UNDERWEAR

It is now time to make your change in Underwear and as usual we are headquarters for the very best values that our experience teaches us to buy, so, when in need of anything call and let us show you our values.

BLANKETS and COMFORTS

Why pay ⅓ to ½ more somewhere for the same things when you can get them here at a saving of this Kind—they are here at all prices.

OUTING, ETC.

We have a beautiful line of Outing, Ginghams, Percale and it will pay you to see our 50c Table Linen.

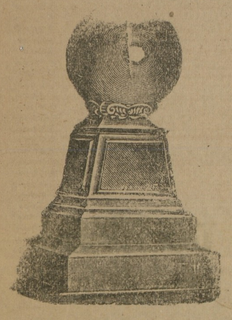
COFFEE

Last week we made a special of our 35c Coffee, made a leader of it and pushed it at 20c and we were agreeably surprised at the results; sold more than four times as much at the cut-price and we are going to continue it for quite some time as people are talking about its value. ALL ARE NEW CANNED GOODS. So, be sure to come in and look them over and buy yourself something that is just a little better than just the old ordinary kind that your forefathers used to buy. You don't have to go to the city any more to buy anything in the fancy grocery line Ask Carmine about it and you can surely get it right here in your home town.

CANNED GOODS

Peas from 15c to 25c, Corn from 10c to 15c, Lima Beans, String Beans, Spinach, Beets, Kidney Beans, California Lemon Cling Peaches, California Apricots, Hawaiian Sliced Pine Apple, also the Shredded Stuffed Figs and, in fact, we carry everything good to eat at just a little better than you have been using. Give us a trial and be convinced.

NOTICE



Now is the time to place your order for Cemetery Work for Fall delivery. The Chestertown Marble and Granite Works is the place to deal. The majority of the city people who buy in Kent deal here. They save money by doing so—you can do the same.

TRICKY BURGLARS

Quick of Wit and Full of Resource In Time of Danger.

DARING IN EVADING CAPTURE.

Ingenious Schemes Used by Housebreakers, When Detected In the Act of Robbery, to Baffle Their Pursuers and Escape the Clutches of the Law.

The wise burglar considers not only how he may enter, but also how he may escape. He has the whole thing planned out before embarking on his venture, and nothing is left to chance.

When he is at work in a room he usually locks the door on the inside, or if there is no lock he simply props a chair with its back hard under the door handle, thus making it quite impossible for any one to come in upon him unexpectedly.

Sometimes his ordinary precautions fail, and he is driven to take others on the spur of the moment. These are often of the most extraordinary character and may end in doing serious damage to life and property.

An instance in point occurred not long ago at Hopwood, near Redditch. A tradesman's wife was alone in the house at night when she was aroused by a creaking sound. Opening her eyes, she saw a rough looking man in the room. Evidently he knew his way about, for he tiptoed to a chest of drawers and took out a small cash box which held a sum of about $75. With great presence of mind the lady refrained from screaming. She waited until the man was out of the room, then sprang up and hastily put on a dressing gown.

Then she ran out, but on gaining the top of the stairs was met by a blaze of flame. The thief, who had evidently heard her get out of bed, had snatched up a pile of newspapers in the passage below and, heaping them on the stairs, set fire to them.

It was impossible to pass the barrier of fire, and, though fortunately help came in time to put the flames out, the burglar got clean away.

Even more cunning was the ruse of a thief who raided a house on Woburn street, London. The tenant, hearing a noise outside his bedroom door, jumped up and discovered that his watch and chain were missing. Without waiting to put on slippers, he bolted downstairs and was just in time to see the thief rush out of the front door. He gave chase. The thief glanced around, saw that his pursuer was barefooted and, taking a bottle from his pocket, flung it forcibly down upon the pavement in front of the other.

The householder naturally pulled up short, just in time to save his feet, while the burglar, turning sharply down a side alley, disappeared from view.

