what she calls her "thank offering box." Into this goes through the year, from one Thanksgiving to the middle of the following November, a sum of money for every accident escaped, calamity averted or special joy.

These offerings are not confined to her own escapes, but each time some member of her family bobs up from some threatened woe into the box goes the money offering of thanks.

Not the same amount is given each time, and rarely large sums, for the woman is not rich, but a nice little sum is realized.

This is devoted to giving some one a happy Thanksgiving day. It does not always go into the regular channels. As the woman says, the poor and hospitals are usually well cared for in holiday seasons.

Sometimes a homesick girl in a strange city is given car fare home for the Thanksgiving gathering she would otherwise miss. Once a music lover was given a season ticket to the symphony concerts. Again a doctor's bill that had worried a young stenographer who had her mother to support was quietly paid.

In speaking of her pretty custom the owner of the thank offering box said, "Never have I known what thankfulness really meant until I started my box and saw the joy my thankfulness brings to others."

Such a box, besides cultivating one's bump of gratitude and making others equally grateful, cannot but afford great pleasure and interest in the spending. It is a gracious thought one more woman could profitably put into practice.

Thanksgiving In the Country

By JOE CONE.

BRING on the turkey, mother, an' the fixin's one an' all.
Pile 'em high upon the table for the big an' fur the small.
It is time to set the dinner, it is time to set us down,
An' my appertite, I reckon, is the biggest thing in town.
Bring on the sass an' dressin'. Don't leave anything behind,
Cuz today we want to sample, mother, each an' ev'ry kind.
So don't furgit the puddin', an' please don't furgit the pie.
Today's Thanksgivin', mother, an' we're goin' to travel high.

Ain't thet turkey jest a daisy? Ain't he juicy, plump an' brown?
Don't he make you hungry, mother? Ain't he fit fur any crown?
See! His glossy skin is bustin', an' the stuffin's runnin' out.
Oh, I tell you, mother, children, this is heaven, jest about!
Draw your chairs around the table; loosen buttons where you kin;
You don't want your highest collars interferin' with your chin.
Now I'm goin' to carve the turkey. Pass your plates, you youngsters five.
Today's Thanksgivin', mother. Ain't it good to be alive?

—Baltimore Herald.

Some Eventful Thanksgivings.

Among the days set apart for thanksgiving which in reality have been days of national sorrow may be numbered that of 1875, when the entire country was mourning over the death of Vice President Henry Wilson, whose remains on the Thanksgiving day of that year were lying in state at Washington; that of 1878, when the German steamer Pomerania, from New York, crowded with passengers, sank off Folkestone, England, carrying to a watery grave fifty souls; that of 1881, the morning of which found the country grieving over the death of President Garfield; that of 1882, when another terrible loss at sea set the country mourning, the steamer Ocean Grove striking on the rocks of Cape Canso and proving a coffin ship to many on board; that of 1885, when the country mourned over the death of Vice President Thomas Hendricks, sleeping his last sleep at his Indianapolis home.

A Thanksgiving Monologue.

PA, I want that drumstick there
An' some raisin stuffin' too.
Uncle Jim, I like a pear
Fixed with pickles. Say, don't you?
Aunt Marie, I wisht you'd pass
Me th' jam—that ain't enough!
What's that in that big green glass?
Aw, I mean that frothy stuff!
Kin I have some white meat, pa?
Yessir, I'm a-goin' to be
Keerful Sis, I want some slaw.
Gee, you're always stintin' me!
Whoop—whoop—ouch! I never meant
To upset that gravy boat.
Guess that stuffin' must 'a' went
Down my Sunday meetin' throat!
Pa, ain't there one more drumstick?
Huh! Eat three if I'd jest try!
Um-yum! Naw, I won't be sick!
Gimme 'nother piece o' pie!

—Charles C. Jones in Puck.

In a Gastronomic Way.

"Do you think Thanksgiving turkeys will go down?"

"I am sure of it."

"That's good. Do you think they will fall much?"

"I didn't say anything about their falling; I said they would go down."—Baltimore American.

A Dinner Jingle.

Ef no turkey dish you view
Possum's good enough fer you!
Ef no possum's on the plate
Rabbits overrun the state.
Anyway, in light we're livin',
An' we're willin' fer Thanksgivin'!
