Terrible Fight on the River—Four Persons Killed.

The officers of the Columbus, from New Orleans inform us that a fight occured on board the steamer Dresden on Tuesday last, during which three men and one woman were killed. There were, it appears, a large number of Irish families on deck going to New Orleans, and when the boat arrived at Memphis a young Kentuckian got on board, and by some means got into a quarrel with some of the Irish passengers, when several of them undertook to whip him, when he drew out a revolver and fired into the party six times, instantly killing three men and one woman.

The Kentuckian was afterwards set upon by others of the deck passengers and badly beaten, so much so that he was not expected to recover. The tragedy happened between Memphis and Helena. The bodies of those killed were buried in Helena.—St. Louis Republican, 14th.