The latter case calls to mind one which happened in Devonport or, rather, in Stoke, which is the residential suburb of that town. A naval officer was aroused about 3 a. m. on a winter morning by hearing a slight clatter downstairs. He picked up a sword and went down and located the sound as having come from the dining room.

There was a good deal of silver there, and he at once made up his mind that burglars were after it. He tried the door, but found it fastened from the inside, so went out of the front door and rushed around to the window.

But the thieves had foreseen this maneuver. As he reached it one of them flung a handful of pepper into his face, and as he reeled back, choked and half blinded, they both jumped out and took to their heels.

One of the smartest tricks ever played by a burglar was in a house in the suburbs of Worcester. The man broke in at night and, after packing up some silver below, ventured upstairs to see what he could find. The master of the house spotted him and called his son.

They located Mr. Sykes in a first floor front room. His shadow was plainly visible on the blind, outlined apparently by a candle or lantern. The father kept watch outside in the front, while the son went for a policeman. When he returned with the officer the shadow was still plainly visible. But when they went up and entered the room, behold there was nothing but an effigy made with pillows and a suit of clothes!

The intruder, seeing that he had been discovered, had rapidly constructed this to personate himself and had then cleared off by means of a rope hanging from a back bedroom window.—Pearson's Weekly.

Grattan's Parliament.

Grattan's parliament was so named from the fact that it had been largely brought about through the tireless energy of Henry Grattan. Its independence was declared by act of parliament in England in the year 1782. It came to an end by the passing of the act of union in July, 1800. In 1806 Grattan said of his parliament: "I have a parental recollection of it. I sat by its cradle. I followed its hearse."—New York American.

The Way of It.

"Jones tells me his son is making a noise in the world."

"So he is. He's ringing the bell for the auction in the next block to begin now."—Baltimore American.

No man ever wetted clay and then left it, as if there would be bricks by chance and fortune.—Plutarch.

DUPLICATING AN ACCIDENT.

Showing How It Happened Is Sometimes a Dangerous Risk.

"Showing just how an accident happened is sometimes serious business," said the adjuster of an accident insurance company. "The settlement of a claim isn't made any easier by having some reckless person insist on illustrating just how the thing occurred and then losing a hand, an arm or perhaps his life, before your very eyes.

"I shall never forget an elevator accident that occurred in the early days of my adjusting. The elevator was in an old building which had been remodeled for apartments and offices.

"A tenant rang the elevator bell on one of the upper floors. As there was no response to his signal, he put his head over the metal lattice work that inclosed the shaft to see if the elevator was up or down. Just then the elevator started, the heavy weights came down and crushed his skull.

"When I came to look the ground over the janitor insisted on showing me just how the man met his death. As an illustration he put his head out into the elevator shaft. Again the elevator started, the weights came down as before, and instead of one claim to settle there were two, although of course the latter one was set aside on the ground of gross carelessness.

"Another case was where a woman employed in a steam laundry had four fingers so crushed that amputation was necessary. The next day in an attempt to show me 'just how the thing happened' another woman lost her entire hand, and amputation was necessary above the wrist.

"Nowadays when I go to the scene of an accident I say: 'Give me full particulars. Show me the place and the position of the injured person, but for heaven's sake don't duplicate the accident for the sake of showing me "just how!"'"—New York Sun.

IOWA'S WALLED LAKE.

Mystery In the Water and the Stones That Surround It.

One of the curiosities of the west is the "Walled lake," a hundred miles west of Dubuque, Ia. Some two or three feet higher than the surrounding surface, the lake has a wall ten feet wide on the bottom and five feet on the top, and the wall varies in height from ten to fifteen feet. The most remarkable circumstance connected with this strange lake is that the stones used in the construction of this wall vary from three to 100 pounds in weight and there are no stones whatsoever in the entire country surrounding the lake for five or ten miles.

