NOTICE TO BENEFICIARIES OF CLAIMS UNDER THE WAR RISK INSURANCE ACT.

The Legal Advisory Board of Kent county have been informed by the Secretary of the Treasury, Hon. Wm. G. McAdoo, "That unscrupulous claim agents and pension attorneys are notifying beneficiaries of war insurance that they must employ counsel in order to obtain the benefit of war insurance," and the Secretary has requested the Legal Advisory Board in each county to give notice that the employment of counsel is not necessary for the protection of interested persons, and that the Legal Advisory Board in each county will, without charge, aid all beneficiaries in that county in preparing their claims.

The undersigned, members of the Legal Advisory Board of Kent county accordingly give notice to all such claimants residing in Kent county.

JAMES A. PEARCE,
WILLIAM W. BECK,
HOPE H. BARROLL,
Members of the Legal Advisory Board for Kent county.

Don't stop to light any lantern. Just snap a switch and the barn is flooded with a bright and safe light. Everything is as clear as in day-light. You need not fumble or grope in the dark any more. As you go from wagon-house to cow-shed, to chicken-house, your way is lighted by

Western Electric Power and Light

No matter where you live this lighting plant can be installed and you can enjoy the conveniences and comforts of the city right in your own home. The Western Electric outfit lights your house, barn, and premises and gives you electric power for your vacuum cleaner, electric iron, washing machine, churn, cream separator and so many of these tasks that now take up your time.

Electricity is the safe light and it is the economical light, as well. Let us tell you all about it and show you how it will save and serve.

"NOW HE WILL WANT TO STAY WITH US"

Every boy likes to work around machinery, but no boy likes to curry horses. Many boys have tired of farm work because of the never ending chores. By using a farm tractor, many of these chores will be eliminated. The best way to keep a boy on the farm is to make farm work interesting, and motorizing your farm work will do it.

Investigate tractor farming at once, for there is certain to be a tractor shortage and buying at once is the only way to get your tractor in plenty of time to get started on your spring drive for bigger crops.

There's a size Avery Kerosene Tractor for every size farm. They make tractor farming a success on farms from ten acres in size up.

Come in and look over the sample Avery Tractors we have on hand and we will gladly explain their many exclusive points to you.

SUFFERING FROM COLD

If you shiver in frosty weather, if you have cold hands and feet, if colds are stubborn and frequent, then your blood may be thin and impoverished.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

has been correcting this condition for nearly fifty years. It possesses rare powers for creating natural body warmth, for charging summer blood with winter richness and strengthening both throat and lungs.

The Norwegian cod liver oil in Scott's Emulsion is now refined in our own American laboratories which makes it pure and palatable.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving remembrance of MARY FRANCIS, wife of Jeremiah Miller, who died April 5th, 1918.

A happy home we once enjoyed,
How sweet the memory still;
But death has left a vacant chair
This world can never fill.

When you were so suddenly called away,
Without time to say good-by,
We knew your thoughts were with us
When you were called to die.

By the beautiful gate she stands and waits,
My dear one from pain set free.
I shall clasp her hand and feel her kiss
When the hinges turn for me.

Oh, for the touch of a vanished hand,
And the sound of a voice that is stilled!
Could I but be with the one who has gone,
Whose place can never be filled.

Jesus, while our hearts are bleeding,
O'er the spoils that death has won,
We would at this solemn meeting
Calmly say, "Thy will be done."

In loving remembrance of my dear wife who died two years ago today, April 8th, 1916.

Thou art gone but not forgotten,
In this great world of strife;
Thou shalt always be remembered
As long as God gives me life.

By her husband, James Dolan.

'Twas hard to break the tender cords,
Which bound my loved one's heart;
'Twas sad to see her pass away,
And know that we must part.

But oh how hard we tried to save her,
Tears and prayers were all in vain,
For the angel took my mother from us,
She is with her Saviour free from pain.

By her daughter and son.

Blind Broom Makers

A visit to the Broom Department of the Maryland Workshop for the Blind is its own reward. Too much cannot be said in commendation. One cannot fail to find inspiration in this place, located on the fourth floor of the building, a sunny, well ventilated place. Truly, those who enter here, blind, dependent and despondent, in a comparatively short time, emerge self-supporting, cheerful and with a new interest in life. Of course, it is WORK, patient, continuous, earnest effort, that brings about this magic change.

As early as seven in the morning, the men are in their places; they work until five P. M. with one hour for lunch and rest. Thirty-five are on the pay roll, including those in charge. Twenty-six of these are piece workers. One passes down aisles of busy men, no slackers here, sizing, sorting, wrapping, sewing, each man intent on his own work, brooms "to the right of us," brooms "to the left of us." Most visitors pause to chat with cheerful Orrin Benson, deaf, dumb and blind, who sews with sure and rapid hand. He is interested at once, at the approach of friends and courteously produces a slate, on which are raised letters, or he forms the letters of the alphabet with one hand. A newspaper correspondent, who talked with him, reported him as having "giggled gleefully" during the interview. His mind works quickly. He once asked a friend to tell him the difference "between a spinster and an old maid." The talk over, one is soon made to understand that he needs room to ply his long thread. Most people linger awhile, watching the busy, intent man, and lost in admiration of one, who has made so good a use of his one talent. This man is a patriot, has bought liberty bonds, and contributes his bit to worthy charities.

Work, work, work! Behold the result of all this activity, the patient work of willing hands, three hundred dozen brooms per week, perfect brooms, no seconds among them. Would that we had a Thomas Hood to sing the song of the broom.

You leave with regret these busy, cheerful, efficient men, who have won a difficult race, with a heavy handicap; and you ask yourself the question, "could I have done as well as any of these?"

The work for the Blind requires Cash and contributions can be mailed direct to The Workshop for the Blind, 501 West Fayette Street, Baltimore, Md.

POLICE ARE NOT NEEDED TO BACK UP FOOD LAWS

Infraction of the food regulations requiring the partial substitution of other cereals for wheat has brought several offenders on the carpet before the Maryland Food Administrators. The penalties imposed have so far been very light, usually the closing for one day of the culprit's place of business and the posting of a pledge to conform rigorously to the new rules. This does not mean the measures against wheat-wastage will be half-heartedly enforced. It does mean that the authorities hold the view that the infractions were the result of ignorance, not defiance; and, in that belief, they are expecting penitence for misjudgment rather than exacting punishment for wrongdoing. But there will be small mercy for any who may deliberately break the law and make their fight against their own Government instead of against the Hun.

"The spirit of the people back of the lines must be a vital determining factor in a long-drawn war," declares State Administrator Baetjer. "Slim would be the United States' chance of success, if, at the very outset, it were necessary to dragoon food-dealers into compliance with the law and threaten housekeepers into that food-thrift which was America's first pledge to her allies. There isn't much punch to the patriotism that needs to be enforced by the police. So the Maryland Food Administration is not putting its dependence upon penalties in its cereal-saving campaign; it counts on the loyal spirit of every citizen of this State to impel him to play the game and stick to the finish."