There is no record, history or Indian legend to tell who brought these stones to build this wall, and to make the scene more mystifying a belt of woodland half a mile in length composed of oak surrounds the lake With this exception, the entire country is a rolling prairie. The trees must have been planted about the same time the wall was built. In 1856 there was a great storm, and the ice and the lake broke down a large part of the wall, and the farmers living in the country were obliged to repair the wall to prevent their farms from being flooded. This curious lake covers a ground surface of 2,800 acres, and the water is twenty-five feet deep and as cold and clear as ice. No one seems to be able to tell where the water goes to or comes from, but it is always fresh and clear. —C. Gilbert Percival in Health.

Razed by an Earthquake.

Since 1861 the city of Mendoza, in Argentina, has not erected a structure above one story in height. In that year the greatest disaster which ever befell the place, an earthquake, demolished the town, and the inhabitants have been haunted ever since by the fear of a return of such a holocaust. The ruins of the great cathedral, whose walls crashed down upon the crowd of supplicants who had gathered within for protection, still stand as a warning. The old abandoned town lies about a mile from the new town and is a mass of ruins, scarcely a single house remaining intact.

Two Great Stages.

The largest stage in the world is that of the Grand Opera House in Paris. It is 100 feet wide, nearly 200 feet in depth and 80 feet high. The height is measured from the level of the stage to the "flies."

The stage of the Metropolitan Opera House, New York city, is 101 feet wide, 89 feet deep and 77 feet high and is believed to be the largest in the United States.—London Answers.

Hence the Danger.

"I am just wondering whether it would be safe to propose to that girl that I have been going with."

"I don't think it would."

"What makes you think she would turn me down?"

"I don't. I think she would snap you up."—Houston Post.

Depressing Influence.

"So you don't like that professional optimist?"

"Not much," replied Mr. Growcher. "There are times when I might forget my troubles if he were not constantly advising me to make a terrible effort to cheer up."—Washington Star.

Up to Scratch.

"How shall I know if they want me to give an encore?" asked Mrs. Nuglory demurely at the amateur theatricals.

"That will be quite easy," explained Mrs. Korstic. "We will hear the catcalls."—Judge.

WEAK KIDNEYS OFTEN THE RESULT OF OVERWORK

On several occasions I have been unable to work and suffered severe pains in the back, due to my kidneys. I called on a doctor of Ripon, Wis., but received no relief.

I tried Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root which gave me instant relief. I was then able to resume work. Swamp-Root is the only relief I can get from kidney disease which I am subject to in the spring of the year. I am writing this testimonial through my own free will that sufferers of kidney and bladder diseases will know of the wonderful merits of Swamp-Root. I recommend Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root whenever I can and always have a bottle of Swamp-Root in my home.

I purchased Swamp-Root of Mr. C. J. Burnside, Druggist, of 202 Main street, Ripoo, Wis.

Very truly yours
THOMAS J. LYNCH,
525 Newbury Street. Ripon, Wis.

I have read the above statement that Thomas J. Lynch bought Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root at my store and made oath the above statement is true in substance and fact.

"The Best Possible Newspaper!"

What sort of a paper is it? In the first place it must be a Home Paper—the Woman's Friend and a part of her daily life. And it must be a NECESSITY to the Business Man. It must not only tell what is happening in the world, but it must go farther and tell WHY it is happening and what it means.

The Best Possible Newspaper has a staff of correspondents covering the world field of the Associated and United Press, scouring the earth for vital human facts. It has fashions and art, books and music, literature and politics at its right hand. It has the markets for the farmer, the merchant, the broker.

The world has never seen an age of greater constructive significance in politics, in science in society. Every move in the field of action is a topic for discussion in cities, villages, hamlets, at cross-roads. And the Best Possible Newspaper must equip its readers for intelligent understanding of all these things.

That is precisely why it is the simple truth that for your purposes, and for the purpose of the whole South, the BEST POSSIBLE NEWSPAPER is
